HICKMAN CONFESSES KIDNAPING GIRL

NAVY ABANDONS ALL HOPE FOR CREW OF SUBMARINE

Men Dead, States Admiral Brumby; Rescue Work May be Stopped; Ten Divers Inspect Wreck

PROVINCETOWN (Mass.) Dec. 22. (AP)—Hope for the rescue of six men imprisoned in the torpedo-room of the sunken submarine S-4, was definitely abandoned today. Admiral Frank H. Brumby, directing the work of salvage, announced there is no longer doubt the men are dead. The officers associated with him in the operations share the admiral"s opinion.

The submarine, which lies in seventy fathoms of water off this harbor will in all probability not be raised until next spring.

The statement was made after a day of activity during which ten divers descended to the sunken submarine and Commander Edward Ellsberg, in charge of diving operations, almost lost his life when he became caught in the mud on the ocean floor.

GIVE UP RESCUE

From 11 o'clock in the forenoon, when Admiral Brumby announced there is no longer possibility that the men in the torpedo room of the S-4, where six men had been imprisoned since last Saturday, the impression grew that rescue efforts had changed to a routine salvage operation, and that this will not be completed in the winter months.

Admiral Brumby said the work will go on while weather conditions remain favorable, but that as soon as severe winter weather sets in, it will be suspended.

"We are going ahead with this work as fast as we can until the weather sets it or the Navy Department calls operations off," he said. "Then we will carry until spring and the work that is being done now will not have to be repeated."

It was pointed out by several officials after a conference attended by Admiral Brumby, Commander Ellsberg and Capt. Ernest F. King, associated in the salvage work, that if the extraordinary weather of the past few days continued the submarine could be salvaged probably within a few

MEN COULD BE SAVED

The Navy Department ordered that the salvaging should be done "as soon as possible." It is said, this being interpreted as meaning as soon as the work could be done without endangering the lives of the divers.

Besides the officers and men of the S-4 on the vessel in charge of salvage work said it will be foolhardy to risk the lives of divers to remove their bodies. The salvage work ought be completed before spring, they said, if those directing it were willing to sacrifice the lives of several divers in the effort.

Concerning the work of the salvage fleet Admiral Brumby said:

"When we arrived on Sunday and found that six men were alive in the upper room, I was quite optimistic that we could reach them with air and feed until we could raise the boat and take them out alive. But the weather beat us."

BOGGED IN MUD

The work of preparing to raise the S-4 continued all day and into the night, the first effort being to blow a hole under the S-4 about twenty-five feet from the bow, so that a cable might be passed under for pontoon-raising operations. It was when Ensign Ellsberg went down to

MOTHER OF ACE LANDS

Mexico City Hails Mrs. Lindbergh

First Woman to Make Flight to Southern Republic Enjoyed Trip

Flyer Forced to Return to Air Twice to Avoid Injuring Crowds

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 22. (AP)—The first woman to fly from the United States to Mexico, mother of the first man to fly from New York to Paris and from Washington to Mexico City, had only one moment of fear on a 2000-mile trip from Detroit.

The moment was when Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh and her famous son landed at Valbuena Field in different planes. The fear was not for herself or for her son, but for the eager spectators who rushed toward the down-coming plane to welcome the flyer and his mother. Without the police control deemed necessary when Charles A. Lindbergh himself first arrived last week, 2000 or more persons gathered to witness the arrival of Mrs. Lindbergh, twice forced her son back into the air after landing, in order to avoid damage to the crowd or to his plane.

Mrs. Lindbergh landed at 3:44 p.m. from Tampico, her last stop. Col. Lindbergh had gone out in the Spirit of St. Louis to meet her and escort her three-motored Ford cabin plane to the field.

MISSES MOTHER'S PLANE

The young man left the field about fifty minutes before his mother's arrival, but missed her and returned about five minutes after she had landed. Only a few police were present and there were no lines of soldiers holding back the crowd as they did a week ago, when he first arrived. His admirers forced him to circle about the field for nearly an hour before he could get the Spirit of St. Louis safely into a hangar. Meantime, his mother was taken to the American Embassy in the city in an automobile with Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow.

When Lindbergh first landed the crowd rushed toward him and he

DETAILED CONFESSION MADE BY "THE FOX"

Amazing Account of Conversing With Detectives and Following Police Cars at Rendezvous After Kidnaping Given by Hickman

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 22. (AP)—William Edward Hickman late today positively denied that he knows where the body of Marion Parker was dismembered and declared that his part in the crime was to handle the messages to the father and collect the money. He said he turned the girl over to Andrew Cramer Thursday night after taking her to the Rialto Theater in Alhambra and did not see her again until Cramer came to the apartment with her remains in a suitcase.

"This is going to be interesting before it is all over," Hickman remarked to Buck Lieuellan, one of his captors, as he sat down to relate the details of the crime.

"Do they only kill by hanging in California?" he next asked. "Oh, this is not California, is it?" he asked before his question could be answered.

When asked to pose for a photograph, he said: "What should I look like, a crook?"

HIS CONFESSION MADE

Hickman's confession made to Parker Branin, city editor of the Pendleton East Oregonian, follows:

Question: "Where is your partner?"

Answer: "He said for me to meet him at the Herald Hotel in San Francisco Sunday. But he was not there, so Tuesday morning I saw they had my name so I got real scared them I planned to get away myself. I thought I would get away north because they were searching in San Francisco, as I read about it in the papers and there was nothing I could do. After I saw him in Los Angeles, according to our appointment, I said 'where is the girl?' and he just kind of grinned and I said, 'where——'

"When the father met me by appointment, he spoke and said: 'I want to see my daughter,' and I said 'she is here.' And I think I said she was asleep and I told him to give me the money. I have had trouble with her. And then he gave me the money right there and I told him I would drive up there a little way and let her out and I drove out a little way."

Q.: "Who was it cut her that way?"

A.: "This fellow named Andrew Cramer, his part was . . . I ran away from home and I was in California and had been working in the First National Bank and forged checks and got paroled and went back to Kansas City with my mother and I wanted to go back again so I then . . . so I got his coupe in Kansas City which belonged to Dr. Mantz. I think was the doctor, and I got out here. At first I didn't come direct out here, I went to Chicago before I came here and I rented that apartment in Los Angeles at the Bellevue Arms, I think it was on November 23, or just before Thanksgiving and on Thanksgiving I went down to San Diego and when I came back the next day I picked this man and a boy up. He said his name was Andrew Cramer, and the lady's name was June Dunning I think it was. I was by myself. I didn't know anyone here. I was making my living by hold-ups and I thought if I could get acquainted with some older man, we could work to better advantage and it wouldn't be as much risk and could probably get away with hold-ups easier.

TELLS OF HOLD-UPS

"We just held up drug stores and places like that. That is the reason I had all these guns. That 3-80 belongs to Andrew. He left it there, so it didn't make any difference. We worked several places. He wanted me to get some chloroform for him and ether. I didn't ask him what for. So in one of our hold-ups, I would get out and he would drive the car. He would sit in the car and I would get the money and whatever we wanted and go out and then he would drive away.

"I really had not intended being a crook, because you will find out soon enough you will get caught, but because I wanted to go back to Kansas City and go to work and save enough money to go to college—Park College, near Kansas City. And I thought if I could get enough money to go to the school and by working some during the day, an hour or two every day, in that way I could pay the tuition. I thought if I could save $1000 I could start next September and no matter how I got that I figured I would go straight from then on. And this man asked me what I thought of kidnaping someone, and I thought I would not mind doing it.

ANOTHER CHILD CONSIDERED

"I happened to remember that Mr. Parker had a daughter, because in working at the bank this girl came with him. I didn't know just what date it was. I was there in the bank several days and I noticed especially and I noticed and I remember it was his daughter because she was his favorite daughter and he would take her down and buy her lunch and she was around the bank like she was a big man.

"I didn't think of her, however, before I thought of Mr. Hayes who is chief teller of the First National Bank, and I think he has a very young child and I thought of that first, and thought we would be able to get the money from him much easier, easier because he is a chief officer of the bank and handles hundreds of thousands of dollars and while I was in the bank I saw all the money shipments come in and used to go around the vaults and any place in the bank and knew practically everyone in the bank.

"Well, in order to get this little girl, this younger girl I was afraid it would be harder to handle her. She was a baby and would probably cry. I thought either Mr. Hayes or Parker, either one would have sense enough to consider a $1500 an easy settlement in consideration of their own daughter. I meant no harm to either one, but I thought it would be easier to handle the older girl than a little child. So this man and I both went out and he wanted to see her and get a look at her and I looked in the telephone book to see where Mr. Parker lived. I went to a house to see her when she came from school and I saw her riding around on a bicycle, but I didn't know she had a twin sister until Thursday morning. I parked by the house early so I could see her leave for school, and could see what school she went to, and it popped into my mind that if I went for her at the school, I could get her that way. There was no plan. But I had been thinking about it and it popped in my mind when I saw the girl that morning. I did not plan out the results ahead of that until I saw her that morning and that afternoon—you have read in the papers how it all happened, I went and told the teacher that her father had been in an accident and this other girl came over to see which one of the girls I wanted and I said I wanted the younger one. She looked younger, but it turned out they were twins but she didn't question me in any way.

"Then they asked what was her first name, so I told them. I didn't think I remembered but I told them I worked at the bank. I didn't give my real name—I forget the name I did give them—and they asked me which girl I wanted and I said the younger one and she said, 'Marion?' and I said, 'Yes, that is the one the father was calling for,' and one of the other teachers went and got the girl, and I saw that was the same girl I had seen in front of the house and I called at the schoolhouse that morning, and I think they got on a street car and went to the Mt. Vernon School and when I went up in the car I learned that the Franklin School right near a fence and after we came

Boy Kidnaper Sound Asleep

PENDLETON, Dec. 22. (AP)—William Edward Hickman went to sleep in the City Jail at 8 o'clock tonight, and as he slept he was the object of much interest from his fellow-prisoners who surrounded portions of his cell and gazed at him.

His sleep was untroubled and apparently he was fully relaxed and getting the full benefits of a sound rest. His captors refused to let Hickman pose for any more pictures tonight or tell of any of the unanswered details of his crime.

FUGITIVE CAUGHT IN BREAKNECK RACE WITH OREGON OFFICERS

Abducting Parker Child Admitted, Slaying Denied; 'Andrew Cramer' Declared to Have Killed Marion; Incoherent Story Gives Details of Crime

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 22. (AP)—Captured in a breakneck race with police officers on the Columbia River Highway today, William Edward Hickman, 19 years of age, on whose head a reward of more than $60,000 had been placed, tonight told a broken story of the kidnaping of Marion Parker, 12-year-old Los Angeles girl, and at the same time endeavored desperately to shift the blame for the horrible mutilation of the girl upon the shoulders of his "parner" —a man he named as "Andrew Cramer."

In his statement to police and newspaper men, Hickman spoke in a clear voice with no sign of emotion except when asked about the dismembered portions of the little girl's body. He sobbed softly and said:

"Marion and I were like brother and sister. She liked me but she did not like Cramer, and said she would like to stay with me all the time."

Hickman's story, told soon after his capture today to Parker Branin, correspondent of the Associated Press, was broken and at times incoherent. He told how he had planned the kidnaping of Marion Parker in order to raise enough money to attend college. The youth said he had not been cruel to the little girl and that she was murdered and dismembered by "Andrew Cramer," an asserted accomplice. He related how he had treated the child gently and had become on friendly terms with her and how he had taken her to a motion-picture show the night before she was killed.

He quoted the banker's daughter as saying after the theater:

"I wonder what the school kids will say when I go back. They will want to know what I did and everything." Then he wept.

TELLS OF ROBBERIES

Hickman told vaguely how he had robbed drug stores in Los Angeles and Southern California towns with the assistance of his asserted partner and made reference to a woman companion in these robberies.

Escaping a cordon of many thousand police officers, Hickman slipped through the net in Los Angeles, ran unchallenged through San Francisco, and, with two companions unaware of his identity, speeded northward on the Pacific Highway, through Portland and to Seattle. There he doubled back on his track and was captured by Buck Lieuallen, State traffic officer, and Tom Gurdane, Chief of Police of Pendleton, as he flew with an open throttle along the Columbia River Highway.

THRILLING STORY

The prelude to the capture of Hickman came at 11:40 a.m., when Edward Aldrich, editor of the East Oregonian, a member of the Associated Press, telephoned Tom Gurdane that Hickman in his stolen green Hudson coach was headed east on the Old Oregon Trail from Portland. He last was seen at Arlington, Or., on the Columbia River, eighty-six miles west of Pendleton, where he cashed one of the tell-tale $20 bills.

Gurdane, an old-time peace officer, asked Buck Lieuallen, burly State traffic officer to walk to the East Oregonian office, where Parker Branin, city editor, gave them the message received from the Associated Press. Immediately about ten officers were sent out to cover the roads.

Gurdane and Lieuallen took the traffic officer's car and drove west along the Old Oregon Trail, a macadam State highway following the winding Umatilla River.

They pulled up the car at a point near one of the numerous curves. Lieuallen was pulling out his pipe when a car swung around the curve, some 300 yards distant.

"Here comes a Hudson," Gurdane remarked.

"That's not him," replied Lieuallen, "it has Washington license plates. His car has California plates."

The car came closer.

"To hell with the license," said Gurdane. "It's a Hudson and it's green."

WEARING GLASSES

As the Hudson whisked past the two officers they noticed that the driver was wearing dark glasses and that his eyes were on the officers.

"I figured that there was something wrong when a young fellow was wearing dark glasses on a day when it was as cloudy as today," said Guardane later. "I knew that it was Hickman, so we turned the car around."

By the time the officers had gotten their car around Hickman was a mile or so ahead of them, running at about forty miles an hour.

For a mile and a half the officers chased the fleeing Hickman, traveling about forty-five or fifty miles an hour.

"I didn't have much time to see just how fast we were going," said Gurdane, "I was watching the Hudson."

As the officers' car drew close to Hickman's Hudson, they pulled the siren. Hickman maintained his speed, apparently with no intention of stopping.

COVERS CAPTIVE

"Keep behind him," said Gurdane. They knew he was armed. After another mile Hickman pulled his car to the side of the macadam. Gurdane jumped out, covering Hickman, Lieuallen went to the other side of the Hudson.

"I covered him with my gun," said Gurdane. "And opened the door with my left hand and told him to get out. When he started to get out a .45 automatic dropped to the running board.

"He pretended to make out that he was being arrested for speeding."

The officers scoffed at his pretense.

HICKMAN INDICTED

Jury Rushes Aid to Extradition

Police Renew Hunt After Girl Kidnaper Names Two as Accomplices

Police Chiefs and Others Go North to Take Charge of Parker Kidnaper

The machinery of the law moved swiftly here last night to bring William Edward Hickman, 18 years of age, former Los Angeles bank messenger, to justice for the kidnaping and murder of Marion Parker, 12-year-old schoolgirl, following his sensational capture at 2 p.m. yesterday near Pendleton, Or. One hour and two minutes after the county grand jury convened an indictment was returned against "The Fox." It contained two counts: murder and kidnaping with intent to extort money.

While the inquisitorial body was hearing witnesses in its record-breaking investigation, local detectives were centering their investigation on a hunt for two accomplices named in Hickman's confession.

HE NAMES TWO

He named Andrew Cramer, a chance acquaintance, and June Dunning, a friend of Cramer's.

Chief of Detectives Cline, who has been in charge of the hunt locally, expressed an opinion that the evidence at hand indicates Hickman solely is responsible for the crime, but nevertheless he started his officers in quest of the accomplices named, inasmuch as the figure of a man and woman companion of Hickman continually bobbed up during the early stages of the case.

Chief Cline, with Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Chief of Police Davis, left last night by train for Pendleton to take charge of the prisoner. Cline, Keyes and Davis are accompanied by detectives Raymond and Lucas, and George K. Home, former chief of the local detective bureau.

Hickman was captured at Echo, near Pendleton, around 2 p.m., by State Officer "Buck" Lieuallen and Tom Gurdane, Chief of Police of Pendleton, following a spectacular auto chase along the Columbia River Highway. Hickman offered no resistance, but at first denied his identity.

MAKES CONFESSION

He then broke down and confessed his identity. This was later followed by a detailed confession concerning the crime itself.

At the time of his arrest Hickman was driving a green Hudson automobile stolen in a hold-up here last Sunday, the morning following the delivery Saturday night of the torso of Marion's mutilated body to her father, Perry Parker, banker, at Fifth street and Manhattan Place, where he was paid the $1500 "ransom" money.

Hickman did not confess his identity until officers pulled from his pockets the balance of the "ransom" money, which totaled $1400.

In the car beside him when captured was a sawed-off shotgun. He also carried a revolver, it is said.

The capture of Hickman ends one of the biggest and most intensive man hunts the United States has known in years. It created wild furore in Los Angeles and throughout the country.

Chief Cline, when informed of the arrest, immediately started things in motion here to clear up many additional local angles before he departed for Pendleton.

FEARS LYNCHING

Fear of a lynching was expressed last night by Keyes before his departure. He said the worst danger now in the case is that the mountaineers of Eastern Oregon may take the law into their own hands.

Before his departure Chief Cline said:

"In my opinion Hickman had no accomplices in this brutal murder. If he did it will be amazing to me. Until I talk with him and learn more about what he has to say I cannot give a definite opinion but it seems to me if he had help he certainly would have had to split the ransom money with his accomplices."

out of the schoolhouse, we got into the car and we left and she started asking questions about what had happened and how it happened and who hit him and I made answers to all her questions.

"I answer everything and she got in and we then started back and was just having a general conversation and talking about picture shows and merchants and school and anything that came up in conversation generally with people, and we got well and closely acquainted, and I really kind of liked her. I couldn't look her in the face when I told her she was kidnaped, as though nothing had happened. When I told her nothing had really happened to her father, she didn't worry or scream or anything.

"She took it calm as could be, and I told her she could realize if I got caught that I would have to suffer and I would have to tie her nose and tie her mouth so she couldn't make any noise, and she said: 'Please don't do it. I will promise not to make any noise,' so I didn't tie her and we drove around all afternoon and went to a show that night—even went to a picture show—the Rialto Theater in Alhambra, and she didn't do or say anything much, and I really didn't intend to do her any harm, and here is where the other man's part of it played in. He was to have the hiding place for the girl and to keep her quiet, and I was supposed to get the money.

WATCHES THEM PASS

"He only wanted $200 or $800 out of the $1500. He said he didn't want much money any way. He seemed to like the idea of kidnaping the girl and holding her rather than getting the money. Thursday, that night after the show, I met this man and he took the girl in charge. He took her and the next day I saw her, that was Friday evening. Well, I kept writing all these letters and he to write a letter to her father, making it seem like she was being treated bad and, and I don't know, she didn't seem to like this man and didn't want to go with him and wanted to stay with me instead, but I couldn't do a thing like that. We had to go through with the plans anyway she wanted to go home as soon as possible and I though if the father was willing to hand over the money and he had it, it was perfectly all right and as soon as I got it over with the better it would be for me anyway. So I called up her father and he said he had the money and we planned a meeting and that was, we were to meet at a certain street.

"And then after I called up his house from a drugstore between his home and the meeting place. I went up there and I could watch him pass by so when I went and got in the car and I sat in the car so I could watch for him and I came back up. I saw him and there were two cars driven closely together and I drove out on the side and followed him to the meeting place.

FEARFUL OF SEARCH

"They lived on Gramercy street, which is just one block north and these two cars stopped and when I saw them I was absolutely certain they were detectives and they were going to try and trap us and I concluded to take the girl back and turn her over to the man again. I wrote him another letter and this other man suggested that I was getting the time too near but that would make it much safer and they were making such a big search he was afraid they would find the girl.

"So Saturday when he came to the apartment for this suit case and when he opened it up and showed me how it was, I was sure surprised.

"He said, 'the police are already suspicious of the place,' and he said she was crying and he tried to stop her or something like that, and he figured that the safest way would be to go ahead and fix it that way and for me to keep my suit case in the car and go to this place and if the police stopped me before I could get rid of it, they might look at the suit case and never stop to open it and I thought that might be all right.

"He had already gone ahead and opened it anyway, so in this letter I told the girl's father if I were paid before 6 o'clock that night that his daughter would still be alive and I didn't find out until after 6 o'clock when he came up to the apartment.

"Even had I written this letter after we called, even if she had not been alive, I thought he wanted his daughter, anyway, no matter what condition she was in, and he would rather have her and so I went ahead and called him up and planned the meeting place. He was there all right, and as it happened the night before, I was there before he came and if there had not been any detectives he would have gotten her back.

"And if this fellow had not killed her, it would have come out alright as we had planned, because I am sure she didn't want to die, because when she was with me she said, 'I wonder what the whool kids will say when I go back to school? They will want to know what I did and everything,' and I am terribly sorry she was killed myself, because I sure liked her." (Witness weeps.)

PARTNER DESCRIBED

Question: "Give us the description of this fellow that you say killed her."

"He was about five feet eight or nine inches tall and had almost black hair and I don't remember the color of his eyes. As far as I remember I think he had been leading an impure life, he had a sore upon his chin, but that might have been from the way he had been eating. The times I saw him when I picked him up he had on a kind of gray overcoat and he just had the one suit—a kind of tan suit or brown. He had a kind of rough face."

Question: "How old was he?"

"He looked to be not much over 28—but he looked older because I think he had been leading a kind of hard life."

Question: "Where was he staying?"

"He would not tell me that because he was to have his part in the plan and I my part. Crooks sometimes will go back on each other and if anyone knew what the other one did and it makes everything safer and less dangerous than if we knew where each other stayed and I don't know where he kept himself."

Question: "He didn't stay in the same apartment with you?"

"No, I was in that apartment all by myself."

Question: "Did this woman have anything to do with it?"

"I never saw her again. Her first name was June, I think her name was Dunning."

Question: "How much would she weigh?"

"About 125 or 130 pounds, I guess. She was about 25 or 26 years of age, I guess. I know they appeared to be a well-matched couple."

TALKED TO DETECTIVES

Q.: You don't know what address they had?

"No, I never did know. You can see the condition I was in, which, being a crook anyway when I picked him up, I had been alone quite a time anyway. I had been to a good many places to Chicago, and I went to New York and Pittsburgh and Philadelphia and Washington, D. C., before I came out to the Coast." (Witness's answer rambling.)

Q.: Do you know where you were to meet him or where to call him?

"No, we always planned to meet at places."

Q.: You planned where you would meet again, you didn't have any address for any one of you?

"No, sir."

Q.: When was the last time you saw him?

"The last time I saw him was when he brought the suit case up to the apartment and he told me when I got the money—if I got the money—to go up to San Francisco as soon as I could safely get away, as the policemen were awfully suspicious here anyway. Well, one thing that did happen Sunday morning was there were about 200 detectives came up to the apartment and looked over the apartment and started searching it. One of the fellows had the name of the apartment written on a paper and they scorched every place, and when they came to my apartment, it is interesting the way I was singing and playing the phonograph and the detectives came in and they looked around and did not express any suspicion of me at all and I went out in the hallway and talked to seven or eight of the best detectives in Los Angeles, I asked them if there was anything I could do, and of course there was nothing I could do, and they searched the apartment."

PARTS OF BODY

Q.: He had the girl or part of the effects of the girl when he came up to the apartment?

"Yes, sir, I guess he threw the other parts away where they said they were thrown away."

Q.: What parts did he have up there in the suit case?

"He just had—she was cut right across the middle of the body and her arms—he had them fixed up and he had her dress put on her, he had her dress and a little sweater thrown on her face and, of course, she was dead. But the way he had fixed the mouth it didn't look very deathlike. He had some little threads fixed through her eyebrows which seemed to hold her eyes open."

Q.: He opened the suit case so you might see what he had there?

"Yes, sir."

Q.: Where were you when he did that?

"That was in the apartment."

Q.: What did you say to him when you saw that?

"I let out a yell of surprise and wanted to know why he did a thing like that. It was quite a shock to me. He was not supposed to bring her up to the apartment. We were supposed to meet Thursday when I got her and turned her over to him."

MET HIM IN CAR

Q.: That is the last time you saw her living?

"No, that was the same day I got her from the school—that is, after we had gone to the show.

"He told me to hold her until night so when he did take her it would not be suspicious and no one would see us. We met and he took her. He had a car, a Ford car—I don't remember the license number."

Q.: What kind of a car was it?

"A Ford coupe. It was a kind of old car. The only time I saw a thing of it was when he took this girl, because he never did bring it around. We always used my car, which I had taken on hold-up jobs and things like that. Then the next day—he kept her all that night—and the next evening she came over and got in my car and sat in my car. He drove around until I called her father and planned this meeting. When it turned out a failure we didn't meet at the same place or time—it was on Grand, way down on Grand near Washington Boulevard, when I gave her to him. That was the last I saw of her alive.

RENDEZVOUS IN NORTH

"He brought the suitcase and I wanted to know where she was. He said, 'Wait a minute,' and kind of grinned, and set the suitcase down on the sofa and opened it—I have already told you what I saw and everything."

Q.: You were to meet him in Frisco in case you got away with the money?

"When I got the money I was supposed to meet him there and make as quick a getaway as I could and meet him at the Herald Hotel in 'Frisco—I forget just where that is located."

Q.: Had you stayed at that hotel before?

"No, he told me where it was, but I have forgotten the name of the street."

Q.: He didn't tell you whether he had stayed there before or not, did he?

"He said he knew where it was and he would be around the hotel there anyway. If I got to the hotel he would be there."

Q.: After you got the money, what did you do then? Did you go back to your apartment?

"I got the money that night and beat it as quick as I could and left the car in a parking station, where the police found it later. That was on Grand, and I went back to the apartment and got my things together.

STOPPED THREE TIMES

"The next morning as one of the policemen came up there to search it, that made me glad to get away quicker, for then I took first all of the evidence in one package and went downtown and checked them at a place. I left most of the stuff in the apartment—some little clothes and some other articles, a slicker and a pair of overshoes. I put the stuff all in one case and took that and some of my other things and took them downtown and checked them at the place and went to a show and after the show I went out in Hollywood to get this Hudson and I just came on back to the station and put these gripe in there and these guns and drove right away for San Francisco.

"I was stopped three times before I got through and I was questioned by policemen and there wasn't one of them suspected me at all."

Q.: You were stopped three times before you got to 'Frisco?

"You were stopped three times before you got to Frisco?"

"Yes, sir, I was searched right out of Los Angeles and then before I got inside Ventura and stopped by a State officer and was stopped by two men just out of Los Angeles. In the next meeting, it was more scary than ever because they hadn't suspicioned then by the way they asked questions.

"IT'S ALL UP"

"I told them I was driving to Ventura to get my mother—that was Sunday night and I told them my name was Beck. I had just stolen the car, but knew that it could not be reported that quick and I had a license certificate right with me. I didn't need to show them that for one of the fellows said 'Let him go ahead,' and there was one State officer—I think it was just as we were

'I AM THANKFUL,' SAYS FATHER OF SLAIN GIRL AFTER CAPTURE

"I am thankful."

These three words expressed the feelings of Perry M. Parker, father of little Marion Parker, when told that William Edward Hickman has been arrested in Echo, Or.

"I am thankful not only for myself, but for the parents of all other children that such a dangerous man has been apprehended. This is too terrible a thing to talk about adequate punishment for the man."

HICKMAN TAKEN ON EIGHTH DAY

Capture One Week Almost to Hour After Kidnaping

Marion Parker Lured from School Thursday Noon

Case Chronicled from Deed to Abductor's Arrest

One week, almost to the hour, from the time Marion Parker, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry M. Parker, 1631 South Wilton Place, was kidnaped from the Mount Vernon Junior High School and murdered, her abductor and slayer, Edward William Hickman, was captured in Echo, Or.

Following is a chronological history of the case:

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15

Marion taken from Mount Vernon Junior High School at noon. Shortly after 6 o'clock kidnaper filed a telegram in Western Union office in Alhambra addressed to father notifying him that his daughter was in hands of kidnaper.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 16

Father received telegram and two letters in morning demanding $1500 ransom. Third letter received in afternoon. Kidnaper called Parker on telephone later in afternoon and told father to meet him at Tenth street and Gramercy Place with ransom money. Kidnaper failed to keep the appointment when police followed Parker machine.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 17

Final letter received by father Saturday morning from kidnaper demanded $1500 ransom, threatening death to Marion if he failed to meet him alone with money. Telephone call received by father at 7:15 from kidnaper instructing him to meet him alone with ransom money at Fourth and South Manhattan Place. Father kept tryst and at 8 o'clock kidnaper drove alongside of Parker car demanding payment of money. Received seventy-five $20 United States gold note certificates and after driving ahead about a block placed dismembered body of child on curb and drove away.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 18

Parts of child's body found at 9 a.m. in Elysian Park wrapped in newspapers. An hour later suit case with bloody towels, tablets on which ransom notes were written and spool of black thread, similar to that found in child's eyes, picked up block from where torso of girl was delivered to father. Chrysler coupe, used by kidnaper, found in parking station at Ninth and Grand avenue.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 19

Kidnaper identified as Edward Hickman, former bank messenger forger, through fingerprints. Identification established when fingerprints on ransom letters and rear-view mirror of coupe were found to be identical with finger-prints taken of Hickman last June at police identification bureau.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 20

Description of Hickman broadcast throughout State by police and newspapers. Apartment used by Hickman located at Bellevue Arms Apartments, 1170 Bellevue avenue.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 21

Hickman purchased gloves and underwear in store in Seattle at 9:15 p.m. and paid for articles with $20 gold note certificate. Identified by store owner but escaped before police could be summoned. Passed second gold note at Kent an hour later.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 22

Hickman arrested about noon in Echo, Or., small town on border between Washington and Oregon in eastern part of State, just one week, almost to the hour, after he kidnaped Parker child from high school.

The six States which do not have capital punishment are Michigan, Wisconsin, Kansas, Minnesota, Maine and South Dakota.—[Liberty.

'IT CAN'T BE TRUE,' SOBS OUT MOTHER OF ASSERTED SLAYER

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Eva Hickman collapsed here this afternoon when newspaper men told her that her son, William Edward Hickman, asserted slayer of Marion Parker in Los Angeles, has been captured near Echo, Or.

"It can't be true," she sobbed.

"If they've caught the slayer of the little girl it can't be my son Edward."

CHILD ESCAPED ATTACK

Coroner Refutes Rumors by Stating Marion Parker Was Not Criminally Assaulted by Fiend

While the capture yesterday of William Edward Hickman, asserted brutal slayer of 12-year-old Marion Parker, in Echo, Or., as he attempted to outwit his pursuers by fleeing south in an automobile stolen here last Sunday night, overshadowed all else in the nation-wide hunt for "The Fox," County Coroner Nance issued an official statement setting to rest all malicious rumors linking innocent persons with the maniacal deed.

The statement, issued by Coroner Nance after a lengthy conference with County Autopsy Surgeon Wagner, declared definitely that the slain girl had never been criminally assaulted.

ANALYSIS AWAITED

At the same time County Chemist Abernathy reported that he has not yet completed his chemical analysis of the stomach of the murdered girl. A definite date for the completion of this analysis has not been given by Mr. Abernathy or Coroner Nance, the latter declaring that the process of analysis for poison necessarily is slow.

In issuing his statement nailing the rumors of criminal assault, Coroner Nance declared it is the duty of every one to stop the stories in circulation and absolve those mentioned in connection with the asserted misrepresentation.

ETHER NOT USED

Interest in Mr. Abernathy's chemical analysis report is intense as it will determine definitely whether the girl was mercifully slain by poison before the horrible mutilation of her body at the hands of the arch-fiend or whether her death was the result of these barbaric tortures. It was learned at the inquest that none of the secondary wounds on the maimed body were fatal.

It already has been established that the 'Fox" did not use either chloroform or ether—quantities of which he previously had obtained in a series of drug-store robberies—and the chemical analysis alone can show whether or not he used some other narcotic or anasthetic.

NOTE HINTS AT PLAN TO SURRENDER

Letter to Seattle Police Chief Mailed Wednesday Contains Query of "Fox"

SEATTLE, Dec. 23. (AP)—William Edward Hickman, "Fox" of the kidnaping plot which cost the life of 12-year-old Marion Parker in Los Angeles, was considering surrendering when he was here last night, a letter addressed to Chief of Police Searing revealed today.

The letter was mailed at Bryn Mawr, Wash., adjoining Seattle to the south. The attention of the Bryn Mawr postmistress was called to the letter because it bore only a 1-cent stamp, was addressed to the Seattle Chief of Police and was marked "Fox."

The letter follows:

"I am tired of this. Will I be given fair play if I surrender? I did not intend to kill Marion. I did not want to harm her. I only wanted to put her to sleep. I did not want her to suffer, as she was a good girl. She was not afraid of me at any time and did not suffer. She only wanted to go home and would have left in safety if my plans had not failed. Will this fact make any difference?

"This is the truth.

"THE FOX."

HARTFORD, (Ark.) Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—Drowning cats and tormenting animals and birds were favorite pastimes of William Hickman when he attended the West Hartford School here, according to his former teachers and schoolmates. He usually was responsible for troubles caused in the institution, it is said, although he invariably tried to shift the blame to others.

"Many times he successfully evaded liability for disturbances he caused," said Miss Mable Bright, one of his teachers, "and often other pupils were punished for offenses later found to have been committed by [illegible] man."

Machine Stolen Here Used by Fleeing Suspect

Youths' Suspicion Stirred by His Queer Actions

Two boy "hitch-hikers," reporting the strange actions of a man who gave them a lift, from Lamoine, Or., to Portland, were responsible for the description of the machine which eventually led to the arrest of William Edward Hickman.

James Wilson and Irwin Mowrey, Portland youths, reported to the Portland police that they had ridden with a man answering the description of Hickman in a green Hudson sedan.

Portland police notified Los Angeles authorities. It was learned that a Hudson sedan answering the description of the one in the possession of Mrs. Ade- had been stolen from F. H. Peck in Los Angeles, last Sunday night.

TELLS OF ROBBERY

Peck lives at the Cliffwood Apartments, 1043 Cherokee street, Hollywood. Police rushed to the Peck home after their trip from Portland. Peck positively identified a photograph of Hickman shown him by the police.

According to Peck, he was waiting at the curb at Hollywood Boulevard and Western avenue, for his wife, who had stepped into a store to make a purchase. It was about 7:30 o'clock Sunday night.

A young man approached, drew a pistol and commanded Peck to drive "straight ahead, anywhere." Peck said he drove in a circular route to Normandie and Melrose, where the bandit, now known as Hickman, robbed him of $15 and forced him out of the machine.

SUSPICIOUS ACTIONS

The two Portland youths reported that when Hickman arrived at the Oregon State line, he drove up to a deserted by-road and waited until nightfall before crossing the line.

The man's suspicious actions made them report the matter to the police on their arrival in Portland.

The license number of the stolen automobile was broadcast by Los Angeles police. The license number is 1350391 and the motor number 480970.

It was the description of the machine that enabled the two Pendleton motorcycle officers to stop the car and capture Hickman.

"Billy" was last seen here in 1916, Miss Bright declared, when accompanied by his mother and sister he spent several days at the home of the teacher's family. During this visit he attended Sunday school and renewed friendships discontinued when the family left for Kansas, but was often ignored because of peculiar habits. He was called "high-toned" and "studish" by his former schoolmates because he took to wearing spats, which was a radical departure from custom here.

The youth who is now accused of murdering a young girl is reported as paying little attention to members of that sex during his school days here. Although at times he permitted his sister to accompany him, he usually walked alone, a solitary figure.

Word of Hickman's arrest spread like wild fire at Pendleton and within a short time hundreds of men, women and children gathered about the jail building. Up to a late hour no attempts at violence had been reported.

At the jail he was given a change of clothing and at 2:40 p.m., in the presence of a shorthand reporter and officers, he started to give his confession.

When Mr. Parker, the father of the girl, was informed that Hickman had named June Dunning and Andrew Cramer as accomplices he said he had never heard of them before.

TRAIL FOUND WEDNESDAY

The trail of Hickman in the north first was picked up Wednesday shortly before 9 a.m., when he presented one of the $20 gold certificates to a Seattle haberdasher in payment for a pair of gloves, hat and a heavy suit of underwear.

Yesterday morning a second of the $20 gold certificates turned up at the Valley Garage at Kent, a village eighteen miles south of Seattle. This bill, too, was presented by a man said to resemble Hickman.

From Astoria, Or., then came the report that Hickman registered at a hotel there. He did not use the room. Indications of a hasty departure from the hotel were seen in the fact that the fugitive left behind some razor blades and several copies of Wednesday's edition of the Seattle Times containing stories of the developments in the Parker murder.

It is believed Hickman doubled southward in a vain effort to throw authorities off his trail in the belief they might think he would head for the Canadian border or take some route to the East.

MAY HAVE BEEN ARMED

Police in the north yesterday said that when Hickman appeared at the Seattle clothing store and at the Kent garage he seldom removed his hand from the right pocket of his overcoat, the supposition being that he carried a weapon.

Two men at the Kent garage where he presented the bill said he was alert and cautious but obviously tired to the point of exhaustion, which probably explains his daring conduct in giving another of the tell-tale bills when he could have paid for the gasoline with some of the change he received from the haberdasher the night before in Seattle.

In the case of the haberdasher, he said that as Hickman made his purchases the thought flashed through his mind that he was dealing with the accused kidnaper but, he said the suavity of the customer was such that he hesitated to take a chance. He said it must be remembered he was dealing with a customer and even though his suspicions were strong enough to cause him to call the police, he did not have the temerity to attempt to detain the man.

It was not until 9 a.m. yesterday that the two garage attendants received word that Hickman was in the north and that the reward on the accused man's head had slipped through their hands.

"SHOW OFF" INDICATED

Seattle police yesterday were keenly disappointed that the search in that city for the hunted man had failed, everybody feeling that Hickman was the beneficiary of good luck.

His presentation of a second of the seventy-five $20 certificates paid him as "ransom" by Parker is believed by the police to have been a "show off" to demonstrate his daring and to make his pursuers believe he had plenty of nerve and might shoot it out.

On the other hand, the opinion is expressed that he probably tried to change as many of the $20 bills as possible to keep from spending any more in event he managed to reach the Rockies or the Middle West, where he might secrete himself.

Roy W. McHugo, one of the attendants at the Calley Garage, said yesterday that the driver of the green Hudson told him, after getting gas, that he intended driving to Aberdeen, Wash.

The Hudson was sighted at 7:30 a.m. yesterday traveling at a rapid rate of speed along the Columbia River Highway by E. W. Wheeler, district forest ranger of Hammond Creek station.

More details of his appearance at a hotel in Astoria were received yesterday. When he paid for the room at 5:30 a.m. he went out to breakfast. A woman attendant said he left a bundle behind and she became suspicious and opened it. It contained an alarm clock, some toilet articles, a shirt and a Seattle newspaper which had a picture of Hickman.

The woman said she was on the verge of calling the police when the youth returned and said he had decided to go to another hotel. She then notified the police, but the young man dropped from sight, failing to go to another hotel.

PAIR GIVEN LIFT

James Nelson of Kansas City and Irvin Mowrey of Portland yesterday told of being given "a lift" by a man answering Hickman's description. At the Oregon State line, they said, they were stopped by a police officer.

The two witnesses said Nelson was driving and Hickman was asleep in the rear seat.

They said the officer permitted them to drive on. Just prior to that time, they said, Hickman told them he wanted to avoid officers as he had two quarts of whisky in the car.

Mowrey and Nelson said they were on their way north to spend Christmas with relatives and friends and intended walking as far as Dunsmuir when they were picked up by Hickman at Lamoine.

GUN ALWAYS HANDY

At 8 p.m. Tuesday night Hickman stopped his car in front of the Imperial Hotel at Portland, Or., where he discharged his passengers. He then asked directions to Washington and left his passengers, driving north on Broadway en route to Seattle. His appearance was at the Seattle haberdashery Wednesday night, after which he doubled back on his track.

Mowrey and Nelson said Hickman had a .45-caliber Colt automatic continually at his side and that he told them he carried it for protection against highway robbers. They said they did not know the driver of the car was Hickman until after their arrival in Portland when they saw his pictures.

Word was received from Chico, Cal., that Hickman, with another youth, was in that city Sunday. William Rya told the police at Chico that Hickman and his companion appeared at his real estate office on Sunday about noon and asked him if he had an apartment to rent. They left when he told them he had none.

pulling into Santa Barbara—he didn't stop to look. He just said, 'Hello, how are you?' and I said, 'All right,' or something like that and he said, 'All right.' I said 'Are you still on that kidnaping case and he said, 'You bet your sweet life we are.' I said, 'I sure hope you get him,' and I said the same thing to all the rest of them. I enjoyed the conversation at first. I was not scared, but when they got me I knew it was all up."

PLANS REVEALED

"There was only one thing I could do and that was to go ahead. I knew if they stopped me and questioned me after that they had my picture and fingerprints, which would be positive identification. I was taking that big chance and I thought I was sitting easy because I thought surely I would get into Salt Lake and from Salt Lake I was going into Kansas City to see my mother. I noticed in one of the papers that she and one of the former chiefs of police had written a letter and published it in the papers telling me to let her know where I was and they would help me out.

"I guess my mother thought the police having my fingerprints was not conclusive evidence."

Q.: Did you stop in Frisco ever-night?

"Yes, sir; I stopped at that hotel."

Q.: Did you see that fellow there?

"No. I got there Monday and stayed there Monday night and Tuesday morning I sat right around the hotel and most of the day.

HEADLINE SEEN

"Tuesday morning I went out and got a paper and saw in big headlines my own name and that they had my fingerprints and had evidence that would convict me beyond a doubt of the crime and I thought I was just an ace. That is all. The only thing I could do was to protect my own self and get away if I got an opportunity, so I made for Seattle."

Q.: Did you stop any place between Frisco and here?

"At Davis. I picked up a man and he said there was a State road that cut off about twenty-three miles but it was kind of rough. I was afraid if I was stopped it would be at the intersection. When this guy got out and ate a meal in the restaurant they were talking about reward and I questioned some of them and found out as much as I could what was going on. This man said he wanted to stop. I got in the car and drove right on to another place. I was afraid they would stop me beyond the California State line and I left San Francisco Tuesday morning.

"I picked up two other fellows at Dunsmuir, I believe it was. I mentioned the kidnaping to them and they seemed to have heard a lot about it. I acted surprised.

"There were no more officers north of there. One of the fellows said, 'I imagine they will get us out at the State line,' and the other fellow said he was going over.

"I told these fellows I was going to Seattle to spend the holidays and that I had two quarts of booze in the suitcase in the back and was afraid if some officers were to search that they might find this and get me for that. I said, 'Let's wait until after midnight.' The officers generally don't sit up after midnight and when we got up near the line it was after 10. We just stopped the car—it was this same Hudson all the time—and waited. We got through finally and got to the line about fifteen minutes after 12 and there wasn't a soul around.

"When we got into Oregon, two officers stopped the car. I was in the back seat, almost asleep and these two fellows were in the front seat. The officers flashed a light on my companions and said 'All right.' I don't know whether they were searching for booze or not, but there were two officers and it was just across the line. They were not California officers. At the time I picked up my companions they said they were going to Portland. One of them was in the merchant marine. I had his card, but have forgotten the name. When we got into Portland the next day—that was yesterday—it was about 1 o'clock and that left me in the car by myself.

LEAVES PORTLAND

"I left Portland and drove toward Seattle and picked up one other man before I got into Seattle. There was a heavy fog, but he seemed to know the road well. He happened to be a sailor, too. He had finished his enlistment in the Navy and was going home. We joked for quite a bit about the kidnaping. I just listened to this man's idea of what this guy, meaning myself, was like and what he thought of him.

"'Have they found Hickman yet?' he asked me.

"I was sitting in the front seat with him and I wondered if he had seen the picture of me. I know if the police in Portland had seen my pictures they would see how foolish they were now.

"Going back in my story to the boys that I picked up. We waited on the other side of the State line until 12 o'clock. I let them drive so I would be in the back seat. Well, I got into Seattle last night about 7 o'clock and did not know what to do. I thought I would go to the Automobile Club and ask about the road and the direction to Spokane. I thought I would either hold up some one in Seattle to get some money or cash some of those $20 certificates and go to Spokane. There I planned to take the Northwest Limited and work out of the country that way. Then I changed my plans and decided not to go to Spokane.

GOES INTO STORE

"While in Seattle last night, I went into a dry-goods store and bought a suit of heavy underwear which I am now wearing and a pair of gloves. I gave the man a $20 bill and he gave me back $15. The underclothes cost $2 and the gloves $3. Then I went to a theater. I went to the window and said, 'One ticket, please,' and gave her a bill. She glanced curiously at the currency and looked straight at me. When she gave me the change I went straight to my car and drove out of Seattle, stopping at a station between Seattle and Tacoma. I left another bill with the attendant at the filling station. The attendant seemed to be suspicious of the bill. I got $18 and a few cents. I waited for the attendant to come back with the change from the bill and then came down to Portland and got through the fog and into Portland this morning about 6 o'clock.

BECOMES AFRAID

"I went through Portland and out onto the highway. I was afraid some one would stop me, as I was positive the word would get out that I was in Seattle and unless the officers thought I had gone to Canada and was not coming back to Portland, I probably would get caught.

"I intended to circle around through Boise, No. 30 highway. I noticed it was the Columbia River Highway out of Portland. I believed this highway would follow the Columbia River and I intended going through Boise and into Salt Lake City. Then I picked up two fellows on the highway who said they were going to get out in Pendleton. They were going to another town in Washington, and were going to catch another ride to Garfield, through Walla Walla, Wash. We passed the Pendleton officers' car east of Echo.

"One of the fellows said, 'There is a traffic officer and there is a fellow ahead of us.' I think it was the same car that came back to where the officers who made the arrest stopped me. I began studying about that car parked there and saw the car coming behind me. They pulled in ahead of us and blew a siren. I moved over and I thought I noticed the car slow down, so I did too. I stopped and they came up and I knew they had me. I think they were more excited than I was."

"Did you get any word at all since the time Cramer brought the little girl to your apartment?"

"No, I figure he beat it as quick as he could."

"FOX" INDICTMENT VOTED

Record Speed Made and Judge Issues Warrant to be Rushed to Sacramento Today

William Edward Hickman—the "Fox," who confessed to the kidnaping but denies the murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker before he gave her maimed body to her father, Perry M. Parker, for $1500 blood-money—last night was indicted in record time by the Los Angeles county grand jury on charges of kidnaping and murder.

The grand jury convened at 7:20 p.m. on special call by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Eagan, in charge of the inquisitorial body, and at 8:22 Superior Judge Hardy heard the report and issued a bench warrant for the man who for four hectic days and nights was the object of the greatest man hunt in the history of California. Judge Hardy ordered the prisoner held without bail.

WARRANT ISSUED

Immediately after the indictment was returned, extradition papers, together with the bench warrant, were handed to Inspector Longuevan of the Los Angeles Police Department to be rushed to Sacramento by airplane at daybreak today, where Gov. Young is waiting to sign them. From Sacramento, Inspector Longuevan will fly to Pendleton, Or., where "The Fox" is held under heavy guard awaiting his return to Los Angeles for trial in one of the most abhorrent murder cases in criminal annals.

Chief Deputy District-Attorney Davis, who, with Dep. Dist.-Atty. Murray, presented the State's case as prepared by Deputy Eagan, declared that he has been assured by the State's chief executive that the extradition papers will be signed immediately upon their arrival there. With these necessary documents, Inspector Longuevan will meet Dist.-Atty. Keyes, Chief of Police Davis, and Chief of Detectives Cline, who left by train last night for the Eastern Oregon county seat.

FATHER TESTIFIES

There was no sensational testimony unfolded before the grand jury as its hurried meeting last night, witnesses who had told their stories time and time again to police during the days of the hunt for the kidnaper who took little Marion Parker from her classroom in the Mt. Vernon Junior High School, and witnesses who participated in the grewsome climax to her disappearance, were the only ones to tell their stories.

Perry M. Parker, who exchanged $1500 in new gold certificates for the dismembered body of his favorite child, was the first witness called before the grand jury by Deputy Eagan. The father testified to the disappearance of the girl from her school and the subsequent demands made upon him for ransom money to insure the return to her home of the girl.

He climaxed his testimony with the story of how he met the kidnaper in full faith as agreed and received for the girl at Fifth and Manhattan Place last Saturday night.

DEATH CAUSE UNCERTAIN

Following the father to the stand was County Autopsy Surgeon Wagner, who reiterated his testimony given at the Coroner's inquest. It was understood that Dr. Wagner again failed to give the exact cause of death, testifying that it was death by violence and not by natural causes. He also testified as to the condition of the body and that the child had not been the victim of criminal assault.

Miss Naomi Britton, excuse teacher at the high school, was next called to the stand, and her testimony was confined to identification of the kidnaper. The teacher, shaken by the horror of her connection with the case, identified pictures of Hickman, the prisoner held in the Umatilla County Jail, as the man who called at the school last Thursday and asked for Marion under the pretext that her father had been injured in an automobile accident.

The testimony of Miss Britton was substantiated by that of Mrs. Mary Holt, attendance teacher at the school, who gave permission for the girl to accompany the youth who called for her. Mrs. Holt also identified the pictures of Hickman as those of the man who called for the girl.

PRINTS CLINCH CASE

The clinching testimony to the State's indictment case was presented by Fingerprint Expert Barlow of the police department. He presented to the jury the collection of prints he has gathered together and explained how they link the man now in custody with the crime.

It was the telltale scar on the right thumb of the "Fox" that gave up his identity to the trackers, according to Barlow. The prints in the fingerprint expert's possession, gathered from the death chamber, the death car and from prison records, were all presented to the jury.

Immediately after the last of the evidence was presented by Davis and Murray, the grand jury appeared before Judge Hardy. The open indictment was then presented to the court.

It was understood last night that Hickman will be arraigned immediately upon his return here and his trial asked for within two weeks. A previous complaint charging kidnaping and murder issued by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Thoms probably will be dismissed before Municipal Judge Baird who already has issued a bench warrant for Hickman.

Papers Asking Extradition Due in Capital Today

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 22. (AP)—It was announced at the office of Gov. Young late this afternoon that the airplane flying to this city from Los Angeles is carrying copies of finger-prints and pictures for use in the Parker murder case and not demands for extradition papers.

First reports of the planes taking the air, coming just after the reported capture of William E. Hickman, suspected slayer, led those in the Governor's office to believe papers for Hickman's extradition were being rushed, and the Governor made arrangements to stay in his office until they were delivered.

Extradition papers for Hickman's return now are not expected to reach the Governor's office before tomorrow.

CORONER TO INVESTIGATE JAIL HANGING

Theory That Prisoner Was Lynched by Cell Mates Discounted by Police

A Coroner's inquest will be held at 1:30 p.m. today to determine whether Ralph McCoy, found dead from hanging in his cell at the City Jail a few hours after his arrest on suspicion of robbery Wednesday night, died by his own hand, or was killed by fellow-prisoners because of a slight resemblance which he bore to William Edward Hickman.

Little credence was placed by officials in the theory that McCoy was hanged by others.

Detectives investigating the case last night found that McCoy had worked in a lumber camp under the name of Ralph Puller until the 8th inst.

HICKMAN'S ACTS PUZZLE FATHER

Railroad Worker Wants Son to Have Justice Done

Denies Family Ever Before Had Stain on It

Weeps as He Discusses Boy Accused of Murder

EL PASO (Tex.) Dec. 22. (AP)—Thomas Hickman, 60-year-old father of William E. Hickman, suspected slayer of Marion Parker, was discovered working in a railroad shop here today. Hickman broke down and wept when he admitted to reporters for the El Paso Herald that he is the father of the youth sought as the slayer. Hickman has been in El Paso a year.

Hickman sobbed as he told how he saw his son for the last time in Kansas City in October, 1926. His son then was working in a grocery store. He denied his son is abnormal in any way.

HE TELLS CO-WORKERS

When newspapers carried the story that his son was sought by the police of the entire country as the slayer of the Parker girl, Hickman told his co-workers of the relationship.

"I would rather be dead and in hell a thousand times than to think a child of mine would commit such an atrocious crime," he said today. "I love my child as much as anyone could love a son, but if he were to come to El Paso and appeal to me for aid I would turn him over to the authorities at once.

"I want to see justice done, even though it strikes at the heart of my family."

NO STAIN ON FAMILY

"My family never has had a stain on it," he continued. "I have never been in jail and seldom inside a police station. I have never been arrested for anything and I know of nothing against my family in previous generations. He was a bright, clever boy—a witty one. I cannot understand what could have happened to him to change him into such a fiend as the murder indicates he is, if he really did it.

"The boy never showed a vicious streak in his make-up," Hickman said. "He was a good boy and went to church and Sunday-school and was a leader in school activities."

Hickman said he and his first wife, the mother of William, lived in Hartford, Ark., and later moved to Kansas City. Five years ago Hickman was married to his present wife and he has two children by the second marriage.

FATHER ASKS SON TO TELL HIM TRUTH

EL PASO (Tex.) Dec. 22. (AP)—The El Paso Herald today was asked by Thomas Hickman, father of William E. Hickman, to telegraph the following message to his captive son:

"My son, if you are guilty of the crime for which you are charged, may God forgive your soul, and may you be punished according to the law of mankind.

"This terrible crime, which it is hard for me to believe that you have committed, is without doubt the most hideous and most brutal murder that I have ever heard of. It is hard to believe that my son could be guilty of such a thing.

"If you are guilty, I hope that you will be punished with death.

"If you are innocent, I will sacrifice all I have to help you out. Let me know, through the El Paso Herald, on your word of honor as a son to his father, in the anguish of both, if you were implicated in the crime. If you were, then God forgive you and have mercy upon the soul of your father, mother and your brothers and sisters."

Flyers Guided by Oil Flares to Pendleton

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 22. (AP)—Oil flares are burning at the Pendleton aviation field this evening to facilitate the landing of an airplane bearing reporters and photographers from Portland newspapers called here by the capture of William Edward Hickman, confessed kidnaper of Marion Parker.

So much more vigor

—when the system is cleansed of poisons we all have

Do you know that poisons form all the time in your system? They get into the blood stream and rob you of the vigor, life, health and energy you should have. Finally anyone escapes them. Food wastes accumulate and fermentation takes place. As many as 36 of these ever-forming poisons are already known to science.

Nujol has provided a natural sort of antidote. In a scientific, pure state this antidote is similar to everybody under the trade name of Nujol. Nujol is a unique substance unlike anything else known to man. It cannot be absorbed by the body or any of the organs of the body. At the same time, it has an affinity for body poisons. It takes hold of them, absorbs them, and carries them out of the system safely and harmlessly. It also softens waste matter and brings about normal evacuation of the intestines. Gets rid of poisons, gets rid of food wastes, tends to heal and soothe irritated membranes. Contains no drugs or medicines. Absolutely harmless.

KANSAS CITY SCRAMBLES FOR EXTRAS

Home Town of Kidnaper in Furore as Citizens Rush to Street for Newspapers

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 22. (AP)—Downtown streets of William Edward Hickman's home town became a bedlam this afternoon when newspaper extras proclaimed the Associated Press report of his capture at Echo, Or.

Newsboys became centers of scrambling masses of humanity as persons tore at one another to buy papers. Many employees in downtown buildings rushed from their tasks when the cry of "Extra! Extra! Boy killer captured!" went up, and Christmas shopping was stopped temporarily.

At one downtown barber shop barbers ran to the street, leaving lathered customers to await the reading of the news.

At the first cry of "Extra!" as the special edition reached the street the people seemed to grasp its significance instantly and the rush for papers was on.

Vaunted Cunning of "Fox" at Last Proves Mere Foolish Bravado

QUEER QUIRK OF KIDNAPER LANDS HIM IN LAW'S NET

Boasting of Hickman to Youths He Gave Ride Gives First Real Clew to Whereabouts

PORTLAND (Or.) Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—William Edward Hickman, matched his boasted fox-like cunning against the perseverance of Pacific Northwest police and he failed. From the hour of 8 o'clock Tuesday night when Hickman in a green Hudson automobile picked up two pedestrians on the road two miles north of Lamoine, Cal., he was marked by destiny for an early capture.

Through the night the automobile sped northward, forty, fifty, sixty miles an hour. Hickman said little. The little was enough. At noon Wednesday the green machine drew up outside the Congress Hotel in Portland and the kidnaper's guest passengers, after giving their host directions to Seattle, left the machine.

Hickman swept on to Seattle. There he was seen, and he doubled back to Portland. The big green brougham stopped on the outskirts of Portland at the Checker Board Garage in Park Rose, just east of the city on the Columbia Highway and Hickman bought gas and oil. He said little. It was enough.

TELL-TALE NOTE

In Seattle and in Portland he left one of the tell-tale $20 gold certificates. From the Portland suburb the green car swept east.

"Watch for four-door Hudson automobile, green, no trunk in back." Through the width and breadth of the Pacific Northwest this message was flashed. Telegraph and radio carried it to every village, every city, every farm and every home, practically, for the Pacific Northwest has been aroused by this atrocious crime as it has been aroused but few times in recent years.

Strange as coincidents frequently are, it was at Pendleton, in Eastern Oregon, not so long ago that public opinion and sentiment became almost the uncontrolled swirl of a mob. This was when "Till" Taylor, picturesque cowboy Sheriff of Umatilla county, was shot down in cold blood in a jail delivery.

Throughout the Pacific Northwest the message went by wire and through the air. Hickman was in the State and the State was determined that he should not escape.

CROWDS GATHER

At 1:30 this afternoon Hickman was apprehended and a nation sighed in relief. Here in Portland street corners were crowded with anxious citizens. The mutterings and open denouncements were ominous. The crowds which thronged the streets of Pendleton during a round-up were dwarfed this afternoon by citizens from far and near. Cowpunchers of yester-years gathered silent and grim about the jail, while their sons and daughters moved about nervously and their grandsons and grand-daughter swelled the mob through curiosity. Many there were among the older generation who were in this Pacific Northwest when the law rode in a saddle and was administered often with a lariat and a tree or a six gun.

Memory of those days had not passed.

On a curve of the old Oregon Trail just east of Echo, Or., State Traffic Patrolman "Buck" Lieuellen and Chief of Police Tom Gurdane of Pendleton, were waiting, watching—for a green, four-door Hudson brougham. All through the Northwest on highways, byways and city streets men were watching for the green machine.

CHASE STARTS

Around the curve came a speeding car. It was large. It was green. Lieuellen's foot pressed the accelerator. The huge green automobile shot by and the officers gave chase. A moment later Hickman was covered with weapons of the Chief and State patrolman.

Back in Portland, Seattle, Lamoine, Cal., stretched the chain of circumstances contributing to the capture and those circumstances revealed the quirks of Hickman's vaunted cunning, which were foolishness instead. It was cunning which prompted Hickman to offer rides to James Nelson and Irving Mowrey, the wayfarers on foot ten miles north of the California town.

"I hear they are watching near the border for that Los Angeles kidnaper," Hickman commented to his passengers, "I wouldn't want to be stopped riding alone—because I've got two quarts of Scotch in the back of my car and I want to get to Seattle for Christmas. I've been driving all day."

Now Nelson and Mowrey know why the free ride to Portland was given them. Hickman knew officers would be watching for lone motorists. Three in the car would throw off suspicion. And it did. But the two passengers in Portland identified their host and gave the description of the automobile which resulted in arrest.

RECALL CUNNING

In Portland Nelson and Mowrey saw pictures of the fiend. Even then their identification was not certain until they called back to mind the few words spoken by the man, and his strange, cunning actions. At some little town on the Pacific highway they had paused for gasoline.

"Anything new about that Los Angeles murder and kidnaping?" Hickman had asked the attendant.

The attendant was taciturn and gave no information.

"Why don't you buy a newspaper?" Nelson inquired of Hickman. Startled, the youth murmured something about being in too much of a hurry.

Three times, in three towns and at three filling stations this occurred. Always Hickman asked for information. Never did he buy a newspaper, although he had money and there were papers close at hand.

Now Nelson and Mowrey know why. Hickman knew his picture would appear in almost any paper that he purchased. He did not want his passengers to see those pictures, to know his identity.

DELAY AT BORDER

The Oregon border was neared. The green machine was brought to a stop in a secluded spot near the highway. "If you are in such a hurry what do you want to stop for?" Mowrey asked.

"The booze in the car," came the answer. "Better to wait until after midnight. Then it won't be so hot and we can get through O.K."

They waited more than an hour.

At Medford they ate breakfast.

Hickman pulled his hat down over his eyes.

"Bacon and eggs," he ordered.

"You will have to wait a few minutes until the cook gets here," said the waitress, the only person in the lunch counter. He changed his order.

"Breakfast food and a pint of milk."

They ate in haste.

Coming into Medford and when they crossed the border, Hickman had taken the revolver from his pocket and placed it on his lap, covering it with his hand and the lap robe.

REFUSES TO GET PAPER

The three men paid for their breakfasts, each for his own.

"Short of change," explained Hickman.

"How about a paper?" asked Nelson.

"In a hurry."

They drove to Portland.

"That Los Angeles case is the greatest crime in California history," was a remark with which Hickman once broke the long silence on the last lap of his journey.

"Don't know much about it," said Mowrey, and Hickman appeared less nervous.

Entering Portland, Hickman asked and was given directions for leaving the city and crossing by the inter-State bridge. He also asked directions for traveling east to Denver.

"Expect to make a tour there next summer," he offered.

Nelson and Mowrey were dropped outside the Congress Hotel. Hickman also stepped out of the car for a moment. His pistol dropped to the pavement. Hickman picked it up, tossed it into the front seat of the machine, got in and drove away.

POLICE INFORMED

The passengers went to the home of Nelson's mother. They went to bed. The all-night ride had tired them. They slept until 7 o'clock when Mrs. Mowrey awoke her son.

He had just come from California. He might know some details of the kidnaping murder not yet published in Portland, she thought.

When she spoke of it to her son she handed him a Wednesday morning paper with Hickman's picture on the front page.

"Why, that's the fellow we rode in with," exclaimed the youth.

"I'm almost sure. It looks an awful lot like him."

Nelson also held the opinion that Hickman was their motorist. At first, however, they were not positive. They had not observed the man carefully.

They discussed the cunning acts along the way, the stop at the border when there had been such haste before, the story of the liquor in the car, the aversion to buying a newspaper, the boast about the enormity of the crime. They were convinced:

"That was Hickman."

The two young men went to the police station and told of the wild all-night ride in the big green brougham. They recalled that the name of F. R. Peck, Los Angeles, was on an operator's license below the dash.

"And we called him Mr. Peck all the way to Portland," Nelson observed.

REPORT CONFIRMED

Police at first were disposed to list it with the dozens of other reports of suspicious characters asserted to resemble Hickman. It was not until this morning that they became positively convinced the man in the green brougham was the Los Angeles kidnaper. That conviction came to police here when telegrams were received from Chief of Detectives Cline of Los Angeles to the effect that the green car was stolen from Mr. Peck Sunday night, and a later telegram that Hickman had been seen in a green machine outside of Los Angeles, but by then the trail seemed cold.

For meanwhile Hickman had driven on to Seattle, had cashed one of the $20 gold certificates he had received in ransom money from the father of murdered Marion Parker, had purchased a pair of gloves and suit of underwear at a haberdashery and had eluded Seattle police.

Yesterday morning Portland police learned that Hickman, shortly before midnight, but after his Seattle sally, had passed another $20 gold certificate at a garage at Kent, Wash., fifteen miles south of Seattle.

DOUBLES BACK

"doubling back," deducted Portland inspectors, "like a fox."

And within a short time their reasoning was born out when Fred King, attendant at the Checker Board filling station, Columbia and Sandy boulevards, telephoned that Hickman at 6:30 o'clock had purchased gasoline from him and inquired the directions Sandy Boulevard led to.

"What kind of car was he driving?" the inspector asked.

"A big green Hudson."

"Check."

But to make doubly certain, Inspector Powell was sent to the filling station with eight rogues' gallery pictures of criminals, one of them a picture of Hickman.

King identified the right photograph.

Chief of Police Jenkins directed sending of messages to all law-enforcement officers in Oregon to stop all cars and stressed an appeal to watch for a green Hudson brougham.

Capt. John T. Moore of the inspectors division sent the same messages out over Washington and Idaho. From the Sheriff's office similar messages were sent.

GRIM MEN WATCH

On all highways and in all communities of the Northwest grim men watched for a speeding car of green.

And a green brougham flashed around a curve on the old Oregon Trail near Echo and the flight of the fiendish fox came to an end. For against the animal cunning of William Edward Hickman were matched the intelligence of all agencies of the law and aiding that intelligence were the radio, the telegraph, the telephone, photography and description by printed word.

NEWSBOY NEAR DEATH FOLLOWING HICKMAN

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 22. (AP)—"I would have shot him cold if he had followed me another block," William Edward Hickman told his guard tonight in referring to a Seattle newsboy from whom he purchased a paper last night. "The boy apparently recognized me when he sold me the paper and followed me for two blocks after comparing my looks with a picture of me on the front page."

CLINE OFF TO GET PRISONER

Chief of Detectives Cline left Los Angeles at 6:05 o'clock last night for Pendleton, Or., to claim William Edward Hickman, slayer of little Marion Parker. He will be returned immediately to Los Angeles for trial.

In the party with Chief Cline are Police Chief Davis, Dist.-Atty. Keyes, Detective Lieutenants Lucas and Raymond and former Chief of Detectives Home. Newspaper men also accompany the officers.

According to Chief Cline, he will return with his prisoner by train as soon as the extradition papers arrive in the northern city.

The papers will be rushed to Pendleton by a special officer detailed for that duty, Chief Cline said.

Scores of citizens gathered at Central station and shook hands with the officers, congratulating them on the capture of the kidnaper-slayer.

Chief Davis paid tribute to the assistance of the press in what became the greatest man hunt in the annals of California crime. He said:

"If it had not been for the publicity given this case in the press, Hickman still might be at large."

CONFESSION STUNS MOTHER

Mrs. Hickman Receives News in Dazed Silence, Then Breaks Into Sobs and Collapses

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Dec. 22. (AP)—Mrs. Eva Hickman, mother of William Edward Hickman, received the news of her son's confession in connection with the kidnaping and brutal slaying of Marion Parker in stunned, tearless bewilderment here early tonight.

The mother, who has not slept since her favorite boy was connected with the fiendish crime, was sitting with her daughter, Mary, 17 years of age, in their rooms on the third floor of an old-fashioned house in a suburban residence district when newspaper men arrived with the information.

One reporter walked into the room where Mrs. Hickman was sitting.

She asked:

"Oh, have you heard something?"

"Yes," she was told, "they have found Edward. He has confessed to a part in the kidnaping. He said the actual killing was done by some one else."

DAZED BY BLOW

The mother bowed her head. She clasped her hands so tightly her knuckles showed white, and her eyes stared piercingly into a blank wall. For perhaps three minutes she sat that way.

Then she said:

"This is all so muddled. I've been so puzzled over it. It looks like I haven't a friend in the world. They are hounding my boy to death—just because they have a clew."

Then the woman broke into a convulsive dry sobbing, which climaxed in a collapse and it was more than an hour before she was able to discuss the case again.

Recovering, she was gripped with a terrible fear. It was heart-breaking to see the manifestation of it in her care-lined face.

She gripped the sides of the chair in which she was sitting and almost stood.

HEART-RENDING CRY

"My God! My God!" she shouted. "They'll kill him! They'll kill him!

"They won't even give him a chance to say anything for himself. Oh, I must get to him. I must get to him I must get to him someway, at once He needs me, oh, so badly."

Outside, even as sue spoke, there was the cry, "Extra, extra, killer found."

The woman shuddered and collapsed again.

Col. Charles Edwards, former Chief of Police here and friend of the family—the man to whom Hickman was paroled after the forgery of the checks in Los Angeles—motioned everyone from the room and the grief-stricken mother was left alone with her daughter, begging and pleading with her to find some way for them to start to the aid of her son.

JUSTICE LOSES SENTIMENT

Quick Death Penalty Verdict in Murder Seen as Public Reaction to Parker Crime

Under a verdict returned yesterday in Superior Judge Doran's court, John Conforti, 35 years of age, must pay with his life for the murder eleven years ago of Antonio Maria Mastroianni.

In the return of the verdict carrying the death penalty, court attaches saw a reaction on a part of the public to the murder of little Marion Parker, which has signified itself by the determination of juries to put aside compromises and so-called sentiment in dealing with cases where the guilt of the accused is substantiated in the evidence.

The little white slip of paper, fixing death as the punishment Conforti must undergo for his crime, was brought in by the jury of nine women and three men after approximately three hours of deliberation. It was the first death penalty verdict to be returned in the local Superior Court in a period of several months and even the prosecution was surprised by the fact that the jury was able so quickly to agree on the degree of punishment.

Conforti was indicted by the county grand jury for murder in connection with the shooting August 20, 1916, of Mastroianni, who was said to have become involved in a quarrel with Conforti over a woman.

Conforti apparently had made good his escape, but science again came to the aid of the law and convicted him of the crime through finger-prints. Conforti was brought back to Los Angeles from Caldwell, N. J., where, it was said, he was serving a sentence in the State penitentiary.

The convicted man is scheduled to come before Judge Doran next Tuesday for sentence. It is expected his counsel will follow the usual procedure of asking for a new trial, which, if denied, will result in an appeal to the State Supreme Court for a final decision on the case.

HOTEL CLEW TO HICKMAN AIDE FAILS

"Cramer" Not Registered; Employees Say Kidnaper Guest There Monday

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22. (AP)—The manager of the Herald Hotel, at Eddy and Jones streets here, tonight said no one named Cramer had registered there recently under that name. A man answering the description of William Edward Hickman, however, stayed at the hotel Monday night and left Tuesday, said Miss Anita Donlon, telephone operator. He registered as Edward J. King of Seattle.

Other hotel employees paid little attention to the man known as King. Miss Donlon, however, said he came into the lobby and registered about 5 p.m., and left early that day. He said nothing of having an automobile and apparently was alone. Neither did he say anything of having an appointment to meet a friend at the hotel

Check of the cards made out for persons who registered at the Herald shows no one else whom employees remembered as answering the description given by Hickman. A detailed description of Cramer is lacking.

Hotel employees and newspaper reporters who examined King's signature on the hotel register believe the writing is that of Hickman. Police who visited the hotel are of the same opinion.

ATTEMPT TO RENT HOUSE COINCIDENCE

Couple Who Looked Over Alhambra Place Report Incident to Police

The mystery surrounding the attempt of a man and woman to rent a double bungalow at 2518 Birch street, Alhambra, was cleared up yesterday shortly before Chief of Detectives Cline learned of Edward Hickman's capture.

"We are the couple who tried to rent the house," said Frank L. Mallette, head of the physical education department at Lincoln High School, who appeared at the Central Police Station with his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Mallette were at the Birch street address about the same time that Hickman sent a telegram from Alhambra to Perry W. Parker telling him not to make a wrong move. Chief Cline stated that the appearance of the Mallettes in Alhambra merely was a coincidence.

Mallette was a football player on the University of Southern California team several years ago and was known as "Rabbit" Mallette.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 22. (AP)—J. W. Maddox of Wiggins, Colo., who said he had spent about $200 to get his 18-year-old son, Richard, released from a charge of turkey stealing, reported today that his son had stolen his motor car.

REWARDS AWAIT CAPTORS

Oregon Officers Eligible to $65,000 Offered for Apprehension of Parker Girl's Slayer

Two steel-nerved, straight-shooting peace officers of Eastern Oregon, who yesterday captured Edward Hickman at Echo, are believed to be eligible for the rewards totaling approximately $65,000 offered for the apprehension of the kidnaper and slayer of Marion Parker. The two men, according to telegraphic dispatches from the north, are Tom Gurdane, 60 years of age, Chief of Police of Pendleton, and Cecil L. "Buck" Lieuallen, 29, State traffic sergeant in charge of Umatilla, Union, Baker and Malheur counties, with headquarters in Pendelton.

Gurdane is serving his third term as Chief of Police of Pendleton. Lieuallen joined the State Traffic Bureau February 8, 1922, and two years ago was promoted to the rank of sergeant. He is married and has one son. Gurdane has a grown son and daughter and is interested in sheep raising in the eastern part of his State.

Lieuallen's parents are ranchers in Morrow county, Oregon, near Heppner, where he graduated from high school just before enlisting to serve in the Navy during the war.

PLEDGES TOTAL $50,000

Just how soon the Oregon officers will receive the rewards offered could not be determined last night. At KFWB, Warner Brothers' broadcasting station, it was learned that $27,000 in cash has been received and that more money is continuing to come in. The pledges, it is said, total $50,000. The fund is known as the "KFWB Marion Parker Memorial and Reward Fund" and the disbursement of the fund has been placed in the hands of a committee, headed by Mayor Cryer, of which representatives of all the Los Angeles newspapers, Jack L. Warner, vice-president of Warner Brothers; Fred Beetson of the Motion Picture Producers' Association; Carrie Jacobs Bond and Dr. Rufus Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California, are members.

J. R. Fouch, owner of KMIC, last night reported that the reward fund of that station had grown to $14,000. It will be turned over to the captors of Hickman as soon as conditions will permit, he said.

AT ANOTHER STATION

At KMTR it was stated last night that the station had on deposit $2676.05 and a check from a Los Angeles firm for $1000, checks from Colleen Moore and Clara Bow totaling $750 and pledges of approximately $2300.

The reward poste by the city of Los Angeles is $10,00 the county reward, $5000, and the State, $1000. Mayor Cryer has offered a reward of $1000 and the Rotary Club of Millford, Del., has forwarded a check for $500.

Lieuallen and Gurdane have not yet filed a demand for the payment of the reward. That others will make claims for a share is anticipated.

"Sure enough," is said to have been Lieuallen's laconic telegram to T. A. Rafferty, State traffic chief at Salem, Or., in answer to a telegram of Rafferty's asking whether Hickman was the man they had caught. The telegram was signed "Buck."

An hour or so later, however, Lieuallen called his chief on the telephone and gave him the particulars.

READY TO SHOOT

"He had a sawed-off shotgun and an automatic, both cocked, in the seat beside him," Lieuallen said, "but he didn't use either of them. We had our 'guts' ready, too

Lieuallen told Rafferty about the confession and said that $1400 in the $20 gold certificates given Hickman by Marion Parker's father were in the youth's possession.

"Lieuallen is a mighty good officer," was the comment of his chief, who said that the young officer had made no mention of the reward in his conversation.

Late yesterday Chief Gurdane telephoned Martin Pratt, chief deputy Sheriff of Multnomah county that no aid was needed to preserve peace at Pendleton or to maintain his prisoner safely in the City Jail.

Half a hundred peace officers of Portland, the State and county, were reported to be in Portland last night ready at a moment's notice to leave for Pendleton to assist in the preservation of order, should it be necessary.

The alternative of rushing Hickman to Portland and lodging him in the Multnomah County Jail also was discussed, but Chief Gurdane is said to have informed Deputy Pratt that Hickman will be held in Pendleton until the proper California officials arrive.

STATE WILL NOT PAY UP UNTIL AFTER CONVICTION

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 22. (AP)—Two contingencies in the State's paying the $1000 reward offered for the capture and conviction of the murderer of Marion Parker, entered the case late this afternoon with the capture of William E. Hickman in Oregon.

The first is that the slayer must be convicted before the State pays the reward, and the second that the State cannot pay for the capture of Hickman if Oregon laws prohibit a peace officer, operating in his own district, accepting money for the capture of criminals and fugitives.

It is pointed out that in the first instance Hickman's falling into the hands of a mob would preclude the State's paying the reward claim. Whether or not Oregon laws prohibit officers collecting rewards is not known here.

Mother Former Asylum Inmate

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.) Dec. 22. (AP) Mrs. Eva Hickman, mother of William Edward Hickman, asserted slayer of Marion Parker of Los Angeles, was an inmate at the State Hospital for nervous diseases here for two months in 1913, it was learned tonight from records at the institution.

She was confined to the asylum at the request of her husband, W. E. Hickman, who feared she would take her own life in a fit of depression.

SAILORS DIE AS SHIP SINKS AFTER CRASH

WILLEMSTAD (Curfacao) Dec. 22 (AP)—Several members of the crew of the Venezuelan schooner Veinte Julio were drowned today when the schooner sank after a collision with the American steamer Merida near the Island of Aruba.

VITAL POINTS IN CONFESSION OF HICKMAN

High lights in Hickman's confession:

Names June Dunning, woman friend of Cramer, as another accomplice.

Says he started on a hold-up career to acquire money for college education.

Blames Cramer for kidnaping idea.

Decides on daughter of Perry M. Parker, assistant cashier of Los Angeles First National Bank, where Hickman was formerly employed. Also considered kidnaping child of Mr. Hayes, chief teller of the same bank, but abandoned idea as child was too young.

Watches Parker house to learn habits of the girl.

Hits on idea of taking her from school on pretext that her father had been injured in accident.

Drives around in automobile all Thursday afternoon, takes girl to motion-picture show in Alhambra, a suburb, same night.

Claims he turned girl over to Cramer same night.

Begins writing ransom letters.

Sees girl again Friday night.

Makes telephone appointment with girl's father to turn her over Friday night.

Parks car several blocks from meeting place, see father's car go by, followed by police automobiles.

Says he returned girl to Cramer that night.

Declares Cramer brought girl's dismembered body to his apartment Saturday evening in suit case.

Telephones girl's father, makes appointment, receives $1500 ransome, throws torso out of car 200 feet away. Speeds away.

Escapes cordon of thousands of police officers, traches San Francisco in another stolen automobile.

Flees from San Francisco when newspapers come on streets proclaiming him as the kidnaper-slayer and publish his picture.

Travels on Pacific Highway, with two companions he picks up.

Reaches Seattle, cashes $20 bill and is traced by serial number.

Doubles back to Portland, speeds through East Oregon.

Buys gasoline at Echo, Or., tendering another $20 bill.

Garage attendants at Echo notify Pendleton authorities.

Heads back toward Pendleton.

Is captured on highway by Buck Lieuellen, State traffic officer, and Tom Gurdane, Pendleton Chief of Police.

Hickman in Rambling Story Puts Blame on "Partner"

YOUTH ADMITS WRITING NOTES

'Andrew Cramer' Killed Girl, He Tells Police

Declares He Wanted to Raise Money to Go to College

Treated Marion Gently and Took Her to Show

"I knew you all the time," said Gurdane. "What are you doing with that gun?"

"It's customary to carry a gun when you are traveling," Hickman replied.

"You don't need to keep it between your knees," the officers told him.

They ordered Hickman out of the car telling him to keep his hands well up. Gurdane held Hickman's hands, keeping him covered, while Lieuallen searched him.

"Here's one of the bills," said Lieuallen as he cleaned out Hickman's pockets.

Lieuallen then searched the car and found another purse containing $1400 in bills.

Hickman loked at the bills and at the officers.

"Well," he remarked then, "I guess it's all over.

It was indeed al lover. They had put on the handcuffs.

Awake and driving at a furious pace since last Sunday, with police following the death trail constantly, Hickman stood up marvelously under constant questioning by police and reporters tonight.

Aside from a hysterical outburst of laughter when he was arrested, Hickman remained calm, although he told a rambling story.

HE MEANT NO HARM

Shifting all responsibility for the murder of the little girl and for her terrible mutilation upon his supposed "partner" in the crime, Hickman declared tonight: "I really did not intend to do her any harm—and here is where this other man's part of it came in."

Hickman said his companion is about 28, but looks older; is about five feet, eight inches tall, and has black hair.

"As far as I remember, I think he had been leading an impure life. He has a sore spot on his chin—but that might have been from the way he had been eating," Hickman commented.

Hickman said his companion wore a gray overcoat and had but one suit, tan or brown. The prisoner said he does not know where the man was staying.

"The other man was to provide the hiding place for the girl," the prisoner declared, while Hickman was to obtain the stigulated $1500 from Perry M. Parker, Los Angeles banker, the girl's father.

"PARTNER" NOT AT SHOW

Thursday night after the kidnaping Hickman and the little girl went to a show, he said. After the show, Hickman said, "I met this man and he took the girl in charge."

Hickman declared emphatically that it was not he who killed the girl, and that it was not he who disposed of the parts of her little broken body. The "other man" had the mutilated parts of the girl when detectives searched Hickman's apartment last Sunday morning. "I guess he threw the other parts away where they said they were thrown away," the prisoner said.

When asked what parts of the body the other man had in the suitcase, Hickman replied:

"He just had—she was cut right across the middle of the body and her arms—he had them fixed up and he had her dress put on her, he had her dress and a little sweater thrown on her face and—of course, she was dead, but the way he had fixed the mouth, it didn't look very death-like."

Hickman said "his partner" had sewed thread through the eyelids to hold the eyes open.

ADMITS WRITING THREATS

Hickman admitted in his interview immediately after his arrest that it was he who penned the ransom letters to Parker, "making it seem like she was being treated bad."

The grewsome, horrible details of the brutal murder of the little Parker girl were not elaborated upon in Hickman's first talk with newspaper men. Instead, he evaded direct reference to it and passed the responsibility onto the man he constantly referred to as "my partner."

On Saturday, Hickman inferred, he first became aware that the girl had been killed. "When he (his partner) came to the apartment for this suitcase and when he opened it up and showed me how it was, I was surprised."

Hickman left to the imagination of his hearers the details of the murder, by this reference: "He (his companion) said she was crying and he tried to stop her, or something like that, and he figured that the safest way would be to go ahead and fix it that way."

POLICE MIGHT NOT OPEN IT

"He figured," Hickman said, "for me to keep the suitcase in the car and go to this place, and if the police stopped me before I could get rid of it, they might look at the suitcase and never stop to open it, and I thought it might be all right."

The statement was made to police and reporters in the presence of a court stenographer, who recorded every word. Rambling from point to point, Hickman hurried through the recital, breaking off many times in the middle of a sentence, and hurrying on to a next bearing no relation to the subject matter.

Admitting openly that he had penned a death-threat ransom letter to the girl's father even after the little girl was dead, Hickman sought to vindicate by the statement: "Even if she had not been alive, I thought he wanted his daughter anyway, no matter what condition she was in—that he would rather have her and so I went ahead and called him up and planned the meeting place.

SHE DID NOT WANT TO DIE

"If this fellow had not killed her," he continued soberly and impressively as he stared into the eyes of his questioners, "it would have come out all right as we had planned, because"—here he assumed an expression of concern—"because I am sure she didn't want to die."

Hickman sobbed — from sheer weariness, police officers believe, as he continued: "When she was with me she said, 'I wonder what the school kids will say when I go back to school. They will want to know what I did and everything.'

"I am terribly sorry she was killed, myself, because, I sure liked her."

CROWD AT JAIL

Gurdane and Lieuallen, captors of Hickman, first were advised that Hickman was headed toward Pendleton through an Associated Press dispatch and went west shortly after noon. No report had been received by the officers from the Portland police department that Hickman was headed this way.

Reports that 100 special officers had been sworn in to preserve order in the crowds milling around the City Jail were denied by Mayor McAtee tonight, who said the crowd was orderly and merely anxious to catch a glimpse of Hickman or his captors. The immediate vicinity of the police station was roped off and a few special officers were on duty to keep the crowds from getting on the premises.

Plane Speeds "Times" Men to Cell of Kidnaper

Just Before the Take-off

SOMEWHERE in Northern California a sleek cabin monoplane last night was flying two Times reporters and a photographer on one of the longest cross-country hops ever undertaken by a newspaper for the purpose of supplying its readers with news and photographs. Jackson Berger and Carlton A. Williams of The Times editorial staff and William Phillips, photographer for P. and A. Photos, yesterday hopped off for Pendleton, Or., where William Edward Hickman is being held for the kidnaping and murder of Marion Parker.

PECK RELATES AUTO THEFT

Kidnaper Calmly Takes Get-away Car from Owner; Rolls Down Window to Shoot Out Of

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 22. (AP)—"Roll that window down, I might want to shoot out of that door." With these words William Edward Hickman, held in Oregon for the killing of Marion Parker of Los Angeles, drove away with an automobile belonging to Frank R. Peck Sunday night after holding Peck up at the point of a gun, stealing between $14 and $16 from him and obtaining information on the mechanical condition of the car. Hickman still was in Peck's machine when he was arrested today at Echo, twenty miles from Pendleton.

Peck, in San Diego on business, today told the story of the hold-up on busy Hollywood Boulevard at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. At the time Peck said he did not know who the hold-up man was, but as soon as Hickman's pictures were published he positively identified the kidnaper as the bandit who held him up.

"I had stopped on Hollywood Boulevard just east of Western avenue and my wife got out to make some purchases at a little food store. She had hardly got inside the store than a man stepped off the curb and opened the door of my machine. He stuck a gun in my ribs and got into the car."

TOOK ALL HIS MONEY

Peck said he quickly obeyed an order to drive to Western avenue, then to stop in a dark place where Hickman took his money. Peck continued:

"He got behind the wheel and drove with his right hand, holding his gun on me with the left.

"As he started to drive he heard a squeak from the car's fan belt and asked me what it was. I told him I had just put a new fan belt on the car and that was what was making the noise.

"He told me to get out of the car when we got to Melrose and Normandie. I looked in his eyes and he looked like he meant what he said. Before I got out I asked him if I could take the robe my wife had left on the floor and he said never mind about the robe.

"When I got out I borrowed a nickel in a drug store and called the police. Then there was another car coming along and I stopped it. I told the driver that if he took after the car ahead he would catch a hold-up man. But I saw the car was not able to catch my machine.

BANDIT NOT EXCITED

"The bandit's last words to me as I got out were, 'roll that window down. I might want to shoot out of that door.'"

At no time of the hold-up was the bandit anywhere near excited, Peck said.

"I suppose I was fortunate that he didn't shoot me," he added.

As soon as the pictures of Hickman were published, together with stories linking him with the kidnaping, Peck told the Hollywood police that the man who held him up was Hickman. The captain at the Hollywood station seemed to agree with him, Peck said.

Herman Cline, Los Angeles detective chief, apparently did not think so, though, Peck believes. Peck said he wanted the Los Angeles officer to broadcast the car's description and number.

"I guess they thought it was like the thousand other reports they were getting," he said. "Anyhow, the car's numbers or description were not broadcast."

DOCTOR SAYS ACCUSED YOUTH BORN IN 1908

HARTFORD (Ark.) Dec. 22. (AP)—William Edward Hickman, asserted slayer of Marion Parker, was born here February, 1908, Dr. E. B. Jones, who attended the Hickman family, said tonight.

DETECTIVES TRACE GUNS FOX CARRIED

Hickman Used Assumed Name in Buying Weapon Here Last June

Local detectives last night traced the purchase of two firearms found on William Edward Hickman when arrested. The 8.80 automatic was purchased June 10, last, from the Loan Jewelry Company at 557 South Main street. The name given by the purchaser was Albert Matthews, 700 Bronson avenue. Police found that there is no such address and are convinced that the "Matthews" who bought the automatic was none other than Hickman.

The date of the purchase, June 10 is believed by detectives to have been the date on which Hickman started his career as a hold-up man.

The other firearm, a 6.35 Spanish revolver, was purchased by Hickman, using his own name, from the Herrnden Hardware Company, 946 South Main street. They have been unable to trace the purchase of the shotgun found in the Hickman car.

Fatal Flaw Again Wrecks "Perfect Crime"

TRIO OF CLEWS FOILS HICKMAN

Failure to Wear Gloves One of Greatest Mistakes

Money and Towel Two Other Points of Evidence

Cleverness Proves Futile in Great Emergency

William Edward Hickman is in custody, facing the gallows, because there is no such thing as a perfect crime. Though Hickman is, in police opinion, one of the cleverest criminals they have had to deal with in years, he left an inescapable trail behind him, one that led inevitably to his identification and subsequent arrest. Loeb and Leopold, the Chicago kidnapers and murderers, whose case furnished the most exact parallel to the Hickman case, made but one mistake. Leopold lost his glasses.

Hickman made at least three vital errors. He neglected to wear gloves, he accepted money which could readily be identified, and he thrust a towel into the disemboweled body of his child victim that bore the name of his apartment-house. Any one of the three might have led to his capture; in fact, all three did aid it. His failure to wear gloves resulted in his leaving fingerprints in a dozen telltale places—on one or more of the ransom notes, on the glass and the steering wheel of the stolen murder car, about his apartment. Yet a man wearing gloves would make himself conspicuous in Los Angeles, and had he protected his hands in this manner he might have aroused suspicions. It is hard to tell which would have been the better course.

He would have been wiser to insist upon having the ransom in well-worn bills of mixed denominations, most of them not larger than $5. Yet for the purposes of travel in the Orient, where Hickman seems to have intended to take refuge, the gold certificates he received were the most useful, since they pass more readily abroad than other American currency, even at a premium over gold in some places. Here, again, the planner was faced with a dilemma. His presentation of the towel clew to the police undoubtedly was the result of desperate, unthinking haste.

At some time in every crime there is the need of hurry, and it is not possible to anticipate all that may require to be done quickly.

Hickman made other errors, too—plenty of them. One of them was his driving into another State with a stolen car bearing a California license—a circumstance that aided police materially when they came to look for him, with knowledge, supplied by that identifiable money, that he was in the vicinity.

William Edward Hickman is in custody, facing the gallows, because there is and can be no such thing as a "perfect crime." Loeb and Leopold, more intelligent, better trained, almost as fiendish, made almost no mistakes; but Leopold lost his glasses, they were found, and they led to his identification.

In the web of circumstances every thread matches every other thread—fits precisely into just one proper place—aids in making a complete pattern. Any loose thread, even the slightest, is likely to start the unraveling of the whole. A perfect crime is impossible.

Tells How He Foiled Police

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 22. (AP)—"I was stopped by four different Los Angeles police officers in making my getaway from Los Angeles Sunday," Hickman is credited with having told his fellow-prisoners in the Pendleton City Jail tonight."

"Several other officers looked at me and acted as if they were going to hail me, and then let me pass by," he said.

The first $20 bill Hickman obtained from Perry Parker was cashed in a Los Angeles restaurant Sunday, he said tonight. The waitress in accepting his bill said: "Aren't you afraid to be spending new $20 bills?"

He said he talked to the waitress for some time and when she wanted to know who he was he said:

"You sure would be surprised if you knew."

ARREST NEWS BRINGS FUROR

Excited Thousands Mill About Streets

Mothers Relax from Tense Feeling of Dread

City Then Calms Down After Week of Turmoil

The emotional storm that for seven hectic days raged in Los Angeles because of the Marion Parker kidnaping and murder was lashed into a feverish climax yesterday, when wires from the north flashed news that the fugitive Edward Hickman had been caught.

The information, first received in newspaper offices, spread throughout the community like a great wave of relief from a wracking pain. From the first cry of the telegraph operator, "Hickman caught," the word ran by word of mouth, by telephone and then, in barely a few moments, by newspaper and courier to the farthest corners of the Southland

Cries on the street from one to another, red flashes of telephone signals on every switchboard, dashing of messengers and even the subtle and unseen wave of suggestion swept the city so that when the first newspapers reached the streets, men and women fought over them and a scene the like of which has not been equaled since the great Armistice Day followed.

EXCITEMENT INTENSE

Pedestrians caught at each other on the sidewalks, vehicles stopped as if balking and crowds collected around excited readers who called aloud from the papers they held with trembling hands. Business in the downtown stores, congested with Christmas shoppers, was paralyzed into a hush for a moment and then thousands rushed for the streets to find out what all had happened.

A mass of hundreds of thousands of persons soon was milling around in excitement that carried with it a roar that rose and fell with an ominous note.

MOTHERS RELAXED

In the residential sections mothers who had scarcely let their children out of their arms or sight for a week relaxed with a suddenness that almost turned into a collapse and then joyously got themselves together to run out somewhere to neighbors or for a ride.

Last night the city rested, the first in seven fearful days and nights. A measure of calmness had returned. But at that crowds waited late into the night around news stands, newspaper offices and in places of congregation for further word and detail of this triumph of the community over crime. Something of the normalcy of business, community and individual life is expected to return with the coming of today. Children again are safe in the land.

SAN FRANCISCO SHAKEN BY NEWS OF CAPTURE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—Never in the history of San Francisco has the arrest of a crime suspect caused such a wave of hysterical excitement as passed over this city this afternoon, when word was received of the capture of William Edward Hickman to face charges of mutilating and murdering little Marion Parker of Los Angeles. Total strangers bandied the words along Market street:

"They've got Hickman."

Newsboys were pushed and crushed in the violent storm center of citizens demanding extras. No one waited for change.

Around the newspaper distribution centers crowds gathered, reading the details and babbling excitedly at random. At several Market-street intersections the crush was so oblivious to other things that vehicle traffic became snarled and knotted and finally was halted entirely. Traffic officers sweated in their efforts to restore and maintain order

STORES DISPLAY BULLETINS

Similar conditions obtained at any number of places where bulletins were posted. Not only newspapers but stores displayed signs telling of the capture of the accused fiend in Pendleton, Or.

When the wave of information reached the residential sections housewives—mothers of children—excitedly leaned from windows and doors, calling to neighbors. Some persons who had not spoken for years because of neighborhood grudges wiped out their differences in a moment of relief from the terror that has dogged every mother's apron strings since Marion Parker's broken body was tossed almost into father's lap for a sheaf of $20 notes the same notes which marked the trail of Hickman's capture.

REWARD PROPOSED

Just prior to the receipt of word of the arrest, Mayor Rolph had sent a letter to the Finance Committee of the Board of Supervisors, suggesting that the city offer $1000 as a reward for the slayer's arrest and conviction. Action is scheduled on the suggestion tomorrow, but in view of the circumstances it is not known what will be done about it now.

While the citizenry generally was rejoicing, police and special investigators set on motion all investigation to determine the length of time Hickman spent in this city on his flight north and the places he visited while he was here.

GREEN AUTO AIDS ARREST OF HICKMAN

Downfall Hastens When He Quits City Streets for Wide Open Road

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 22. (AP) The quest for William Edward Hickman, kidnaper-slayer, of Los Angeles, is ended. He sat, a dejected figure, in the City Hall Jail of Pendleton tonight, the end of his long flight from justice.

Hickman's downfall came when he ventured from the crowded cities to sparsely populated Umatilla county of Northeastern Oregon. His green Hudson sedan was too conspicuous to escape attention of the vigilant Umatilla county officers.

Two officers, "Buck" Leuellen, a State traffic officer, and Tom Gurdane, Chief of Police of Pendleton, the round-up city, caught Hickman as he sped toward Pendleton on the Old Oregon Trail, four miles east of Echo, and twenty-two miles west of Pendleton.

Hickman when first apprehended, protested he was being arrested for speeding. The officers convinced him otherwise.

"Well, I guess it's all over," said Hickman, as he put his hands in the air. From this point he talked freely, telling in detail of his part in the kidnaping of Marion Parker. He denied he had participated in the actual killing, maintaining that he had kidnaped the girl, taken the dismembered parts of the body to the father, and admitted that he took all the money. But as to the actual killing—this he denied stoutly.

ASSOCIATED PRESS AIDS IN CAPTURE

News Sent to Northwest About Hickman Helps to Bring About Undoing

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22. (AP)—Newspaper reports of the search for William E. Hickman caused him to flee from San Francisco to Oregon, he said in his confession today, not aware that he was under the network of the Associated Press wires, with news of the man hunt speeding twenty-four hours a day to every section of the country.

Details of the crime which followed the first news carried by the Associated Press out of Los Angeles, including a wealth of description of the bandit, all served to set off the alarm in the Pacific Northwest.

Officers who eventually caught Hickman said it was the details of the Associated Press news reports carried into Eastern Oregon to members and the public there that put them on the track.

And when Hickman was placed in the jail at Pendleton he was closeted first with Parker Branin, city editor of the Pendleton East Oregonian, Pendleton correspondent of the Associated Press, and John Beckwith, court reporter, who obtained the confession.

Worry Ended for Dr. Mantz

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 22. (AP)—Dr. Herbert L. Mantz, whose stolen automobile was used by William Edward Hickman in the kidnaping of Marion Parker and whose children were threatened yesterday in a long-distance telephone call by a man who purported to be the slayer of the child, was told tonight by the Kansas City Star of Hickman's capture and confession.

"I'm very glad," said Dr. Mantz. "Thank you very much. That puts me out of the worry column."

Machine Parked Close to Hotel

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—The automobile driven by William Edward Hickman and stolen in Hollywood, was left in the Bell Auto Park, only a block from the Hotel Herald; shortly after 8 a.m. Monday and taken out about 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Leon Vorhes, attendant who checked the machine in, had gone to work at the park an hour previously and said he was so busy learning his new job that he does not remember whether he gave the tag to a man, woman or both. Neither Vorhes nor other attendants would believe the car had been there until an investigator showed them the license number, Cal. 1-350-391, on their own registry sheet.

WATER DIVERSION GRANTED

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 22. (AP)—McMullin Reclamation District No. 2075, situated near Manteca, today was granted a permit by the State Division of Water Rights to divert 48.75 cubic feet of the flow of the Stanislaus River for an irrigation project. The district proposes to water 3900 acres of new land.

to Speech Proroguing Parliament Declares No New Building Due

Failure Leaves Hope; War Debt Claim Will be Held Down

Dec. 22. (AP)—The declaration of the British government against embarking on an extensive naval building program in the temporary failure" of the Naval Conference to reach agreement is the outstanding theme from the American throne of King George's speech from the Parliament today.

Part of the speech, dealing with war debts emphasized the attitude of the government is unwilling on the Allies to cancel as, together with the other nations, will cover the United's own war-debt obligations brought out that the funding arrangements have been made by Great Britain with all the countries concerned except Russia.

SIGN OF LOYALTY

The loud cheerings of both houses at the reading of certain outstanding passages in the King's speech was prorogued until January 3.

Following his speech of prorogation, which was followed with constant interruptions of my sons, the Prince of Wales and Prince George, and also of my son and daughter, the Duke and Duchess of York, Princess Mary, Admiral Beatty, Australia and other parts of my dominions. I look forward to my return and I have been much pleased with deep satisfaction and enthusiastic loyalty that everywhere they have invariably expressed their sovereign."

The speech expressed gratification at the visit of the King of Italy and the exchange of "friendly communications between the Premier and the British Foreign Secretary, which is a guarantee for the future. It is my earnest desire that may prove of lasting benefit to both countries.

SPEECH PRAISED

The speech was received with profound sympathy and satisfaction the steady influence of the League of Nations and the increasing part which it is playing in composing international differences and preserving peace. The recent meeting of the Council marked a further step in this progress. My government continues in close touch with its representatives at the conference of Americas and will be represented at Geneva at which the question of the future limitation of armaments, which, if accomplished, would have led to substantial reductions in naval strengths and military budgets, will be discussed. It was thought that, though much progress of importance has been made, it would be premature to reach a general agreement in the spirit of this hope. My government has decided, therefore, to proceed with the scheme of embarking upon an extension of their naval building programme, which, will cover the period of the Washington Treaty. This programme will be based upon a consideration of the defensive needs of the empire."

PRAISE OF ALLIED WARFARE

Referring to the speech pointed out that it was due to the policy of the Allies to "concentrate our efforts on the Allies "to maintain our resources, together with our own resources, will cover the whole of the expenditure which my government has itself to incur for war debts."

Funds on Hand Equal Needs of Flood District

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—Red Cross funds and other resources on hand will be sufficient to carry the destitute population still needing help in the Mississippi Valley flood region through until spring without further public national appeal, Secretary Hoover announced today upon his return from a final survey of the area.

"By April the job will be done," he said. "The seeds furnished will have to be enough to plant about 1,000,000 acres of land, 80 per cent of which will be put back into cotton, and the balance to forage and vegetable crops. From April on with the crops coming up it is probable that the population will be self-supporting and will have credit sufficient to take care of itself."

HOPE GIVEN UP FOR S-4'S CREW

Admiral Admits All Dead on Sunken Submarine

Divers Down at Wreck Hear No Signs of Life

Navy May Quit Salvage Work for Winter

make a personal survey of the situation and check up on his divers' report that he sank over his head in soft mud at the bottom. A diver was started down to aid him, but the officer was able to win freedom without assistance.

From tonight on, so long as weather permits diving, the divers will work in pairs, the squad of twenty now on the mine sweeper Falcon, flagship of the salvage fleet, having been divided into two watches.

The S-4 had been at the bottom of the sea off Provincetown Harbor for just 17½ hours when it finally was decided the six men who had fought a gallant battle for life in her torpedo compartment no longer survived. It was not until air lines, attached to the listening device of the torpedo room by a method never before used, had been pumping fresh air into the compartment for thirteen hours that hope was at last given up. Signals sent by the oscillator of the Falcon remained unanswered, and all was still in the battered hull of the submarine. The rescuers regretfully admitted it was the end.

DIVERS MAKE SURVEY

Divers who surveyed the S-4 today established these facts:

The vertical rudder is 15 deg. left, showing that the helmsman had attempted to turn sharply out to sea to avoid collision with the destroyer Paulding.

The horizontal rudder is 15 deg. up, indicating that the submarine was coming sharply to the surface when rammed.

The upper torpedo shutters are closed. The lower shutters apparently are closed, but are covered by mud.

The vessel had a list of 3 deg. to starboard. The mud at the bow is one foot deep under the turn of the forefoot. At the conning tower it is five feet above the keel line. At the stern swag it is about two feet deep.

WILBUR WANTS LOOKOUTS TO PROTECT SUBMARINES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—The disaster that befell the submarine S-4 may result in a change in naval policy that will provide for a lookout patrol of surface vessels while a submarine is submerged in practice maneuvers.

In the opinion of Secretary Wilbur, all other devices, such as buoys and sounders, have been found impracticable by navy experts.

He believes that none of those contrivances can be used in time of war and in practice maneuvers are designed to get performance as near to war-time tactics as possible.

If destroyers had been patrolling the Massachusetts waters in which the S-4 was maneuvering, they could have warned the Coast Guard destroyer Pauling of the presence of the submarine and the crash would have been avoided, it is held.

Under the circumstances Secretary Wilbur believes, from available information, that the accident was unavoidable, but that naval experts, in giving close studies in an effort to prevent another such catastrophe, should take into consideration the opportunities which probably lie in a surface patrol for guarding submarines.

Naval officials are making few statements concerning the attacks being made on them as a result of the S-4 disaster. They expressed interest today in the statement made by Representative Gifford and his Massachusetts constituents, but other than to say that they hardly considered Mr. Gifford, or the Cape Cod fishermen whom he quoted, as being sufficiently expert on deep-sea diving to judge conditions under which it could be carried on with safety, they refused to comment.

REPRESENTATIVE CRITICISES NAVY ON RESCUE ATTEMPT

COTUIT (Mass.) Dec. 22. (AP)—Open criticism of the "inactivity of the Navy" at the scene of the S-4 disaster, and refusal of officials in charge of rescue and salvage attempts to give "the truth to the newspaper men" was found in Provincetown "on every hand" by Congressman Charles L. Gifford of Cotuit, Gifford said today.

"Why don't they do something?" is the cry heard everywhere in Provincetown, Gifford said. "I went to Provincetown because of the terrific criticism that came to me. I knew the people there would tell me just how they felt. While I dislike to say too much, I found their criticism obviously justified.

"The Navy is going to say that there wasn't buoyancy enough to raise the submarine. But they didn't even attempt it. Why didn't they try? The accident never would have happened at all if the tender supposed to have been over the submarine at all times hadn't been in Provincetown Harbor, miles away, at the time."

VATICAN SEES "TRAGIC WARNING" IN DISASTER

ROME, Dec. 22. (AP)—The Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, applies the characterization, "A tragic warning," to the sinking of the United States submarine S-4. It notes that the disaster occurred "at a time when armaments competition is being resumed with tenacity and implacability."

The Vatican mouthpiece then launches into a drive against submarine warfare generally and, in view of the numerous submarine disasters in peace time, concludes: "If one has faith one can well meditate that all such tragedies are most potent appeals for justice on the part of divine universal Providence, abhorrent of human fratricidal preparation. And the victims fall in unequaled martyrdom, not for a sacrifice consummated in ways of elevation, progress, peace and the fraternity of peoples, but in what disgust, what odious conditions, what barbarity!"

The fact that the whole United States prayed for the safety of the men lying below the sea in a steel shell is favorably commented on, with the remark, "When there is prayer, there is hope and faith."

ARMY BOMBERS HIT BRIDGE

ALBEMARLE (N. C.) Dec. 22. (AP)—Army aviators engaged in bombing tests over the abandoned Swift Island bridge here had better luck today, one of the twenty-three shells, weighing 600 pounds each, striking the structure square in the center and blowing out great chunks of concrete and steel. A dozen others struck one of the approaches, each creating huge craters and apparently rendering the approach useless.

The flyers failed to score one hit with twelve 300-pound bombs yesterday, the nearest landing two yards away from the bridge.

Each of the twenty-three shells dropped today contained 150 pounds of high explosives and was let loose from an altitude of 6000 feet.

FACES TO BE BROADCAST

New Device Projects Them as Sound and Special Receiver Converts Waves Into Picture Form

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—"No offense is intended, lady, but that beautiful face of yours sounds just like a peanut stand. You needn't feel bad about it, though, because your husband's sounds as bad, if not worse, so he can't use this knowledge against you.

Shortly after New Year's Day there are going to be public tests of an apparatus invented by Austin C. Cooley for broadcasting pictures by radio.

The way it is done, Edgar H. Felix, radio expert associated with the inventor, told the Associated Press today, is to transform light waves from a person or group at the microphone into sound waves, transmit them as such by radio broadcast, and then turn them back into light waves so that they reproduce a picture of the place they started from.

"What does a face sound like?" Felix was asked.

"Every face has a different sound, just as it has a different appearance," he said, "but they all sound very much like the whistle of a peanut stand, the sound rising and falling with the high lights and shadows of the features.

"For instance, a face with a very long nose would have a prolonged howl in the middle of its sound reproduction, and sunken eyes would sound like an almost muted whistle.

"A flat face with small features and no deep convolutions would sound like an almost even note, where a face with marked features, deep character lines, protuberances and hollows would sound rather like an Irish jig on a penny whistle.

Felix said that the sounds of faces are so distinctive that by the Cooley method they can be recorded on phonograph discs and played or broadcast as often as desired.

The pictures, he said, can be broadcast from any regular radio station and can be picked up on any home set. They will remain nothing more than sounds, however, after being picked up without additional apparatus to turn them back into pictures. This apparatus, while not yet on the market, will probably cost about the same as the average radio receiving set, in Felix's opinion.

The tests to be made next month will be broadcast over station WOR of Newark, N. J. Receiving apparatus has been installed in twenty homes within a radius of ten miles.

CAPONE HELPS OUT SANTA

Chicago Gang Chief Pays Heavy Fines for Self and Followers and Gives Change to St. Nick

JOLIET (Ill.) Dec. 22. (AP)—"Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago gang leader, contributed about $3600 to the city and county courts here and then gave $10.20 to Santa Claus.

The gang leader, seized here last week as he stepped from a train from Los Angeles on his way to Chicago, came back to Joliet from Chicago to face charges of carrying concealed weapons. With him came half a dozen of his henchmen, who had come here to meet him last week and who were seized when found to be carrying pistols.

THEY PLEAD GUILTY

Capone and his companions first appeared in police court to face the city charges. They pleaded guilty and Capone and four of his friends were fined $200 and costs each. The gangster paid the fines of all nonchalantly after charges against two others had been dismissed.

Then the gangster and his companions headed for the court of Judge Adams to face similar State charges. Again Capone and his four henchmen entered guilty pleas and were fined $300 and costs each on the State charges.

PEELS OFF LARGE BILLS

Capone pulled out a roll of bills, peeled off one $1000 bill and six $100 bills and tendered them to the county clerk, A. F. Delander, father of "Miss America" for 1927.

"The fines are $1500, and the charges are $69.80," said the clerk. "Here's your change, $10.20."

"Please take that down to the Salvation Army Santa Claus on the corner," said Capone. "Tell him it's a Christmas present from Al Capone."

PENDLETON THRONGED BY CURIOUS

Deputy Marshal Tells of Great Excitement Over Capture of Hickman

BY JOE VOGELSANG
(Deputy United States Marshal for Oregon)

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—Pendleton is more crowded tonight than any time I have ever been in the city. People are arriving by the hundreds and there must be between 6000 and 7000 automobiles on the streets. Airplanes are arriving every few minutes bringing in additional newspaper men and still and motion cameramen. Everything is at a fever pitch and every street corner has its group of excited citizens.

Pendleton is unquestionably the news center of the United States today. "Buck" Lieuallen and Chief Gurdane are receiving the highest of commendation from the people of the vicinity and telegrams by the thousands are pouring into this city from all parts of the United States, Mexico and Canada. The Pendleton telegraph office is simply swamped.

Being a deputy marshal, I have been admitted to the jail from time to time, but each time I am stopped by at least fifteen deputies between the ropes, which have been stretched some distance from the City Hall and the building itself. Chief Gurdane has sworn in a dozen or more special officers and the jail is being guarded well. Pendleton peace officers can and will take care of the situation.

I was in the room when Hickman made his confession. I never hope to see a cooler, more collected person, particularly under the cloud which hangs over this prisoner. He has shown no emotion, or at least did not while I was around, he did not smoke, and not once did he ask whether his mother has been told of the charges against him.

"If you hadn't had my fingerprints," Hickman told us, assuming a bragging attitude, which has been echoed in his notes and his signature as "The Fox," "I would have shot it out with you and taken my chances."

POLICE HUNT "DOCTOR" IN DEATH CASE

Two Others Already Held at Oakland on Charge of Illegal Operation

OAKLAND, Dec. 22. (AP)—With Mrs. Josephine Catherine Cole and "Dr." Edmund H. Cook, both of Oakland, held pending investigation of the death of Mrs. Betty Buckles, 25 years of age, during an illegal operation here, police tonight continued search for the "Dr. Irwin A. Cole" in whose office Mrs. Buckles's body was found yesterday. He was charged with murder.

Police believe that the fugitive has taken the name of a Dr. Irwin A. Cole, who at present is Coroner of Genessee county, New York, and the New York physician expressed the opinion that one of his classmates had assumed his name and obtained credentials made out in his name.

Mrs. Cole was arrested in Alameda after she and her husband had abandoned their apartment. She said she believed her husband a physician and had urged him to stay and face the charges. She denied, however, that "Cole" had operated on Mrs. Buckles, and after her statement "Dr." Cook was arrested. She identified him as the man who performed the operation, admitting that she had assisted as nurse. Cook, minister of the Christian Psychosophy Church here, denied the charge.

MRS. LINDBERGH IN MEXICO CITY

promptly took to the air. He circled about for some time and finally landed in a nearby field. Again the crowd streamed toward him, and again he took to the air. Valbuena Field had been vacated and he seized the opportunity to land near a hangar and rushed the Spirit of St. Louis into safety before the crowd could reach it. He then followed his mother to the embassy in another automobile.

Mrs. Lindbergh stepped from the plane that brought her from Detroit, dressed in a maroon-colored traveling dress, a black coat with a fur collar, black hat, shoes and handbag. She wore an aviation emblem in the button hole of her coat lapel and carried Mexican and American flags in her hand. The eddying crowd cheered loudly and yelled, "Bravo, Senora Lindbergh."

WELCOMED BY GENERAL

President Calles was not among the welcomers, nor were any Cabinet members, since she is not a guest of the government like her son, but a private visitor of Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow. However, Gen. Alvarez, chief of the Presidential staff, was present as personal representative of the President and was the first person to greet her.

As soon as Mrs. Lindbergh's plane came to a halt, Gen. Alvarez stepped into the cabin and presented her with a great bouquet of poinsettias. He then extended on behalf of the President a message of warm welcome from the chief executive and the Mexican government.

Mrs. Lindbergh told him that, "the entire United States has been thrilled by evidences of Mexican friendship for our country since my son has been here."

Looking as fresh as if she had merely been on a trolley-car ride, she said the trip had been most pleasant and enjoyable and that her only moment of apprehension was when the plane landed and she feared that someone in the crowd surging around it might be hurt.

The meeting between mother and son was affectionate, but entirely undemonstrative. What words were exchanged were inaudible to other persons in the drawing-room because Mrs. Lindbergh got up when the flyer entered the door and they met at the far end of the room. Lindbergh placed his hand on his mother's arm, gave her a sort of half-embrace and then the two walked arm in arm across the room to where Mrs. Morrow and a small group of American women were at the tea table.

Transatlantic Phone Failure

LONDON, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—The trans-Atlantic telephone is not a success and money is being lost on it. The Britishers apparently are using it very little—the total average of daily calls from this side is only 2.8, notwithstanding the fact that the service is open daily ten and a half hours, showing that the wire is working less than twelve and a half minutes daily.

LEAGUE APPOINTS PALACE ARCHITECTS

GENEVA, Dec. 22. (AP)—Two architects, one French and one Swiss, have been appointed by the League of Nations to submit a new design for the new League palace, which will include an assembly hall, a secretariat and provision for the library which John D. Rockefeller has donated.

NEW RESEARCH CENTER FORMED

Three Schools Merged Into Brookings Institution

Scholars to Deal With All Humanistic Sciences

Will Act as Headquarters for Visiting Students

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
"Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (Exclusive) The Brookings Institution, a unique type of research and training center in the humanistic sciences, has just been established in the national capital. The institution is the outgrowth of experimentation in research and training conducted at Washington for some years by the Institute of Economics, the Institute for Government Research and the Robert Brookings Graduate School of Economics and Government.

The new institution, which is the amalgamation of the three existing agencies, is designed to cover eventually the whole range of the humanistic, or social sciences, providing facilities for research and for advanced research training in such subjects as economics, government administration, political relations, history, law and social organization. The institute of economics and the institute for government research will retain their names and continue their activities as divisions of the Brookings Institution; similar institutes, devoted to other branches of the humanistic sciences, are in contemplation.

NAMED FOR BROOKINGS

The institution is named in honor of Robert S. Brookings, formerly of St. Louis, and during recent years a prominent figure in the national capital, widely known for his war service and as the founder of the separate institutions which form the nucleus of the new Brookings Institution. An endowment of several million dollars is already assured.

The officers of the board of trustees are:

Robert S. Brookings, chairman; Leo S. Rowe, vice-chairman; Frederic A. Delano, treasurer.

Primary responsibility for formulating general policies and co-ordinating the activities of the various divisions of the institution is vested in a president. Dr. Harold G. Moulton, director of the Institute of Economics and chairman of the problems and policy committee of the Social Science Research Council, has been elected to this office.

The Brookings Institution will be unique in its provision for a series of specialized research institutes equipped to carry out comprehensive and interrelated research programs. Such researches are expected not only to promote a greater realism in economic, social and political thought, but also to render important service in connection with public affairs.

In its training function, the institution will not attempt to give an ordinary graduate training leading to a Ph.D. degree. The design is rather to extend the period of research training and of research opportunity to those who have already completed the formal work of graduate schools. By providing an opportunity for selected young scholars to spend from one to three years in a well-equipped research organization the graduate work now done by universities will be supplemented.

THIRD PURPOSE NAMED

A third major purpose of the institution is to provide headquarters for visiting scholars from both the United States and foreign countries. Increasingly students from all over the world come to Washington to pursue research work in the field of the humanistic sciences.

MAN POSING AS 'FOX' IN JAIL CELL

Police Declare Search for Hickman Made More Difficult by "Teaser"

Whatever future interest Gaylord W. Barnaman has in the Marion Parker murder will be confined to a cell in the City Jail, it was indicated yesterday when Municipal Judge Wilson imposed a sixty-day sentence upon him for interfering with the police search for the slayer.

"I am the Fox, try and catch me," Barnaman was quoted by arresting officers as saying over the telephone in a downtown hotel to local radio broadcasting stations last Saturday night.

The officers declared they had been hindered by a "nut," who was in the habit of phoning the radio stations shortly after the kidnaping and teasing the attendants about the prowess of the Fox.

Detective Lieutenants Tucker, Hamilton and Davis stated they caught Barnaman phoning in the hotel booth after receiving a tip from the operator as to his whereabouts. The defendant attempted to conceal an envelope filled with newspaper accounts of the murder, they said.

"Instead of you pitching in and trying to assist authorities in solving the most dastardly and cowardly crime of the decade, like all good citizens have done, you devoted your time and energy to making the investigation all the more difficult," Judge Wilson said. "You can think over your grave mistake for the next sixty days."

Barnaman was charged with disturbing the peace.

New Diamond Mine Found

CAPETOWN (Union of South Africa) Dec. 22. (AP)—Another diamond find, valued at 350,000 pounds sterling is reported to have been made at Namaqualand, thirty miles from Port Maloth.

The stones are said to be similar in formation to a recent find in South Africa.

DAWES GETS WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—A miniature White House and a brand new set of Senate rules were found by Vice-President Dawes today in his Christmas stocking, which had been filled by the pages.

The gifts were received by Mr. Dawes with obvious pleasure at his annual dinner to the pages and Senate employees.

The new rules of the pages gave the Vice-President absolute control over Senate debate. In addition to the miniature White House, the pages related a thrilling story of a non-stop flight from the Capitol to the White House in his plane, Hell and Maria.

MANY DRYS QUALIFY AS ENFORCERS

From 75 to 80 Per Cent of Administration Staff Pass Test Required by Law

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—Between 75 and 80 per cent of the prohibition administrators have successfully passed the examination required under the law that will place all prohibition enforcement personnel under the civil service after the first of the year.

Within a few days, Commissioner Doran said today, the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau expects to announce the reorganization of the prohibition enforcement forces to comply with the law. He does not anticipate any radical changes in the present personnel as most of the desirable men, he said, met the civil service requirements.

Commissioner Doran said he has no information as to how many of the 2000 agents of the prohibition service had passed the examination. He conferred today with the Civil Service Commission as to the standards used in disqualifying the men. He said he hopes to retain as many of the experienced agents as is possible and believes that a working agreement can be established between the prohibition bureau and the Civil Service Commission.

Administrator and agent are different ranks in the prohibition service.

Long Beach to Receive Federal Building Funds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (Exclusive) Long Beach seems certain to obtain a new Federal Building, the total cost of construction to be $1,250,000 in addition to the site now owned by the government at American avenue and Third street. This information was disclosed at a conference of Representative Evans and officials of the postal department in the office of the Postmaster General this afternoon.

The Long Beach building will be one of many included in the nation-wide building program and while the total amount of its full cost will not be appropriated for use in any one year Representative Evans has assurances that the first appropriation will be available for use in the next fiscal year and work then can be started and completed as rapidly as the other government buildings over the country. The whole building program will cover several years.

Other Experts Examine Hearst Mexican Papers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—Additional experts were called into consultation on the Mexican documents published by the Hearst papers at a secretly called meeting today of the Senate committee investigating the authenticity of the papers.

Names of the witnesses were not revealed and it was reiterated after the meeting that the committee has not reached any conclusions on the genuineness of the documents.

While open hearings were to be resumed next Tuesday there are indications that this program will be sidetracked because Senators Robinson of Arkansas and Jones of Washington, of the committee, will be away at that time attending the funeral services in New Mexico of Senator Jones.

Million and Half Divided Among Church Groups

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 22. (AP)—Various organizations of the Presbyterian Church received approximately $1,500,000 by an order of Orphans' Court today distributing $8,396,149 of the estate of David L. Gillespie, Pittsburgh lumberman and capitalist.

A bequest of $382,942 each was ordered paid to the trustees of the General Assembly, the Board of National Missions, the Board of Foreign Missions, the Board of Christian Education and the Board of Ministerial Relief.

Injunction Halts Inyo Bank Paying

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—An injunction presumably granted on the ground that claims of the First National Bank of Inyo County are preferential, today restrained the payment of $95,000 in liquidation dividends to 2000 claimants of the defunct Inyo County Bank, which was wrecked by the Watterson embezzlements.

Arrangements for the payment of a 10 per cent dividend by the savings department and 5 per cent by the commercial department had been announced yesterday by Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Banks.

Government Clearing Up Intimidation Charge

Justice in Fall-Doheny Case Quits Bench

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—After counsel in the case had agreed to combine the contempt and intimidation charges in the oil jury tampering case, Justice Siddons today decided that first the government must clear up the accusations that it had intimidated witnesses during the hearings.

When Kidwell resumed the stand, Asst. Dist.-Atty. O'Leary questioned him about remarks made after reading a newspaper article regarding his first "voluntary" visit to the District Attorney's office.

CHARGES AFFIDAVIT CHANGED

He was trying to show he had left Kidwell's home while the juror and his mother conferred over whether she should sign an affidavit in support of his statements. Kidwell agreed with this.

O'Leary read parts of the affidavit, which said Kidwell had discussed his service on the oil jury with her, but the witness asserted part of the statement had been put in the affidavit by O'Leary.

SWORE ONLY TO PARTS

Kidwell pointed out a sentence he said O'Leary and not his mother had put in the document, but which he said was true. He told the court his mother had not made the statements in affidavits regarding his belief he was being followed by the "oil people" to see if he would accept a bribe.

Kidwell reiterated affidavits he signed in O'Leary's office intended to identify Burns detectives as men who "approached" him, were in part untrue. He insisted he also told O'Leary. He admitted he had signed and sworn to an affidavit, but insisted he was only swearing to the part of the document he knew was true.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 22. (AP)—A sweeping investigation to determine whether a large hemp project in the Imperial Valley inaugurated by the Imperial Linen Products Company of San Diego is in violation of the State narcotic law was launched today by several departments of the State government.

The State's investigation comes on the heels of complaints that the hemp growing constitutes a menace, as Mexicans are making use of the flowers as a habit-forming drug.

No Broadcast of Christmas Grid Battle

None of the local radio stations will broadcast the South-West grid game from the Coliseum, next Monday, it was announced last night. Monday being a holiday the radio stations are going to give their operators a full day off so that they can go and enjoy the game with the rest of the fans. Persons who had counted on staying at home to get the game over the air can still secure good tickets at the B. H. Dyas store.

FULLERTON HAS DOPE ON UHALT

Indians Learned About Star Driller in Early Tilt

Orange County Preps Tackle Bakersfield Tuesday

Rival Elevens Will Hook Up in Coliseum for Title

FULLERTON, Dec. 22.—"We're going to drill those Drillers." With this slogan as the refrain of a spirited marching song, "Shorty" Smith's Fullerton gridsters are preparing to march on toward the Los Angeles Coliseum next Tuesday and engage Bakersfield in a battle for the survival of the fittest—and the California State interscholastic football championship.

SHORTY SMITH

Fullerton has one chance to win by stopping the streaky, shanky skipper of the Drillers, "Frenchy" Uhalt, who has never been halted yet this season. "Stop Uhalt," is Fullerton's cry, but it takes in a lot of territory. The Bakersfield captain is not so big, nor so terribly fast, but he knows how to pack that apple and he can pass a bit, too.

REMEMBER UHALT

Fullerton well remembers the squatty little guy. In that early season melee, in which the Drillers messed up the Indians, 28 to 0, with about as much difficulty as the New York Yanks won the American League pennant this past campaign Uhalt would start as if to drive through tackle and then cleverly pivot and slip off end. Often the process would be reversed, with Uhalt cutting inside the tackles after feinting an end run.

The Bakersfield ace is a well set-up youngster, weighing about 160 pounds and making good use of his poundage. He is the keyman of the Driller attack that has crashed every team that has dared oppose it—an offense that has rolled up the amazing total of 349 points in eleven starts, as against nineteen for its opponents.

SHOULD SHOW BETTER

Although Fullerton was absolutely outclassed by the Bakersfield conglomeration two months ago, the Indians should make a much better showing now and there are some well-informed followers of the sport who feel that "Shorty" Smith's crowd has a chance to win.

The Reds have improved remarkably in the last few weeks and they have a lot more confidence in their own ability than they had when they first opposed the Central California wonder team. And don't forget that

Visiting Team Holds Secret Practice Session

BERKELEY, Dec. 22. (AP)—With the stiffness received from the train ride across the continent partially worked out as a result of the light practice yesterday, the University of Pennsylvania football team, practicing for the game with University of California on December 31, engaged in a stiff workout today.

The practice, however, was strictly secret, as will be all the workouts of the Penn team while preparing for the contest. Coach Lou Young made this distinctly understood yesterday, when he said that even newspaper men would be barred from the signal drill. "Twice we have come a long way to be defeated and return disappointed," he said, "and we're going to do everything possible to prevent it happening a third time."

He allowed the newspaper men to watch the signal drill for a few min-

WESTERN TEAM'S SYSTEM RATED MORE DECEPTIVE

Rival Squads Go Through Workout to Get Ready for Christmas Day Football Struggle

BY BRAVEN DYER

Power and speed stuck out all over the Southern football team at the Coliseum yesterday afternoon as the boys from below the Mason-Dixon line galloped through their second local workout. And in the morning, as we watched the Western aggregation at work on Bovard Field, we were impressed by the power and deception of that outfit. So it will be power for power at the Coliseum next Monday, and speed vs. deception, which ought to make a whale of a gridiron battle.

Not that the southerners lack deception or that the westerners lack speed. But the southerners are using a straight-away formation, which does not appear to have the deception employed by the western outfit. We say "appear," for it may be an entirely different story when the southerners go into action Monday.

BIL SPAULDING

The western team is using Pop Warner's offensive system, which means that their foes will encounter plenty of reverses of the single, double and triple variety. There probably is no system known to football which has more deception than Warner's, unless it be Knute Rockne's, and this is so because the ball seems never to be where you think it is.

How well the westerners can master this system in six days of practice is a question which cannot be answered until Mon-

CALIFORNIA GRID PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR NEXT SEASON AS BEARS PREP FOR PENN GAME

BERKELEY, Dec. 22 (Exclusive)—It is not likely that Coach Clarence "Nibs" Price will bathe himself in a flood of tears when he reviews what his "graduation losses" will be after the California - Pennsylvania post-season football clash in the Memorial Stadium the 31st of the month.

"NIBS" PRICE

Of the twenty-two men who have earned their letters so far this year, only six players who are of material value to the Blue and Gold cause will bid a final adieu to collegiate football in the impending after-season classic.

There is but little question that the graduation of his two first-choice tackles and their leading understudy will hurt Coach Clarence "Nibs" Price's feelings, but the rest of the positions are hardly affected.

Capt. Fritz Coltrin, who scintillated now and then and at other times was only an ordinary work horse with an occasional burst of energy; Ned Green, a 200-pounder like his captain, and Bob Fitz, a rugged type who came to the fore in a hurry toward the close of the season, and topped his record with a touchdown for the Bears in the Stanford match, are the line losses which will cut deeply.

The remaining three men of the sextet to move out after the Penn game are Dick Blewett, who has seen but little action this year, owing to the presence of Capt.-elect Irvine Phillips and Jim Dougery to hold down the end jobs; Jim Dougery, first-string end, and Brick Marcus, who was quite often a good load of dynamite for the opposition.

There is a host of guards remaining for Price and a plethora of backfield talent, in addition to that which the frosh will send up. Steve Bancroft, Bob Norton and "Togo" Thornton all will be left ot scrap for the lone end position vacant. As to the tackle berths, it is more than likely some of the superfluous backs will be detailed to try their hand at tackling and that some of the guards will be revamped for the respective duties of Coltrin, Green and Fitz.

CARD CAGERS PLAY HERE

Stanford Five Schedules Tilt With Hollywood Five at Movie Club Gym Wednesday

Stung by the unexpected defeat handed them last Tuesday night by U.C.L.A., Coach Kearney's Hollywood Athletic Club basketball five are pointing for the big clash of the year next Wednesday night, when they mix with the Stanford varsity crew at the Hollywood gym.

The big Cardinal and Gold aggregation are in for a busy night when they mingle with the Hollywood boys. The defeat handed the H.A.C. will probably do them more good than harm, as they entered the game with U.C.L.A. just a little bit too cocky and expected to win handily. The film city club has one of the fastest teams in the country—make no mistake about that, but basketball is won on the courts and not on paper.

Kearney hopes to have the boys in a fighting mood Wednesday night, the workout held last night was the stiffest Kearney has sent the players through this year. Bud George, the former Hillyard star; Ken Fagans, Jimmy Armstrong and Gene Dorsey need more work and the men will be sent through a series of workouts nightly, said Kearney until they get in shape.

"Hollywood has hopes for the national title and from now on we are going to keep in condition" is what the coach told the boys last night. "I want every man out each night this week, and then we will ask for a return game with California." Kearney is confident that his squad will go a long way this year in basketball circles. Stanford will arrive in Los Angeles tomorrow night and will be met by the local alumni.

It was announced by Harold Brown, manager of the team, that the Hollywood High School cage five would meet U.C.L.A. frosh in the first game, Wednesday night, which will start at 7 p.m.

FRENCH TENNIS ACES ARRIVE AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—The three B's of the French tennis world—Jacques Brugnon, Jean Borotra, and Christian Boussus—are here. They arrived yesterday from Rio De Janeiro after matches in Chile, Uruguay, Argentina and Brazil.

Representing the Racing Club of Paris, they will play a team of the Penn A. C. in Philadelphia Friday and a series of matches in Chicago Saturday. After completing the cross-country span for matches in San Francisco, they will sail the 28th inst. on a visit to New Zealand, Australia and South America.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, young Pacific Coast lightweight who jumped into fame by knocking out Louis (Kid) Kaplan and defeating Bill Wallace, will invade the eastern fistic front February 3.

ENGLISH POLOISTS CALL OFF INTERNATIONAL ARMY BATTLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—The international military polo series between the United States and Great Britain will not be continued in 1928, officials of the United States Polo Association announced today. Matches have been conducted between army representatives of the two nations since 1923 at two-year intervals.

The association has been informed by Major W. D. Crittenberger of the Army polo-control committee in Washington, of the British decision, with the explanation that the overseas veterans have found themselves unable to equip and properly train a team. The series probably will be resumed in 1929.

CLEVELAND PRO CHALKS UP 72 OVER L.A.A.C. COURSE

Armour and Cruickshank Favorites in First Club Championship; Rancho Event Tomorrow

BY BILL WISE

Larry Nabholtz of Cleveland, with a snappy 72 at Riviera yesterday, registered as an exceptionally dangerous challenger for the first club open championship, a 36-hole medal affair, to be decided over the Santa Monica Canyon links of the Los Angeles Athletic Club's golf course today.

Bobby Cruickshank, playing in a practice foursome with Tommy Armour, national open champ; Al Espinosa and Joe Turnesa appeared to have a slight edge on the fastest quartet of professional golfers in the country.

LARRY NABHOLT.

With the exception of Walter Hagen, the field at Riviera today will have all of the earmarks of a real championship group. Douglas Fairbanks has offered a purse of $1100 for the boys to shoot at and the competition is going to be the best seen here this season.

Riviera offers a test that is something entirely new on the West Coast. The layout designed by George C. Thomas, Jr., will be stretched to the limit for the play today and the "Pine Valley of the West" is going to ruin a lot of high-class golfers before the sun goes down late this afternoon.

Par of 71 at Riviera has never been equaled—due partly to the unfinished fairways—and the lack of championship competition, but the field today will be plenty good enough to golfically overlook all hazards, natural and otherwise, and if Tommy Armour, et al., are given an even break today a new course mark, probably two under par, will be established.

The Riviera championship, a miniature thirty-six-hole prologue to the $10,000 Los Angeles open classic next January, will probably draw a gallery of more than 2500 local fans. The affair is open to all golfers and friends, sans admission charge, and Riviera, in addition to being the best and hardest test of golf in this vicinity, is also a great gallery course.

The event starting early this morning is open to all local and visiting amateur and professional golfers. There will be no entry fee. Amateurs will be required to pay greens fees. Amateurs finishing among the seven lowest scores will be given merchandise orders equivalent to the cash prizes to be claimed by professional contestants.

Which is something else for the professionals—not to worry about. Von Elm could possibly finish with the leaders today, but the chances are George won't play, especially as he will have one tough match on his hands tomorrow when he teams with E. S. (Scotty) Armstrong in an eighteen-hole exhibition attempt to outstroke Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank at Rancho.

Charles (Golfing) Chung, still Chinese but former Hawaiian amateur champ—now in charge of the Redlands Club, has the right idea about the play today. Charles is going out for two 75's—and the resultant 150 will land in the money—regardless.

A partial list of today's entries, with starting times and pairings for the first eighteen-hole lap, is as follows:

8:30—Sandlund, Nunes, Ortiz.
8:36—F. Morrison, Richards, Blanton.
8:42—Nash, Lewis, Kenney.
8:48—Cruickshank, Martin, Shadstrom.
8:54—S. Gaver, Tofts, Mangrum.
9:00—G. Martin Stevens, Schmutte.
9:06—E. Gaver, Rogers, Nicholas.
9:12—Watrous, Dudley, Walsh.
9:18—Scott, Masters, Linares.
9:24—H. Smith, Smith, Fraser.
9:30—Hunter, Turnesa, A. De La Torre.
9:36—Burke, Cruickshank, Espinosa.
9:42—Nabholtz, Guest, Long.
9:48—A. Morrison, Bob Simpson, Shadstrom.
9:54—E. Martin, Dutra Weber.
10:00—Gaver, Cooper, Pinnell.
10:06—Kelly, Gwess, H. Bell.
10:12—Allan Cameron, Rethke, Hanson.

CALIFORNIA WOMEN TO INVADE LAKESIDE TODAY

Mrs. Gregg Lifur and her California women team-mates, enjoying a wide margin over Lakeside in the post season clash for auxiliary team league semifinalist honors, will invade President Jim Ireland's immaculate layout today and attempt to settle the practically one-sided question—for this season. California defeated Lakeside, 8 to 1, at California last week and needs but two points in the three-team match today.

ARMOUR AND CRUICKSHANK READY FOR RANCHO TILT

Tommy Armour, national open champ—looking better today than before he shot through Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen and other celebrities to his first internationally representative title last fall, with Bobby Cruickshank, is all set to give Von Elm and Scotty Armstrong a real workout in the eighteen-hole exhibition match scheduled for the Rancho Club, tomorrow.

Armour and Cruickshank, busy guiding Doug Fairbanks's gold at Riviera today, have a long-standing argument to settle with the former national amateur champ. Von Elm knows the particular significance of this argument and has called upon Scotty Armstrong, one of the most dangerous match-play golfers in this vicinity, to help him stop the high-powered pros.

The amateurs will not lack backing, financial and moral, in the eighteen-hole exhibition, scheduled to get under way at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and the play promises to be an interesting sidelight to the $10,000 Los Angeles open championship due within the next few weeks. Jess Hattler, Bryan Wardill, President P. A. Moulin and, in fact, the entire Rancho official personnel have completed arrangements to stage what promises to be one of the most enjoyable competitions of the season. The affair is open to all golfers and friends. Special gallery arrangements have been completed to care for a record crowd of at least 3500 fans.

SCHMUTTE SCORES ACE AT RIVIERA CLUB

Leonard Schmutte, a good-looking young visiting professional, who is going to score well in all coming events, holed his tee shot to the 145-yard sixth hole at Riviera yesterday, which is something for Leonard to write back home and tell the folks about. Reaching Riviera greens from the tee has fooled many very fine golfers, hence the additional credit to Schmutte for his hole in one.

Dunlap Cops Junior Crown in Girard Play

Gibson Dunlap of the Girard Club and the U.C.L.A. is the 1927 Los Angeles city junior golf champion. He won this title yesterday by defeating Cliff Little of Los Serranos 5 up and 4 to play in the 36-hole fina. match of the tourney staged at the Girard Golf Club by Manager Jess Puryear.

Dunlap got off to an early lead and was never headed. After nine holes he stood 2 up and at lunch time was 3 up, gaining six holes on the second nine of the morning round. Little got back three of these holes on the first nine after lunch but never cut Dunlap's lead to less than four holes, the match ending on the fourteenth green.

Dunlap played fine golf throughout the tournament and the 16-year-old golfer who held the Chicago municipal links championship two years ago deserved his victory. He had a 66 for a new junior course record at Girard on Wednesday, scored a 69 the same day, and had two 70's and a 71 for the full rounds he played. This is plenty good enough golf to beat most anyone.

In the defeated sixteen final of the championship flight Henry Grossman of S. C. defeated Marshall Sewell of U.C.L.A. by 4 and 3.

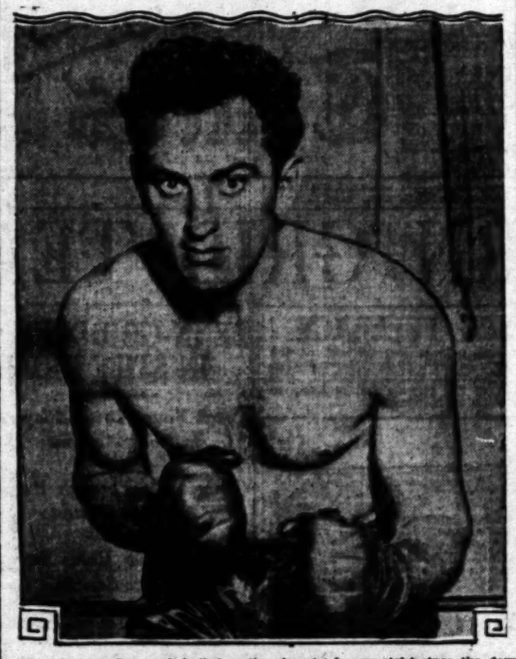
BOXER AND SLUGGER CLASH

Emanuel Faces Doman at Hollywood



This is Armand Emanuel, hailed as the cleverest heavyweight since the days of "Gentleman" Jim Corbett. He meets a slugger in Vigo Doman tonight.

HEAVYWEIGHTS hold down the limelight at the Hollywood American Legion stadium tonight and they are among the best in California. Vigo Doman, knockout artist, will fight Armand Emanuel, the San Francisco sensation, and Tony Fuente, the Mexican hope for the title, will meet Jack Roper in another ten-rounder.

TONY FUENTE

When it comes to box-office attractions the big boys are in a class by themselves. They pack 'em in everywhere and the Hollywood stadium will probably be crowded to-night, as Manager Tom Gallery has four of the best big boys in the West.

Vigo Doman is a Southern California product and Emanuel a San Francisco entry. This fight is an intersectional affair and should be the big noise. Doman resembles Jim Jeffries when "Jeff" was a young sprout in the fight game. He is strong and has a cracking good punch. Doman has more than twenty-five knockouts, many of them coming in the first and second rounds.

There isn't any question about who will win the main event should Doman land on Emanuel's chin. It is another Corbett and Jeffries fight. Corbett's likeness comes with the San Francisco fighter who is one of the greatest boxers in the game and much faster and more clever than Gene Tunney or Jack Dempsey. Armand Emanuel has been making progress with every fight and so has Doman.

The Tony Fuente-Jack Roper bout is for ten rounds and is apt to end in a knockout. Roper has the wallop and Fuente the boxing ability. The big Mexican is set for the best fight of his life. He is a bearcat when he believes in himself. Jack Roper is always looking for trouble. This Roper lad likes to fight and the rougher the going the better.

Just to satisfy the fans and make the Christmas show a good all-around attraction Tom Gallery has booked Billy Blake and Phil Harris in a six-round special. Blake is given the edge here because he has had the greater experience.

Art Yarnell and Sammy Aguerre will contest the four-rounder with everything pointing toward Yarnell to win.

PITT GRIDDERS SET FOR JAUNT

ber of former Pittsburghers, notably Dr. F. A. Rhodes and Dr. J. W. Schuman, the latter a one-time player, is making preparations to entertain the Panther party royally after the game with Stanford on January 2.

In the evening of the day of the game a dinner in honor of the Blue and Gold athletes and officials will be given at the Vista Del Arroyo Hotel, which is to be the headquarters of Coach Sutherland's boys while they are in Pasadena.

The Pitt players and others in the party will leave San Francisco for home on the night of Thursday, January 5, stopping half a day in Salt Lake City and four hours in Denver. They are due to reach Pittsburgh on the morning of January 10.

utes yesterday, however, and announced that next Tuesday they will be permitted to see the team scrimmage.

Hard scrimmaging work with some signal drill is the order of things for the California team. Head Coach "Nibs" Price is still juggling his backfield combinations around, with Clymer, Lane, Barr and Evans receiving the call yesterday.

Fullerton always plays at its best when the going is the toughest. You'll have to give old "Shorty" credit for that. He can steam his boys up to a high pitch and make them play "over their heads" with more consistency than any prep coach in Southern California.

And "Shorty" may do that next Tuesday.

Delaney's New Manager Seeks Dempsey Fight

BY ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—Behind the sudden shift in management of the colorful, but erratic French-Canadian fighter, Jack Delaney, the "wise ones" of boxing see unmistakable signs that the erstwhile "rapier of the north" will be pointed for one of the "big shots" of 1928.

This "big shot" might be a match with Jack Dempsey, a "natural" between two of the ring's hardest hitters, or it might be an early season title match with Gene Tunney whose trip to Florida hasn't caused any lapse in discussion of the champion's ballyhoo for two battles next year.

Brilliant one time and mediocre the next, Delaney has been one of the main fistic puzzles. He has been up and down the scale several times but always has remained among the leading drawing cards.

A year ago Delaney was freely selected as the coming heavyweight champion, the man most likely to knock Tunney off the throne. Then he ran head-on into Jimmy Maloney last February, losing the decision and considerable prestige, regardless of the plea that he went into the fight with an injured hand and arm. For 1927, at least, Delaney stock was on the downgrade, victory over Paolino on a foul and a knockout of Paul Berlenbach at Chicago haven't sent it soaring to any extent.

If Delaney can shake off these tendencies of being an "in and outer" he has an excellent opportunity again to leap to the head of the heavyweight contending list. The door is wide open, with few real rivals crowding the threshold.

Jack Sharkey, with an injured hand, is an uncertain quantity. So is Paolino. Tommy Heeney is rugged enough and a much-improved boxer but hardly measures up to Delaney in all-around skill. Johnny Risko is hardly more than troublesome. Few alarms and excursions will occur if Phil Scott, the British heavyweight, returns in an effort to extend his streak of remaining vertical in two successive American bouts.

Any time Phil McGraw, the Detroit florist, steps into a ring the punches are bound to fly. Quite frequently, as well, some one hits the floor.

No exception is anticipated when McGraw battles Sid Terris tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in the third encounter between these lightweight rivals in four months.

Terris was on the floor about a half-dozen times in the two previous bouts, but the East Side dancing master got an even break, gaining one decision and losing the other fight on a foul.

On his return to England, Phil Scott somewhat bitterly remarked that the "only way to win over there (in America) was to knock 'em out."

Phil evidently failed to study some of the scoring charts of New York referees and judges this year. Some of the latest published exhibits of these indicate that victory is more likely than not to go to the boxer who has spent the most time on the floor without actually hearing the count of "ten."

Howard Jones of Southern California.

The speaker of the day, however, was Alonzo Stagg, the veteran gridiron coach of Chicago, who talked on the unification of the country through the medium of football.

Stagg said he did not believe that any one section of the country has a football edge on the others, that the material is pretty evenly distributed and that high-powered coaching is to be found in all conferences.

The Chicago mentor said he disagreed with those who believe they grow bigger and better athletes on the Pacific Coast than elsewhere, although he admitted they are plenty good out here. He will be a visitor in Southern California until after the East-West game between Pittsburg and Stanford.

Southerners Have Plenty of Dash in Workout

Westerners Will Depend on Deceptive Attack

day, but from yesterday's practice we should say that Messrs. Jones, Bagshaw and Spaulding certainly have a bunch of adept pupils. Things were going very smoothly and there is every indication that the westerners will be a well-knit offensive unit when Monday rolls around.

WEST HAS SPEED, TOO

And don't think for one minute that the western team lacks speed. With Oak Pendleton, Whittier captain, or Jim Tunney, Loyola flash, calling signals and carrying the ball, the westerners have two of the fleetest backs in captivity. Good as Bounding Bill Spears undoubtedly is, he can't be faster than Pendleton, for that's virtually a physical impossibility. Oak was whizzing around the ends and slashing through tackle in scandalous fashion yesterday morning and we're still willing to stick by our declaration of some days ago that he's likely to be the West's outstanding ball carrier Monday.

At present the southern line looks faster than the western forward wall, but this is only our personal opinion and we may be mistaken—although such a thing is not likely. The southerners are no more powerful than their foes in the line and will be outweighed in the backfield.

Howard Jones has made no changes in the western team, keeping Pendleton at quarter, Gene Cook and Manuel Lararreta at halfbacks and either Louie Tesreau or Harold Merritt at full. The line remains the same, except that Hodgens of Oregon may beat somebody out for a guard berth, while Robbins of Oregon State was a spectator yesterday due to an injured leg. Beck of U.C.L.A. and Kimmell of Whittier alternated at the other wing position opposite Moser of U.S.C.

SOUTH LOOKS SMOOTHER

The southerners look like a smoother running outfit, but this may be because Jones is drilling the westerners chiefly in dummy scrimmage, while the Dixie boys are merely running signals. There's no way of telling on this point until the game comes off.

Coaches Wade, McGugin and Alexander made a few changes in their eleven yesterday, but most of them are only temporary. Dodson of Tennessee gave up his fullback post to Middlekauff of Florida. There is little difference in the two players. Both are husky chaps. Middlekauff captained his team this season.

Roy Estes of Georgia called signals for the second team so Meredith of Tulane took Roy's halfback berth on the regular squad. Estes and Spears are the only quarterbacks on Rose Bowl line to spend some of his time warbling the numerals. Roy is a lead-pipe cinch to start the game.

The other two changes occurred in the line, where Cardwell of Virginia went in at right tackle in place of Hood of Georgia Tech. Hood is very hefty, while Cardwell is of the faster charging type. Both will see plenty of action. Butcher of Tennessee sat in at center for Sharpe of Vanderbilt, who snapped the ball back for the reserves. The former was picked on most of the all-Southern teams. Sharpe has played with Spears for three years and the two should form a nifty combination.

Fans who plan on staying at home to listen to Monday's game over the radio had better step up and buy their tickets immediately. The game will not be "on the air." There are plenty of thirty and thirty-five-yard line seats still available at the B. H. Dyas store.

Goofy Bowdoin and Ole Robbins, guard and end on the southern and western teams, are here to stay permanently. Bowdoin hails from Alabama and aims to be a coach. Robbins comes from Oregon. Anybody wanting to secure one or two wide-awake young men in any line of business should communicate with these two chaps.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY

AMOS ALONZO STAGG is certainly an interesting character. He is a landmark of football history and is one of the mighty few coaches in the country who doesn't want to coach any place but the university where he has coached for a good many years. What's more he doesn't have to worry about having to coach any place else because the University of Chicago would pretty nearly quit football in preference to being without Stagg. He gets only fair material but his teams always battle and they are noted for their way of rising to great occasions and doing their stuff with unexpected success. His team this year, with really only one man who could be called a star, was a real sensation, beating such outfits as Pennsylvania and Ohio State.

Stagg tells a funny one about this man House, who was pretty generally regarded as the best center in the Big Ten and who was recently voted the Chicago Tribune trophy annually awarded to the most valuable player. He plays center for Stagg and when he was elected captain of the team he decided that he would be a better player and a better captain if he didn't read the newspapers with their articles about how good and how bad this or that player might be. So, according to Stagg, House went the entire season without reading the football news and, strangely enough, was awarded the highest honor he could win by the officials of a paper which he hadn't read.

There can be no doubt whatsoever as to the popular excitement over the State championship prep football game between Bakersfield and Fullerton high schools. This game will be played Tuesday at the Coliseum, just twenty-four hours after the all West-all South game which will be played in the same place on Monday. The merchants and other populace of these two bustling municipalities are all atwitter with excitement and will be down in considerable numbers to see the affair. Those who saw the Covina-Bakersfield final two years ago in the Coliseum will admit that these prep games are hard to beat and this promises to be no exception.

We aren't very much surprised over C. C. Pyle's invasion of the Coast with four of his prize football teams from the pro circuit. After a promoter has seen anything like the crowd that turned out to see Red Grange do his stuff a couple of years ago, he never gets over trying to draw more crowds of the same size. Our guess is that the outfits headed by Grange, Wilson, Nevers, Friedman & Co. will draw rather heavily because those are magic names and the local bugs will want to see how Michigan's great forward passer looks in action against such well-known quantities as Wilson, Grange and Nevers, all of whom have done their stuff here before.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PREXY PREDICTS BIG BALL YEAR

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Dec. 22. (AP)—President R. S. Barnard, new head of the American League, thinks that 1928 will be baseball's greatest year.

The former head of the Cleveland American is here for a few days' vacation, after the joint major league meetings in New York last week. His prediction is based on the many changes in management and the interest created by new faces in many clubs.

Advocating the universal draft, now discarded by the minor leagues and the subject of considerable controversy, he said: "Fans and even sport writers do not understand the draft and therefore often get the wrong impression.

"The right of a ball player to advance in his profession and secure adequate compensation is one of the corner-stones of organized baseball and should always remain as such.

"At the present time with the modified draft there are leagues that do not permit the right of selection and that halts the advance of a player. I believed that when the magnates met together to talk over the draft all leagues will submit to the universal draft, which gives them a higher price for the drafted players, besides giving the players the right to advance themselves by being selected for the major leagues."

RABBIT PUNCHES BY PAUL LOWRY

came prepared to eat, not to speak.

The occasion was a little luncheon in honor of the coaching crews of the all-South and all-West teams which will clash at the Coliseum next Monday. The intellectuals ate and then they talked after being introduced by big Jack McCord, who played football at Illinois and now is one of our most prized gridiron officials.

Each walked off with something in the way of forensic honors. Spaulding for his bull voice; "Baggy" Bagshaw for passing the bull; Howard Jones for being an accessory to "Baggy's" guilt; Wallace Wade for the smoothness of his delivery; Bill Alexander for brevity, and "Col." Dan McGugin for his joke telling.

But if the meeting captured the day was Stagg, the veteran. His impromptu talk was meaty, punchy. His thirty-eight years as a football coach have taught him many things. His thoughts are worth digesting. He talked of the gridiron as a vast melting pot of football as a uniting of athletes North and South and East and West. He says the mold is much the same all over.

Stagg has the reputation of being one of the greatest coaches in the country. He must be to develop the teams he puts on the field. Chicago draws from a male student body of approximately 900 for its gridiron teams. Other institutions of the "Big Ten" have three and four times as many students. Chicago is to other midwest schools as Occidental and Pomona are to U.S.C.

But above all else, Stagg develops character. He is renowned for it and praised for it. For example, his quarterback star this year, John McDonough, is a Phi Beta Kappa, and has just received a Rhodes scholarship. His center, Rouse, who was named on several all-star teams, will be an associate instructor next year and is studying police administration. That's the Stagg type of man for you.

Stagg says nonscouting of football teams will never be a success, because we have not reached the level where we can all play square and straight. He foresees that level in the dim and distant future.

He says Chicago and Pennsylvania had a nonscouting agreement this year, and that it was lived up to, but after this game, and when Chicago was playing its final conference tilt of the season, Lou Young, the Penn coach, wired Stagg for reservations in the press stand for two scouts. Lou is going back to the old system. Penn lost four games this year. He doesn't think much of the system, because even if you want to play straight some ardent supporter will insist on rushing in with some secret stuff about your opponent. You don't accept it, but you're under the cloud of suspicion, anyway.

Both have impressive records, with Dundee, a brother of Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, slightly more experienced. Vargas has won eight of his nine fights here and went to a draw in the other.

Newsboy Brown Arrives Sunday for Mcoy Bout

Newsboy Brown will arrive in Los Angeles next Sunday morning. This was the announcement of Matchmaker Wad Wadhams yesterday after receiving an announcement from Leo P. Flynn, manager of Brown.

Brown will need ten days to get in trim for his fight with Johnny McCoy, world's flyweight champion, on January 8 at the Olympic.

Wadhams also announced that Joe Woods, heavyweight, managed by George Blake, would appear in the semi-wind-up against Tommy Randall. The weight is 190 pounds and the distance six rounds.

Randall is a heavy prospect who made a name for himself by acting as sparring partner for Jack Sharkey when the Boston linguist was training for the Jack Dempsey bout last summer. Randall is said to have had Sharkey on the floor a couple of times.

Huerta Evans, the L.A.A.C. bantam who made a big hit the other night when he defeated Johnny Cruz, will box Charley Sullivan in the special event. Sullivan whipped Tommy Milton in his last Olympic appearance.

Ben Golden, another L.A.A.C. boy, will be on the card. McCoy opened his training yesterday at the Manhattan gymnasium.

Wood and Jacobs Only Returning Vets

Expects Schulmerich and Berger to Shine

BY BOB RAY

Local baseball fans journey to Wrigley Field next spring to see Krug's Angels, about the only thing that they'll recognize will be the black "LA" on the Seraphs' white unies.

"Truck" Hannah and Gus Sandberg will once again thrill the natives with their base-running, but the catching department will be the only section of the Angel roster that is not bulging with new faces, or at least with the club started on their disastrous dive from championship to the cellar abyss last year. The Cherubs would like to fix up a nifty young backstop, since that these individuals lower than the proverbial snake's. But Truck and Gus have a pretty handy pair of receivers despite their lack of batting resembling speed, on which to depend if their lack of batting resembling speed can be overcome by all the young pitchers that the Angels are bringing to camp.

WHAT TO RETURN

As to the subject of these pitchers, Carl "Cy" Wright will be about the only returning veteran Seraph hurler, for Weathersby and Bruce Cunningham were with the Seraphs for a time, but nobody expected that they can be counted on. The rest are newcomers, Wilbur Peters, Ray Kolp and Glenn Gabler never having been with the Angels until during the latter part of the race.

Kolp, obtained from Baltimore in the deal that sent Ike Boone and Wels to the Orioles, will work out the present season pitching corps and is a cinch to be on the Patrick payroll when the Angels still have their pitching workhorse out for another year. An experienced hurler, so he is obtained it will mean only one less in the field.

Kolp will be among those in the infield and will once again be a second base, while Ray Brubaker and the other returning inner guards, Jake celebrated last year by breaking his leg, will return in the spring he is to be counted as a new player.

STRICTLY NEW

Two of the Angel infield will be strictly new, Chandler Senator shortstop first-sacker who left the Cubs as part payment on the option on the services of Cunningham, will take over shortstop duties that gave Bruce so much trouble after he broke his leg. Tolson is expected to be the pill around the keystone sack that should make him a popular individual. Bobby Jones will cover third base. Bobby had a run with the Missions last season, but they can't obtain believe that a bit of California sunshine will do him and produce a good man to be further Detroit interest in having Hogan are still angling for a first baseman, but if they can't obtain the services of that Ray Jacobs will likely be retained.

The outfield the Seraphs have found returning, with Walter Schulmerich and Woody Wood pumpsters, the only others on the roster. Hood is the batting leader and figures to top last year's batting average. If he can't get out in the outer garden, he used at first base a time or two when there was about as much chance of a polar bear getting a hit as Hood has hitting suffering from a batting slump.

BURNING SLUGGER

Hood is expecting a lot of Berger after he wound up the season last year. Berger is a burning slugger and with Schulmerich and Wood to protect him the kid will drive in a lot of runs over the left-field fence. Hood admits that Berger's batting eye is good, but he believes that Walter will overcome his fault in the spring training period.

Berger proved while he was with the Seraphs last season that he is the best center-fielder in the league. The former Oregon star reminded fans of Tris Speaker in the way he went back for fly balls, but also impressed with his batting so much so that he was signed up with a .323 average. Berger changed Schulmerich's batting stance near the close of the season, and Wes's batting average from .300 was respectable .323 and showed up when the Angels are still pretty young, but have a promising prospect. Woody has a good left-hand hitter of the type that has a lot of speed going for him. In this respect he is like Lloyd Waner.

It is announce that they're looking for another left-hand hitter, and when they get him they will have one more new face to look over.

Millionaires Down Maroons

The Hollywood Millionaires sprung what is an upset in local ice circles last night, when they defeated Lloyd Cook's Maroons, 4 to 3, in a fast match played at the Winter Garden. The Maroons played fast throughout and as a team Hollywood players went to pieces, Jacobs, Comber and Harris being the victims. Jacobs scored in the first period, Comber and Harris scored for the Millionaires in the second session. Jacobs scored the final period, but the Millionaires won out with a shot proved to be the winning one for Hollywood.

FLEET SPORT NEWS

BY FRANK T. HARVEY

Jimmy Pake, light-heavyweight boxer from the flagship California, who recently defeted Milt Webber, all-Navy light-heavyweight ace and who lost his chance to fight for the battle-fleet championship Wednesday afternoon by default when he was unable to get a shore boat to the U.S.S. Mississippi last Saturday night in time to fight Eddie Bringhurst of the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, will begin an invasion on Southland rings immediately, according to Chief Boatswain's Mate Bobby Allen of the flagship.

The battle fleet hockey league which is being sponsored by "Hap" O'Connor, who has made arrangements for fleet teams to meet in competition, will start in earnest after the first of the year, he reported yesterday.

That the sailors will take to the ice sport was manifest the other night when a large delegation from the battleships journeyed to the Palais de Glace rink here to witness a game between two teams made up from the crew of the U.S.S. Tennessee.

Billy Norman, lightweight boxer from the flagship California, under the management of Chief Boatswain's Mate Bobby Allen, is fast coming to the front ranks in local boxing circles. Engineman has won two out of his last three encounters ashore by knockouts and Wednesday night bagged Wallace Duran, Long Beach lightweight, in three rounds at Wilmington.

Basketball teams have been formed aboard various ships of the United States battle fleet base here and competition will commence immediately at the San Pedro Y.M.C.A. The winners of the base force title will probably play the battleship divisions champions at the close of the season.

Sailor Stafford, heavyweight boxer, who has been absent from the ring since his discharge from the navy last year, has re-enlisted again aboard the battleship West Virginia and will resume his ring activities at once.

Athletes from the battleship New York, which arrived here yesterday from the east coast, will commence training at once for coming meetings.

The east coast sailors are said to have several crack athletes among them and members of the battle fleet are anxiously awaiting to get a glimpse of them in practice. The New York is entered in the battleship basketball league and will have a team representing them in the baseball league, which opens later.

Joe McKenzie, lightweight boxing champion of the battleship divisions last year when he was stationed on the U.S.S. Oklahoma, returned yesterday aboard the New York, after an absence of nearly a year.

Because of departure of the fifth battleship division to San Francisco on January 3 for a ten-day visit, the fleet baseball season, which was originally scheduled to open on January 8, has been advanced until the latter part of the month. The ball clubs, which have been practicing for the past six weeks, are arranging to play a few practice games with civilian nines, and will be in excellent shape when the competitive season opens.

Boston Price of the battleship Tennessee, coach of the Rebel basketball team, has the squad running in perfect shape at present, and should the quintet keep up their present speed, Price will be favored to cop the fleet hoop title this year.

It was reported yesterday that "Tiny" Flores, flyweight of the battleship West Virginia, who defeated Pedro Manaella, all-navy champion, Wednesday for the battle fleet 108-pound title, will be sent to Annapolis where he will be instructed by "Spike" Webb, coach of the navy boxing team.

Young Bello Wins Battle

Young Bello copped a ten-round decision over Tony Cruz in the main event of last night's boxing show at the Pasadena arena. Although there were no knockdowns, Bello led all the way and was clearly entitled to the nod.

Billy Red Wells was knocked down for the count of eight in the first round of his fight with Ray Regalado and the latter had no difficulty grabbing the decision. It was a six-round fight. Frank Holland defeated Young Pico in four rounds. Jack Ryan won the opener in a hurry, rocking Chris Martinez to sleep in the first round.

TROJAN TOSSERS WIN FROM FRESNO STATE

HEAVYWEIGHTS GET THE CASH IN FIGHT GAME, SAYS PEGLER

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—When the senile Young Griffo died a short time ago it was widely observed that he had been born too soon and that this was too bad. If Griffo had been eighteen in 1925, so I heard tell at the New Garden, he would have earned $1000 for every ten spot made in the age of the nickel beer when he was the cleverest prize fighter of his time and he would have had a tapestried couch to die on instead of the sway-backed iron bedstead on which he wheezed his last. Moreover, he might have expired in an elevator apartment in West End avenue, not in a basement in Hell's Kitchen, as though the weary man's pleasure or pangs at parting could have been enhanced or mitigated on a sliding scale in direct proportion to the rent.

Hearing this, and realizing that money is the one dependable stimulant to competition in all lines of endeavor, and realizing further that competition creates champions, I wonder why it is that there have been so few legitimate champions in most of the divisions of prize fighting in the last few years and why there is at present not a single genuine champion in any of the six classes below the rank of light-heavyweight. Of course, there are claimants to these titles, but the French Riviera abounds in genteel bums who make equally plausible claims to be the kings of Portugal, France and all the Russias.

MICKEY WALKER'S CASE

The case of Mickey Walker is typical of all six who claim the middleweight, welterweight, lightweight, featherweight, bantamweight and flyweight titles, but who aren't champions either because they don't belong to the classes they claim to dominate or because they can't lick anyone above fourth place in those classes. Walker got the title by an official outrage against Tiger Flowers and defended it against the Tiger's return challenge by the natural process of outliving him, so actually the middleweight championship escheated to the middleweight class when the Tiger died. But what I am getting at is that there is no such romantic heritage available for the prize fighters of the minor classes as the popular imagination conceives. I am sure of this because I have never known prize fight managers to ignore opportunities to acquire this kind of money and yet I meet quite a few of them nowadays with fairly representative fighters on the leash who have nothing in their pockets to jingle but their keys.

FEW FIGHT FAN CENTERS

There are only a few centers in the country where the customers will pay appreciable money under any circumstances to see the prize fighters fight or where as the spirit happens to move them. One of these centers was California and yet, when Joe Dundee, the claimant of the welterweight championship, was guaranteed $60,000 for a fight out yonder, the entire gate receipts didn't equal his price, so he absconded, whereat the customers smashed the furniture and prize fighting became more despised than usual. Chicago is another center and I recall having noted sometime ago that the gross aggregate receipts of all the clubs under the jurisdiction of the Illinois prize fight commission fell far short of the gate at one of Mr. Tex Rickard's less pretentious heavyweight shows in the Yankee ball yard. Since this comparison was made Mr. Rickard produced the Dempsey-Tunney affair in Chicago and, of course, drew millions, but that was due to special circumstances quite apart from the merits of the prize fight and since then the receipts drawn by Mr. Jim Mullen's shows have been meagre or less.

RICKARD FEATURES HEAVIES

Milwaukee, St. Paul, Indianapolis, New Orleans, Boston, Buffalo, Rochester, Philadelphia, and the Jersey towns are even more conservative and this leaves only New York where the garden club, known as the big house, is the only one that keeps solvent at all times. Having other sources of revenue a few years ago, Rickard was glad to produce elimination and championship shows in the smaller classes. Once he guaranteed Joe Lynch and little Jack Sharkey $10,000 each for a non-championship bantamweight bout. But for more than a year he has used the minor cities only to vary the program of heavyweight and light heavyweight bouts.

OIL IMPORT TAX MOVE STARTED

Action Aimed to Bar Foreign Petroleum Products

Independent Tank Operators Sponsoring Campaign

California Producers Said to Frown on Proposition

A campaign to secure legislation placing a prohibitive tariff on foreign petroleum products, resulting in discriminatory duties favoring California oil, has been launched in Congress by independent American tanker operators, it was revealed by propaganda received yesterday at the local port. Established American oil companies are prepared to block the campaign, it was said, as un-American; though such a tariff would directly affect the value of all California production.

The form letter, which is being sent to all Senators and Representatives, points out that the Tariff Act of 1922 carries mineral oils and all petroleum products on the free list, but that "since 1922, there has been a considerable change in the source of supply of oils, so much so that American industry might suffer considerably under the provisions of this paragraph, if permitted to remain unaltered."

ARGUMENT MADE

The letter further says that since 1922 large oil fields have been developed in Venezuela and other countries bordering the Caribbean Sea, and that since cost of production (due to American standards) is so much higher in the California and Texas fields, the American oil industry is thereby greatly handicapped.

Foreign tanker operators pay lower seamen's wages and have lower operating standards, says the letter, thereby being able to haul South American petroleum to American Atlantic ports at such a low rate that American tankers are unable to compete.

"The results, as we see it," adds the communication, "will eventually be that Venezuela and other foreign countries will control the Atlantic Coast markets and eventually displace American tankers, the Texas and California oil producers not alone suffering, but the American tank-steamship owner also.

"An American tanker of 10,000 tons or less requires a rate of approximately 72 cents per barrel of forty-two gallons to transport oil from California to New York. The same tanker would require a rate of approximately 29 cents from Texas to New York. These rates are the minimum rates required to enable owner to set aside 6 per cent on his investment and a 6 per cent depreciation.

"The situation as we see it is a grave one."

DUTY FIXED

Specifically, the letter proposes that a duty of 53 cents per barrel be placed on oil transported by foreign tankers, or the difference between 72 cents, cost of transportation of California oil in American tankers, and 19 cents, cost of transportation of Venezuela oil to New York by foreign tankers.

"We believe our own government is also vitally interested in this in that we figure every ton of oil imported displaces that much tonnage moving from California via the Panama Canal, and naturally deprives our government of Panama Canal tolls which it would collect on our tankers, were the protection such as would permit California to compete on the Atlantic Coast."

Officials of established California oil producing companies, many of them owning vast tanker fleets, declare that such legislation, if passed, would result in retaliatory measures being adopted by foreign governments owning tanker fleets. It would also effect unfavorable discrimination against all American oil-producing districts other than California, it was said.

NEW TURN IN CASE OF STEAMER LAWRENCE

The long list of difficulties that have beset the American tramp steamer C. H. Lawrence, Jr., took a new turn yesterday when the thirty-one Arabian and Filipino members of her crew refused to accept $7000 which a firm of attorneys aver is the full amount of wages due.

The crew of the vessel, signed on at New York in June, 1927, as certified Asiatic seamen, have served since that date and have received less than one month's pay since. They signed articles, they declare, for a four-months' voyage to Kobe, where the ship was to be delivered to Japanese buyers, the seamen then to be given free transportation to Aden, Arabia.

The C. H. Lawrence, after many difficulties at sea, finally reached Los Angeles Harbor to load case oil for the Orient. Her repair bills mounted and were not paid. She was libeled and at a United States Marshal's sale was sold to the Security Trust Bank of Maryland for $16,000. Later, officers and crew secured an order for payment of wages from the United States District Court at Los Angeles.

The vessel is still at anchor, without cargo or stores. Shipping men point out that the six-months' period in which alien seamen from the Atlantic barred zone may remain in the United States, under United States immigration laws, is also nearly exhausted.

Christmas will mean no holiday for Capt. Harry H. Birkholm, district manager for the General Steamship Corporation, who will have four vessels to arrive and sail at the general terminal over the week-end. Yesterday the Norwegian steamer Leikanger loaded out 1200 tons for South American east coast ports and the British motorship Silverlarch took aboard a similar cargo for Malayan ports in the Kerr line's Java-Pacific service.

Today the Swedish steamer Boren is due from the north to load out case oil, canned goods and borax for Australia and New Zealand. Christmas Day the Italian liner Leme, in Mediterranean-Pacific trade of the Navigazione Libera Triestina, is due from Europe with 2000 tons for local discharge, while the French steamer Indiana will also arrive with freight from Havre and Bordeaux.

Highly satisfactory progress in the work of removing Dead Man's Island at the head of the main channel was reported yesterday by Barrett O. Hindes, vice-president in charge of operations of the San Francisco Bridge Company, following a two-day survey of the work accomplished by the concern's forces here.

The north levee was completed last night and work will be started immediately on construction of the east levee, more than a half-mile in length and requiring about four months of labor, Mr Hindes said. When the east levee is completed, thus forming the triangle of the new man-made island, actual removal of Dead Man's Island and its transfer to the triangular area outside the 1000-foot line will be started. Mr. Hindes will return tomorrow to San Francisco, direct the work on the $1,300,000 project being under Capt. E. E. Matteson.

One hundred and eight first cabin passengers, most of them Hawaiian residents coming to the mainland for Christmas, will arrive from Honolulu at noon today aboard the Lasco liner City of Los Angeles. The steamer will also bring in thirty-six steerage passengers and a quantity of island freight, including 7000 cases of canned pineapples.

Among her passengers are Cecily Cunha, noted California swimmer; A. F. Frudden, with Mrs. Frudden and a party of eighteen passengers returning from a tour of the islands in celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Frudden's golden wedding anniversary, and William F. Schulte, of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

The Bokuyo Maru in the Nippon Yusen Kaisha's triangular South America-California-Orient service, brought in from Shanghai and Yokohama seventeen cabin passengers and several hundred tons of freight. Among her arrivals was Tatsuke Kinzo, noted Japanese agriculturist, here for a tour of the United States to study American farming methods, and T. Wakabayashi, newly appointed Japanese Consul to Panama, and Mrs. Wakabayashi.

HOLIDAY TRADE GAIN FORECAST

Total Points to Improvement Over 1926 Season

Broadway Reports Increase in Toys, Novelties

Barker Bros. Also Running Far Ahead of 1926

Holiday trade in the Los Angeles area, after a rather slow beginning, has assumed larger proportions in the past ten days and the total volume of Christmas business this year will show a marked improvement over what was considered a prosperous 1926 holiday season, according to a survey made yesterday of leading retail establishments in this territory.

The Broadway Department Store is experiencing its best holiday season, according to Arthur Strasburger, vice-president and merchandising manager. Most of the departments in the store, particularly toy and novelty divisions, are showing an increase over a year ago in aggregate sales, the gain averaging approximately 10 per cent.

According to Henry S. McKee, president of Barker Brothers, Inc., the company will close the best year in history with sales for 1927 aggregating more than $16,250,000, an increase of nearly $1,000,000 over the record made in 1926. Holiday business is showing a substantial increase over last year, Mr. McKee stated.

SAFEWAY GAINS

Safeway Stores are continuing to show an increase in sales from month to month, according to a statement made yesterday by Edward Dale, vice-president in charge of Southern California operations. Sales of the same stores in operation a year ago are showing an increase of approximately 25 per cent over 1926. However, a large portion of this gain is attributed to the extensive merchandising campaign which the system has been conducting through the newspapers this year and does not represent the general trend of the grocery holiday business, Mr. Dale said.

Business in men's and ladies' clothing lines is decidedly higher than a year ago, due primarily to the much cooler weather of the past week, according to an executive of Bullock's and the Innes Shoe Company reports shoe sales also at a higher level.

BEST ON RECORD

The current season is the best on record from the standpoint of volume in the meat lines for Young's Market, it was stated yesterday by George Young, president of the company. Bishop & Co. also reports greater candy sales this year than ever before, adding that "if we had any more business we couldn't handle it."

Although sales in stationery and office supply lines were slow in showing the usual holiday improvement, business has increased decidedly in the past two weeks, and the volume for the season will be substantially larger than a year ago, according to J. Howard Payne of H. S. Crocker Company.

Payment Omitted by Glass Concern; Fidelity-Phenix Raises Regular Rate

NEW YORK, Dec 22. (AP)—Directors of the American Window Glass Machine Company have omitted the quarterly dividend of 1 3-4 per cent on the preferred stock, due at this time.

Sharon Steel Hoop Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, which directors had omitted in the preceding quarter, payable January 10 to holders of record the 24th inst. The previous quarterly dividend was paid July 1. The regular quarterly of 2 per cent on the preferred also was authorized payable January 3.

The Central of New Jersey Railroad declared the usual extra dividend of $2 a share payable January 16 to stock of record January 3. Action on the regular quarterly of $2 is due late in January.

Directors of Hobart Trust Company, controlled by New Jersey Bankers' Securities Company, declared a stock dividend of 100 per cent and a regular quarterly of 3 per cent. Capital will be increased from $500,000 to $1,000,000. Washington Trust Company, also controlled by the New Jersey Bankers' Securities Company, declared a quarterly dividend of 3 per cent.

Continental Insurance Company declared a semiannual dividend of $1 on the new $10 par stock, exchanged on the basis of 3 3-4 shares for one of $25 par, payable January 10 to stock of record the 31st inst. This places the stock on an annual dividend basis of $2, equivalent to $7.50 a share on the old stock prior to the split-up and which paid $6 annually.

The annual dividend rate on stock of Fidelity-Phenix Insurance Company was raised from $4 to $5 a share with a semiannual disbursement of $2.50 a share, payable January 10 to holders of record the 31st inst.

London Daily Radio

LONDON, Dec. 22. (By wireless)—Markets were especially buoyant today and the market early was on tiptoe concerning the government conversion offer announced late today. Improvement in rails continued but industrials which have been the chief feature of the year were still maintaining their record.

British, American and Canadian Celanese, tobacco shares, Mond Nickel and Gramophones were all booming.

Greyhound Racing Company's shares were weaker as a result of the indication that the government is disposed to check the betting mania.

PACIFIC GAS RECLASSIFIES

Plans for Sale of 5 1-2 Per Cent Preferred to Obtain Cheaper Money; Rights to Follow Soon

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Readjustment of the Pacific Gas and Electric capitalization to provide for the issuance of lower dividend-paying preferred stocks follows the program adopted early this year by the Southern California Edison Company. Aside from the sale of bonds, the Northern California utility has been relying on the distribution of 6 per cent preferred and on the issuance of subscription rights for 8 per cent common to raise the capital funds for new development.

Reclassified, Pacific Gas will have a capital structure, according to the announcement yesterday from San Francisco, that will permit financing as far as preferred stock is concerned at a saving of ½ per cent. The plans call for the creation of both 5½ and 5 per cent preferred stocks, but it is likely that only the 5½ per cent shares will be marketed for the next several months.

RIGHTS FORECAST

As with the Edison company, the intention of Pacific Gas to sell a new series of preferred does not preclude the issuance of more common stock from time to time. Common stockholders, in fact, can expect subscription rights at frequent intervals, since it is considered good practice to maintain a certain ratio between the various classes of securities in the capital structure.

In the past the Pacific Gas management has been more liberal with subscription rights than the Edison company. Another offering of rights soon is forecast in the supplemental announcement from San Francisco that the company will ask authority from the Railroad Commission to sell $6,460,000 of common stock at par. It is understood that the stock will be offered in the ratio of one for ten, which would give the rights a theoretical value of $2.18 on the basis of a market price of 49 for the stock.

At the beginning of 1927 the Pacific Gas capitalization totaled $286,504,847. Of this amount bonds represented $170,209,800, preferred stock $63,429,932, and common stock $52,865,115. The ratio of bonds to total capitalization decreased from 61.1 per cent at the beginning of 1926 to 59.4 per cent at the close of the year.

RATIOS SHOWN

Stock ratios at the beginning of this year were somewhat below the theoretical normal. Six per cent preferred, totaling $63,429,932, represented 22.1 per cent of total capitalization, and common stock, amounting to $52,865,115, was 18.4 per cent of the total. Since the first of the year, however, these ratios have been changed by the issuance of new shares. The preferred stock has been sold continuously through the customer-ownership campaign, while the common, in February, was increased by the offering of subscription rights for approximately $4,750,000 par value.

Southern California Edison, while preparing for the sale of 5½ per cent preferred early in the year, did not begin on actual distribution until a short time ago. The date for inauguration of the campaign was advanced when the supply of 6 per cent preferred was exhausted several months ahead of schedule.

Probably it will be some time before 5 per cent stock is offered by the Pacific Coast utilities, although the present trend of the investment market indicates that utility shares bearing a 5 per cent rate would find a good demand. Higher dividend-paying investment stocks are now selling at prices where the yield is usually unattractive.

WALL STREET PARAGRAPHS

[Copyright, 1927, by New York Times]

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The feature of the day among the standard industrials was the lifting of Steel common to new high levels for the recovery. A good deal of selling was encountered on the way up, but a trade involving a block of 1700 shares at 150 appeared to clean up offerings which had been overhanging the market and the passing of that point was followed by a quick rise to around 151 or within less than 10 points of the record levels reached in October. This bulge occasioned fresh talk of special developments pending, but the less hopeful were satisfied that a good measure of the buying represented closing out of short commitments to register tax losses.

Montgomery Ward

Some weeks ago word was passed around that the group working for the rise in Montgomery Ward had set its objective for the stock as 125 before Christmas. There was a favorable groundwork for the advance in the form of record-breaking earnings, the expansion of the company to the chain store field on a large scale and the word of the head of the company who resigned some time ago to take over similar duties with another organization, that extra dividends would be paid as warranted by earnings. At top levels the stock was within a short distance of the aforementioned objective.

National Cash Register

The rise in National Cash Register to new high levels for the year was explained in part by the official estimate that 1927 earnings would exceed those of last year, when $6.14 a share was shown for the Class A stock, or more than double the preferential dividend requirements. Indications for 1928, according to B. Patterson, president, are encouraging both as regards the prospects at home and abroad. The company, he said, is free of funded debt or bank loans and is in strong financial condition.

Corn Products Dividend

For weeks report has been around that Corn Products directors at their December meetings would vote another extra dividend, possibly as large as 75 cents a share, but very likely 50 cents a share. The much-awaited meeting is scheduled for tomorrow, but the action of the stock today might be construed as indicating somewhat less confidence in the higher figure than heretofore. Trading was unusually quiet with the stock moving at levels showing a fractional decline. The last meeting brought an extra of 25 cents a share.

Two Oklahoma Gas Utilities in Merger Trade

R. C. Sharp, president of the Oklahoma Natural Gas Corporation, announced yesterday from the company's general offices in Tulsa, Okla., that negotiations have just been completed whereby the entire gas properties of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company have been purchased.

Mr. Sharp stated that the purchase includes all sources of supply, gathering lines, compressor stations, gas-transmission pipe lines, gate-metering stations and distribution systems, pointing out that this includes all property of every kind used in natural gas service.

The Oklahoma Natural Gas Corporation devotes itself exclusively to the production, transmission and distribution of natural gas. With the acquisition of these properties it will render all these elements of service to approximately fifty cities and towns within Oklahoma, and soon is forecast in the supplemental announcement from San Francisco that the company will ask authority from the Railroad Commission to sell $6,460,000 of common stock at par. It is understood that the stock will be offered in the ratio of one for ten, which would give the rights a theoretical value of $2.18 on the basis of a market price of 49 for the stock.

At the beginning of 1927 the Pacific Gas capitalization totaled $286,504,847. Of this amount bonds represented $170,209,800, preferred stock $63,429,932, and common stock $52,865,115. Good Grade Fat Cattle Strong

Good beef cattle in all grades and classes sold during the week at strong prices, according to Western Cattle Marketing Association. Fed cattle, tributary to San Francisco and Los Angeles, are taken as fast as ready at stronger prices than a week ago. Good, fat steers are selling in sizeable strings at from $10.50-$11 f.o.b., carrying up to $150 freight. Good cows carrying $115 freight bring $7.50 f.o.b. cars.

The packers, the association reports, predict a slow market until after the first of the year, which carries some merit, as thousands of pounds of poultry are used through the holidays, which will shorten the demand for beef during the next week or ten days. However, the price should remain steady.

STEEL OUTLOOK GROWS BETTER

Activity Cheering in View of Year-end Handicap

Orders for Finished Product Mitigating Factor

First Quarter Pig Iron Buying Continues Heavy

CLEVELAND, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—Iron Trade Review this week says: Activity in the iron and steel markets is heartening, considering year-end handicaps. Specifications from users of finished steel against low-priced fourth-quarter contracts are mitigating the December tendency to let down in production, while first-quarter bookings in both big iron and finished steel continue heavy.

High expectations for the first quarter have received further support. Quiet negotiation for freight cars is greater than the 11,000 cars openly incurred for. Some foundries on automotive work have never covered more heavily on first-quarter pig iron. Building steel inquiry is seasonally high. Scrap prices are raising in most districts.

BUYING DEVELOPS

Considerable tonnage of heavy finished steel, some of it for stock, has been developed by the firm price stand taken by the mills. There is less talk of another advance of $1 per ton since Bethlehem Steel Company established basing points on heavy steel at its eastern plants and named 1.90 cents and 1.95 cents, but buyers no longer hesitate to cover. The stiffening tendency in some of the lighter steel products is as yet more gesture than fact, because considerable first-quarter business was booked at recent low levels.

In closing on 80,000 tons of pig iron Cleveland blast furnaces interests have brought their bookings in the past five weeks up to 234,000 tons. December sales at Detroit are at the highest rate in many months there as at Cleveland automotive tonnage dominates. Sales at Chicago are considerably over November. Heavy shipments at Birmingham are reducing stocks. St. Louis sales total 14,000 tons. Pig iron prices generally are more stable.

COKE CUT PENDS

Some first-quarter arrangements for beehive furnace coke have been priced $2.85 to $2.90. If wages at coke ovens are reduced from $6 daily to $5 January 1, the proportionate reduction of coke would be 34 cents, bringing these contracts in line with fourth-quarter ones at $3.15 to $3.25. Distress sales have been made in furnace coke at $2.65 and in foundry at $3.25.

All markets have been touched by the improvement in heavy finishes steel. Pittsburgh bar mills this week have had the best specifications and orders in over five months. Firmness is manifest in plates, shapes and bars at 1.80 cents, Pittsburgh and 1.90 cents Chicago, and in plates at 1.95 cents Coatesville.

Practically all sheet makers are quoting 2.10 cents Pittsburgh, on blue annealed, 2.90 cents on black and 3.75 cents on galvanized sheets, but so much first-quarter business was closed at lower levels that these prices have not been tested.

The Iron Trade Review composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products stands unchanged this week at $35.09, the first week since late October that this index has been stationary.

Diamond Electric Votes Initial on Common Stock of 25 Cents a Share

Dividends will be inaugurated on the common stock of the Diamond Electrical Manufacturing Company January 1 at the annual rate of $1 a share, it was announced yesterday by Paul D. Howse, president, following a meeting of the board of directors. The first quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share was declared payable January 1 to stockholders of record on the 24th inst.

Directors of the Diamond company also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 3-4 per cent on the preferred stock, payable on the same date to stockholders of corresponding record. As was anticipated, no action was taken regarding the inauguration of common disbursements at this time.

SPECULATION INDEX ISSUED

Economist Releases Ratio Figure Showing Relation of Exchange Loans to Value of Listed Stocks

[Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—About this time each month the economist of the New York Stock Exchange, J. Edward Meeker, makes up a ratio figure important to follow as an index on speculation. It represents the relation of stock exchange loans to the value of all listed stocks. The new figure is 8.43, a ratio that compares with 8.27 for the month before.

To the uninitiated it may seem sufficient as a measure of stock speculation to follow the stock exchange monthly loans. How inadequate that system is may be seen from the November 30 report. This showed loans for the first time on record above the four billion mark, and in fact at $4,091,896,909. Immediately the impression got around that loans suddenly had been inflated with relation to the stock market. Actually, it now appears the ratio of total loans to total stock values was smaller. The increased listings and increased values of outstanding stocks warranted the gain in loans.

Reduced to simple arithmetic, what this means is that the total of stock exchange loans rose from $3,946,127,274 on October 31, to $4,091,896,909 on November 30. But in that same period the value of listed stocks increased even more proportionately, or from $46,926,970,685 to $48,526,525,927. In consequence the ratio dropped from 8.37 to 8.43.

Usually increases in stock loans come from one of three sources (1) increased listings, (2) increased market values and (3) a transfer of securities from strong banks to speculative envelopes. Obviously nobody can tell by reference to the monthly ratios whether or not the stock market is too high.

What the comparison does show fairly plainly is, however, in this case, that the ratio of loans to total stock values has not become distorted. Early in 1926 previous to the March collapse in the stock market the ratio had climbed to 10.29 indicating a dangerous distortion through pyramiding.

Surprising as it may be the ratio of loans to total stock values has remained close to the present level all through 1927 to date.

This will compare with $1,341,706, or $5.96 a share for 1926. Fourth-quarter earnings were equal to $1.08 a share, against $1.72. Sloan pointed out that with new lines of business in full operation starting with 1928, the company should be able to maintain profitable production throughout the year.

Italy's Return to Gold Arouses Interest

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—Despite profit taking and scattered selling failed to check the progression of the upward price movement in today's stock market. At the final prices shattered many records, particularly, the average of twenty leading industrial shares moved to a new record high for all time for the fifth consecutive day. Trading was active and maintain the terrific pace set in the week, although the day's turnover ran above 2,000,000 shares.

Marking up of the entire list was general, the new top at 121¼, or double the low. Lima Locomotive, Inspiration Copper and Western Union were strong.

Violent fluctuations cut into the insurance shares. Travelers soared 16 points to a new peak at 230 and then broke to 214. Continental Insurance (old) shot up 20 points yesterday, but lost all of the gain today. Bonds closed irregularly higher, with U. S. Steels 5s off ⅛ at 107 and Liberty 4¼s touched 101⅛. Wabash was announced in American Smelting preferred. Kelly Springfield preferred and Oil well Supply.

Rails were quiet and mostly lower, with South Pacific and Missouri Pacific ordinarily inactive, although the latter broke prices on heavy selling. Sterling for the Canadian Dollar followed account.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Outside of the fluctuations in the foreign exchange market, there were no changes in the foreign exchange list. Sterling cables ruled at $4.88 11-32.

Italy's Return to Gold Basis Arouses Interest

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—Heavy profit taking and occasional heavy selling failed to check the recession of the upward price movement in today's stock market. Although final prices disclosed some irregularity, the average of twenty leading industrial shares mounted to a new record high for all time for the fifth consecutive day. Trading failed to maintain the terrific pace set earlier in the week, although the day's sale ran above 2,000,000 shares.

Marking up of the call-money renewal rate to 4½ per cent was generally expected in view of the heavy seasonal demands for currency, but it nevertheless had a tendency to restrict speculation for the advance. Brokers' loans also were a cause of worriment in some quarters, the Federal Reserve figures, announced in the close, showing a record-breaking total of $3,644,331,000, an increase of $85,976,000 above the preceding week. No change was made in the 3½ per cent rediscount rate. Unusually heavy bond financing this week is believed to have contributed to the large loan total.

Italy's return to the gold basis aroused widespread satisfaction in banking quarters as a further indication of the economic rehabilitation of Europe. Italian bonds strengthened perceptibly on a heavy turnover. In the foreign-exchange market the broke about 15 points to bring its rate in line with the stabilized price of nineteen to the American dollar.

Secretary Jardine's optimistic statements on the agricultural outlook found reflection in the brisk demand for the mail-order and other stocks which are likely to benefit through farmers' prosperity. Otherwise today's business and financial news was rather colorless in character.

Copper shares were a rare glint of strength on buying inspired by the cheerful trade outlook. New high prices for the year or longer were established by American Metal, Chile, Cerro De Pasco and Kennecott. Seneca, which announced the reopening of its mines after a long shutdown, sold above $3 a share against a low of $1 earlier in the year. International Nickel soared 3 points to a new high at 89 1-4 and closed near the top.

Paramount Famous Players crowded 115 to a new peak on reports of expanding earnings and an early increase in the dividend. Montgomery Ward moved up about 4 points to a new top at 121½, or double the year's low. Lima Locomotive, International Paper and Western Union also were strong.

Violent fluctuations took place in the insurance shares. Fidelity-Phenix soared 16 points to a new peak at 290 and then broke to 210. Continental Insurance (old,) which soared 30 points yesterday, lost half of that gain today. Rossia closed fractionally higher at 187 after having touched 191½. Weakness was announced in American Woolen preferred, Kelly Springfield 8 per cent preferred and Oil Well Supply.

Rails were quiet and irregular. Both South Shore and Atlantic have been ordinarily inactive, advanced to new peak prices on buying believed to be for the Canadian Pacific Railroad account.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Outside of the break in Italian lira there were no changes of importance in the foreign exchange market. Sterling cables ruled around $4.88 11-32.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

The Maricopa Flats district, south of Maricopa, which has not had much excitement for a year or more, or since the "big brown" shale development died down, has a new sensation in the Signal Gasoline Company's Whiston well, which was brought under control yesterday after spouting mud and gas for three days.

The Whiston well is located about three miles south of Maricopa, not far from the Raas lease of the Standard Oil Company, which was a center of attention about a year ago. The property is surrounded by production, but no wells are producing in its immediate vicinity.

The well originally was started by H. L. Whiston, Long Beach operator, but was taken over by the Signal Gasoline Company several months ago. The well has had showings of oil and gas for several hundred feet, but at 2900 feet picked up a zone twenty or twenty-five feet in thickness, and worth a test.

Before the test could be made, the well got away from the crew, which had not been expecting any such demonstration, and started on a rampage which sprayed the surrounding area of several hundred acres with mud and water. The well was brought under control yesterday, and the crew succeeded in setting a string of pipe and cementing it.

A test of the well will be made about the first of the year, it is said.

Gets Small Well

The Shell Company of California has bought in the Patton-Wilson No 1 well in the deep zone of the Signal Hill field, and is getting about 700 barrels a day, according to official reports. The well is a deepened job, and formerly was on production at about 5000 feet.

Ready for Tset

The Pan American Petroleum Company is preparing to make a test of its Hobson State No. 1 well in the Rincon district, according to field reports. The well is down 2902 feet, with casing set at 2784 feet, leaving eighteen feet of open hole, and the Pan American plans to run pipe to the bottom of the hole before making the new test.

The well sanded up a few days ago after flowing for about forty-eight hours, and making clean oil. The Pan American believes that the eighteen feet of open hole was responsible for the sanding up.

Ready to Test

The Union Oil Company expects to make a test of its Tribe No. 1 well in the Poso Creek district in the next few days. The well is standing comented at 1781 feet, in what is described as a good-looking oil sand.

Start Semiwildcat

The Chicksan Oil Company, which has been one of the most successful operators in the various fields of the Fullerton district, is getting ready for a new well in semiproven territory of the East Coyote Hills field, according to unofficial reports. The Chicksans own a considerable in this field, much of it proven, and part of it unproven.

The Chicksan's outstanding success in the Fullerton fields was its development of the deep zones in the Yorba Linda and Richfield district about three years ago.

Ready to Drill

The Union Oil Company has just about completed the derrick for its Rust No. 1 wildcat well on the Huasna Ranch in San Luis Obispo county, according to official reports. The Union Oil Company and the California Development Company jointly own several thousand acres in the Huasna district, and it is understood that both companies are sharing the expenses of the development campaign.

Quit Kraemer Well

The Pan American Petroleum Company is abandoning its Kraemer well in the Yorba Linda field, according to authentic reports, after drilling the hole to 3576 feet. The Pan American started the well last summer in an effort to extend the deep zone, which the Standard had found on its neighboring Kraemer lease, but apparently the indications were not favorable.

The Pan American Petroleum Company has about 1000 acres under lease in this area, and it is understood that most of it will be quitclaimed as a result of the failure to get the expected showings in the Kraemer No. 1.

At Critical Depth

The Miley Oil Company is reaching the critical depth in its No. 1 well on the beach in the Rincon district, according to field reports. The well is down about 2600 feet, and is getting into zones where the Pan American Petroleum Company has found oil in two of its wells.

Miley's second well is down 2400 feet, and No. 3 has not yet been spudded.

Starts New Wildcat

The Shell Company's interest in the northern part of the State, as a possible producing region, is again demonstrated by its action in starting a second wildcat well in the Half Moon Bay district, down the peninsula from San Francisco. The new well is located on the Butts property, and is about half a mile south of the Cowell No. 1 well, which was the Shell's first deep test in this area. Cowell No. 1 is drilling ahead at about 5000 feet, and so far as known, has had no important showings. The Shell has several thousand acres under lease in this district.

C.C.M.O. Still Fishes

The Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company is still fishing in its Hobson A. No. 1 well, the deepest well in the Rincon district, and the first well to get showings of oil sand. The drilling crew lost a string of tools about a week ago, and so far has been unable to get them out.

Grain Options Rule Lower in Day's Trading

CHICAGO, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—Prebholiday dullness prevailed in the wheat market today, with an easier undertone. The close was at net losses of ⅛@⅝c, with December 1.36⅛@1.36¼ and May 1.39⅝@1.39¾. The government report of the previous day showed an increase of 10.2 per cent in the acreage and had some effect on sentiment. Corn was off ¼@½c, with belated longs selling out toward the last, and the December closed at 84¼ and May at 90⅝@90¾. Oats were ⅛@¼c lower and rye ⅛@⅝c lower.

Liverpool wheat failed to reflect the upturn in American markets on Wednesday and finished ⅛ @¼d higher, with some buying on smaller offerings from Northern Argentina ports at slightly higher prices. Weather in Argentina, however, was again favorable for harvesting, and Crop Observer George C. Bryant of Jackson Brothers, who has just returned from that country, reiterated his belief that the crop would be somewhat in excess of last year. Buenos Aires finished unchanged to ⅛c higher and Rosario unchanged to ⅛c lower. Winnipeg acted heavy and closed ⅛@⅝c lower.

Local shorts were fair buyers of wheat, as there was nothing in the general run of the news to indicate that the market was going to get out of the rut. July wheat was quoted officially for the first time this season, opening at 1.26¾ and was down to 1.25¾ at the last. Export demand at the seaboard was slow, with no sales claimed at the seaboard, although the pool was credited with having disposed of some Manitobas abroad. Argentina exports for the week were estimated at 2,052,000 bushels, against 38,000 bushels last year.

Corn held within a range of ⅛@⅜c on the active deliveries and closed about the bottom, although at one time there was a good rally on short covering and commission-house buying on reports of a good export demand and there was 80,000 bushels sold to exporters at the gulf at 3½c over Chicago May, the best basis of the season, and that price was said to have been bid for more, with 3c over asked. Wednesday's sales in all positions were estimated at 300,000 bushels.

Weather conditions over the belt were favorable for the movements, but offerings to arrive were small. Nat C. Murray estimated that on the basis of the average movement from farms during the last ten years the surplus-producing States would probably market 320,000,000 bushels from this season, against 467,000,000 bushels in 1926-27. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to ⅛c lower and Rosario unchanged to ⅛c higher, with January in the latter market 83¾, or 5¾c over December at Kansas City.

Action of the oats and rye markets was dominated largely by that of other grains, and both closed fractionally lower. Cash interests bought December oats and commission houses the May. There was no export demand of consequence for rye at the seaboard. Spot barley here sold at 91@94, the latter price being a new high on the crop.

Lard values, after weakening early on selling induced by the large receipts of hogs, became stronger and advanced later on predictions of only 17,000 hogs for Friday, against 33,000 estimated earlier. At the finish futures were 5@10c higher, with May leading. Trading was light and mainly in changing from spot to distant months.

Short ribs were 3½c lower to 2½c higher and bellies unchanged to 5c higher.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—The speculative movement in secured wools continues, although volume of transactions of this character is less. Manufacturers are reported to be taking a little larger proportion of the woolen wools and prices are slightly stronger. Pulled wools that can be combed, especially medium grades, are strong as a result of diminished supplies of corresponding grades of fleece and territory wools.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (Exclusive) The trading in the cotton market today was of a prebholiday character. Most of it was evening up by speculative holders and some scattered trade interests here and in the South over the holidays.

The New York Cotton Exchange will be closed Saturday. The belief prevails that after the turn of the year there will be a broadening demand from foreign spinners that will create a better trading market as the bulk of the crop has been sold or hedged so that planters and factors will be more disposed to hold the balance for higher prices during the spring.

A trader's market of a backing and filling character within a moderate range of prices around the current level is accordingly expected to prevail the balance of the week and also the greater part of next week when the drygoods trade generally devotes more attention to inventory taking than to making new commitments.

There was an advance of 4 to 6 points in the early trading from yesterday's closing, bringing January up to 19.02 cents; March, 19.21 cents, and July to 19.30 cents. This was due to the absence of any important pressure of liquidation with a moderate amount of covering of shorts. Later prices went off about 14 points on evening up by local traders. January reacted to 18 7-8 cents; March, 19.08 cents; May, 19.22 cents, and July to 19.16 after which there was another rally which brought the market back to the early high levels.

At Liverpool cotton futures closed with a net decline of 4 English points on the day, against 2 to 6 due to have met our closing of yesterday.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. (AP)—A rush of new issues governmental, municipal and industrial bonds, following the collection of the firs at 5.31 cents, was the outstanding feature of today's bond market. More than $1,600,000 of the offerings changed hands at prices ranging from large fractions to nearly 2 points. Government issues reached a new peak and many others sold within striking distance of new high territory. Moderate additions near the close were met by realizing.

Most of the Italian group the week's investment was not especially active and prices were irregular. Some German securities followed an upward trend.

Interest in the domestic list again turned to a few semispeculative issues which closely followed the fluctuations of leading stocks. Liquid issues rallied from early softness and established a new high level and New Haven convertibles duplicated their previous top.

Foreign issues, which have been dull recently, inclined to heaviness, selling and heavy pressure on bids by United States Rubber 6½s and Simms Petroleum 6s.

Sales rolled the rails with the exception of a jump of more than 3 points to a new high by Burlington which moved close to yesterday's top.

Union Gas 5½s and City Railway 5s were in demand but other public utilities attracted little attention.

Issues of Treasury issues, 3½s to 1946-56, showed their previous maximum, closing with heaviness among the longer bonds. Transactions were [illegible]

CHINA OWES LARGE SUM TO SOVIETS

Russian Says Nationalists' Purchases of Arms Since 1923 Total $7,000,000

[Copyright, 1927, by the Chicago Tribune]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—The Nationalist government owes soviet Russia the sum of $7,000,000, covering arms purchases from Russia since the summer of 1923. This statement was made tonight by a prominent Russian prior to his departure from Shanghai in accordance with the breaking off of relations between the Nationalist government and the Red government of Russia.

This official said the sum of $7,000,000 covers large shipments of rifles, artillery and munitions, much of which was manufactured in the arms plants of other European countries, but handled through Russian offices and shipped to China across the Trans-Siberian Railway. According to the informant, about two-thirds of these shipments were delivered to Nationalists in Canton by Russian ships from Vladivostok, while the remainder were shipped by motor trucks across Mongolia to Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang.

The soviet official said he had received information, supposedly from reliable sources in Canton, that eleven Russians, all connected with the Soviet consulate in Canton, were executed, including a Consul named Pohvalinsky and Vice-Consul Hassis. The official expressed anxiety regarding the reaction in Russia when the Canton executions become known in Russia, where thousands of Chinese live, including several hundred students, as well as Eugene Chen, former Foreign Minister of the Hankow Nationalists, and Mme. Sun Yat-Sen, wife of China's first President, both of whom are in Moscow.

SAINT NICK PARTIAL TO AIR ROUTES

Reports Show Western Christmas Mail by Plane Double That of 1926

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—The approval of the air-mail service by Santa Claus as a means of transporting his Christmas greetings is indicated by his more extensive use of the air even when the speed of the flying plane is not necessary to insure delivery before Christmas Eve.

This deduction was made by Postmaster-General New today following the perusal of reports showing air-mail weighings out of Chicago and Salt Lake City, taken as indicative of the situation at other cities and on other routes. The following tabulation shows the number of pounds of air mail leaving Chicago on the transcontinental route for the West and leaving Salt Lake City on the same route east

HOLIDAY TRAVEL TO COAST HEAVY

Ancient Mecca of Thousands from Other Climes

Railway Stations Thronged With New Arrivals

Rail Officials See Increase After Christmas

Los Angeles is the Mecca of thousands of persons from the East and North for the Christmas season, according to reports of railroads operating into and through this city which show that nearly every transcontinental and coast line train arriving here in the past week has been crowded by extra Pullmans or enroute sections.

The La Grande station of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific and the Santa Fe station are thronged with visitors and the exits from the train gates are crowded every day with friends and relatives waiting to greet their visitors from other cities.

The Apache on the Southern Pacific arrived at noon yesterday in two sections, bringing 350 people from Chicago, Kansas City and other eastern points. It also is scheduled to arrive in two sections today. The heaviest rush of travel of the Southern Pacific also has necessitated extra cars on other limited trains of the line. The Golden State, the Sunset, the Argonaut, the Lark, the Owl and Owl are all running with from six to six extra Pullmans, reports C. L. McPaul, assistant passenger traffic manager.

TRAVEL OVER SANTA FE

Travel over the Santa Fe lines from the East also is reported as very heavy. The Chief and California Limited, daily limited trains from the East, are running with two and three cars each day, as are some of the other limiteds of that line, such as the Navajo, Missionary and others.

Santa Fe passenger officials report that reservations made many days in advance indicate much heavier travel to Los Angeles from the East, starting almost immediately after Christmas.

A special train is scheduled to leave Chicago on the 29th inst., arriving here on the 31st inst. with more than 300 persons coming here to attend the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena. Many of them plan to stay in Los Angeles until after New Year's.

Los Angeles is attracting hundreds of persons also from Utah and Nevada, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and other Western States, reports L. M. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent for the Union Pacific Railroad.

INCREASE PREDICTED

The Continental Limited of that line has been running with two full trains every day for the past week and is scheduled to operate with two trains the remainder of the week. Today, tomorrow and the next day the Gold Coast Limited is scheduled to run in two sections, Union Pacific officials say.

Boyd said: "We look for a noticeable increase in travel from the East, especially, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York and other eastern points right after the holidays. In fact indications are that many special sections will have to be placed in operation to care for the people coming to Southern California."

The exodus of travelers from the Eastern States will continue beyond the holidays, McPaul of the Southern Pacific Railroad further stated. According to reports from the last special Pullmans and sections of transcontinental trains will be required to move the travelers desiring to come to California. Reservations from Ohio for January are a heavy that special Pullmans will be run.

FRENCH 'AD' ART WILL BE SHOWN HERE

Artist Brings Collection of Hundred Posters for Display Next Year

Search for a place which is strictly modern in its methods of advertising has brought Charles Desage, French artist, to Los Angeles to present an exhibition of posters of the type used in France in all forms of commercial activity. No date has been set for the exhibition yet, but he has announced that it probably will be during the latter part of January.

There will be fully 100 posters in the collection illustrative of as many industries and showing the type of publicity now used almost entirely in France. It is art of the cubist school and modern to the highest degree.

Desage was sent to this country by M. Bokanowski, French Minister of Commerce, and he is also sponsored by M. Rolf de Mare, Swedish patron of art. Except for one exhibition in Atlantic City when Desage first arrived in this country, the local showing will be the first one in the United States.

ARTISTS PLAN PARTY

Costume Fete Will Greet New Year at New Olive Hill Home

Los Angeles artists will greet the New Year with an elaborate costume party to be given by the California Art Club at its new home on Olive Hill, Vermont avenue and Sunset Boulevard.

Scenes from provincial Mexico will comprise the setting for the costume ball. Music and dances will also be characteristic of the setting. Mary Everett, Loren Barton and Alson Clark are in charge of the program.

Early Filing of British Claims in Mexico Asked

"British subjects or companies who have claims for losses incurred in Mexico on account of revolutionary acts which occurred between November, 1910, and May, 1920, should, if they have not done so already, communicate with the Undersecretary of State for Foreign Affairs at the Foreign Office, London, Eng., at once," says an announcement by the British Counsul here yesterday.

"Claimants or their legal representatives are warned that failure to communicate immediately with the Foreign Office may seriously prejudice their claims and, in cases where further evidence is required but not forthcoming, may lead to their abandonment."

ROMANCE WRECKED BY TRUTH

Bride-elect Changes Age Figures from 51 to 65 Before Taking Oath on Marriage License Application and Bridegroom Says "Good Night"

"Good night!" exclaimed the bridegroom-elect, and the romance was off.

It happened in the marriage license bureau. Anne B. Gaston had filled out her part of the application for a license to wed Conrad Fischer. She listed herself as a "maid," and as to her age she wrote down "passed 51."

"Hold up your hand and swear to the application, directed Rosamund Rice, chief deputy of the office.

The bride-elect hesitated. Many do before taking an oath.

"I guess I would like to change that a little," she demurred.

The application was handed back to her. She crossed out "passed 51" and wrote in "65 years." Gaston watched over her shoulder.

"Good night!" was his only comment, as he strode out of the office.

"Aren't men queer," sighed the ex-bride-elect.

Educator Tells How Youth May be Upbuilded

Children Declared Hope for World Peace

Announcement of the election of Frederick L. Martin, superintendent of schools of Santa Monica, as president of the California Teachers' Association, Southern Section, was made at the annual business meeting, yesterday afternoon. The meeting followed five great general sessions where approximately 15,000 teachers heard educators of the day discuss youth and citizenship, the theme upon which the thirty-fourth annual institute of the association is built.

Teachers poured into the spacious auditoriums, filling the seats from the orchestra row to the top gallery of the Polytechnic High School, Bovard Auditorium, Trinity, Bible Institute and Philharmonic auditoriums. Musical programs preceded the speeches and in many cases the stages were extended to accomodate the orchestras.

CONFIDENT OF YOUTH

"I am not discouraged; the plight of youth today is far from hopeless," Dr. F. J. Kelly, dean of administration, University of Minnesota, declared at the general session in Philharmonic Auditorium at which Frederick L. Martin, superintendent of schools of Santa Monica, presided.

"Schools, clubs, churches and other organizations understand the problems of youth far better today than ever before," the speaker said. "Of the steps being taken by these for the making of better citizens is that of developing in our youth a greater appreciation of all that is artistic and beautiful in life. We as teachers can render valuable service, because it is through an understanding of the finer things of life that young people grow into honorable men and women."

The speaker held the radio to account for its failure to give to the public better programs. "This is a tremendous field for education, and one which will be appreciated in the future. There are many radio programs today to which we should not allow our children to listen," said Dr. Kelly.

LOS ANGELES LEADS

"Student self-government is at its best here in Los Angeles, though it is developing throughout the country. Boys and girls in junior and senior high schools heed the admonitions of their fellows in authority even more readily than they do those of their teachers. Those student-officers are chosen by themselves; the student body is eager to see their own men supported. Out of this self-government comes self-control, idealism and citizenship.

"History is now being presented to children from an angle which they can understand and appreciate. It has been too long confined to matters of importance to adults and not to children. Hero-worship is one of the characteristics of childhood, and through this higher ideals and the sense of honor and loyalty can be developed."

PROGRAM FOR PEACE

International relations was the theme of speakers at the Polytechnic High School Auditorium yesterday morning, led by Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, commissioner of education for the State of Maine.

"Every nation has something of use for every other nation; co-operation and reciprocity have become necessary," the speaker said. "While we have developed courts of justice and means of settling our affairs, we have not yet developed suitable means for settling national misunderstandings other than by international treaties."

The Schoolmasters' Club of Southern California held its annual banquet last night at the City Club, 833 South Spring street. This is one of the largest of the organizations of its kind in the Southland and the dining-room was crowded. The speakers' list included names of educators from some of the great institutions of learning in the East and Middle West.

HILL WILL ATTACKED BY WIDOW

Contest Over $290,000 Estate Filed on Behalf of Minor Children

A contest over the $290,000 estate of the late Randolph W. Hill was filed yesterday by Edith Grace Hill, his widow, as guardian of their two minor children.

The will, which was admitted to probate a year ago, devises $5000 to the Children's Hospital, $5000 to a sister and $2000 each to five nephews and nieces. The residue is ordered placed in trust and an income of $500 per month paid to the widow and children until the younger child attains the age of thirty years, after which the body of the trust is to be divided among them equally.

It is asserted in the contest that Hill was infirm and incompetent by reason of illness when he executed the will.

Beach Sands to be "Mined" for Treasure

Permission to "mine" the municipal beach between Venice and Ocean Park piers was yesterday granted to W. O. Brubaker, 148 Pacific street, Ocean Park, by the Los Angeles Playground and Recreation Commission.

The mining operations will consist of raking and screening the sand.

Brubaker seeks not only gold, but also coins, jewelry and whatnots of value that may have been lost in the sand during the summer and fall months.

In return for permission to screen the beach Brubaker must remove all other debris without cost to the city.

Similar screening operations in the past are said to have paid good returns for the efforts and time expended.

LIGHT SHED ON COSMIC RAY

Dr. Millikan Reports on New Test Showing it to be Far More Powerful Than First Supposed

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Dec. 22.—New and important facts about the cosmic rays, most powerful known to man, were disclosed tonight before the Pasadena Teachers' Institute by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, noted scientist and head of the California Institute of Technology, who announced his discovery of the rays in 1925.

The other nine-tenths come from starlight and heat.

Experiments conducted last summer at Gem Lake and Lake Arrowhead by Dr. Millikan and Dr. Harvey Cameron, his associate, demonstrated that the rays are more than twice as powerful as first supposed, in that they can penetrate 16.7 feet of lead, Dr. Millikan said tonight.

Still more recent computations show that one-tenth of the total energy which enters the earth's atmosphere is from these beams which come from beyond the Milky Way.

NEW INSTRUMENTS USED

These latest discoveries were made possible by new and improved instruments, ten times more sensitive than those used in the experiments on Pike's Peak and Mt. Whitney, which led to the first discovery of the mysterious beams.

The Mt. Whitney experiments disclosed that the rays can penetrate six feet of lead. This made them

BAR DECIDES TO ERECT BUILDING

Will Cost $1,200,000 and be at Sixth and Flower

Decision Made Yesterday at Monthly Meeting

Committee to Nominate Officers Named

A Los Angeles Bar Association Building to cost $1,200,000 is to be erected on a site on South Flower street, just off of Sixth street, according to a resolution adopted with very few dissenting votes by the members of the association last night. The matter was decided at the monthly dinner meeting of the association in the Chamber of Commerce banquet room.

The structure will be modern in every detail, according to the tentative designs drawn up by the Allison & Allison architectural firm, and will be of limit height. It will be thirteen floors high, 110 feet wide on Flower street and 152 feet long.

Under the suggested plans, it will contain a law library of some 10,000 volumes, Los Angeles and State Bar Association's offices and libraries, hundreds of offices for rent to lawyers, doctors and business men and perhaps the offices of a bank on the first floor.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

Kemper Campbell described the proposed building and introduced David Allison, who went into greater detail of the tentative plans using stereopticon slides to illustrate his remarks. J. K. Baillie, vice-president and general manager of the Lincoln Mortgage Company, was introduced, and told the assembled barristers that his company would finance the structure.

The resolution adopted was to the effect that the building committee be instructed to enter into a contract for the building on the guarantee that the association is not obligated financially for the structure.

Roland W. Schoettler, attorney, made an objection on the ground that the association could build its own building.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

A nominating committee to nominate officers of the association to be voted on at the annual election of officers in February was chosen. It is composed of Judge L. W. Meyers, Everett Mattoon, Judge Dana R. Weller, Judge Perry J. Wood, James Anderson, Jefferson Chandler and Nathan Newby.

One feature of the program was an address by William T. Craig, attorney for the Board of Trade, who explained to the lawyers and to representative members of the Chamber of Commerce who were invited guests of the bar association, the purposes of the new California arbitration law.

"The demand of the mercantile world for a workable arbitration law was answered by New York in 1920 and has quickly been followed by the Congress of the United States and eight other States. In a short time every State in the Union will have provided this means of settling disputes without recourse to the law," said Mr. Craig.

CHANGES FORESEEN

"California, being the last to adopt the system, has improved upon the other statutes, but no doubt experience will dictate many changes in the California law to accord with the changed demands of the times.

"The fear that arbitration will deprive the lawyer of the fees that litigation would bring him will be as obsolete as the fear that resulted in labor riots on the introduction of machinery.

"It is the work of the lawyer to answer the popular demand for these laws by assisting in executing them in such form as will benefit the community. Laws constantly are changing with changing conditions and as these changing conditions arise the lawyers and the courts are forced to meet and provide for them. Inasmuch as hundreds of thousands of disputes have been settled by arbitration under these new laws, the public demand for this method of settling differences is one that cannot be ignored nor argued away."

McGARRY SPEAKS

President McGarry of the Chamber of Commerce was present and delivered a short address in appreciation of the work of the bar association.

Other guests of honor were George L. Eastman, first vice-president; A. F. Osterloh, second vice-president; John W. Kemp, vice-president; Shannon Crandall, John A. Burton, John C. Austin, directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and the following newspaper publishers: E. A. Dickson, H. H. Briggs, Wesley Barr, E. M. Boddy and William W. Rowe.

HOTEL FUND GIVEN CHARITY

The Ambassador Hotel yesterday announced that in place of elaborate Christmas cards usually sent out by that institution the management has decided to divide among several Los Angeles charities, including the Children's Hospital, the card money spent in former years.

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

WILLIAM EDWARD HICKMAN didn't arrange such a grand little Christmas for himself; but he has made Christmas a happier day for everyone else.

In all my newspaper experience I have never seen anything as dramatic as the wave of relief that swept over this city when the wire came announcing his capture. It was like the cessation of an acute physical pain.

The nerve strain, involving the whole community, has never been equaled by anything I have ever seen. It has been difficult for men to do their work. People scowled at each other murderously in the traffic. Business suffered.

The relaxation is like a soothing poultice. Not even the day of the Armistice equaled yesterday as relief from a tensity that was like a strangling constriction. You can almost feel hatred oozing away like a broken boil.

JUST A BONEHEAD

After all, he turned out to be a bonehead—in spite of his near Greek and his imitation sophistication.

About the stupidest thing he could have done in the circumstances—being a fugitive with a huge reward upon his head—was to run.

Had he remained quiescent for a while it might have been hard to catch him. It is one thing to talk about "combing a city;" it is quite another thing to do it successfully.

The minute he took to the open road his chances for concealment were about those of the traditional goldfish in a glass bowl.

A STUDY IN TERROR

They speak of the coolness and indifference of this boy.

I'll bet he is so scared that he is afraid to look into his own soul to find out how scared he is. There is a kind of terror that is paralysis.

As for instance, I remember hearing a police surgeon tell an injured man that he had but ten minutes to live from burns. The man's face relaxed into a sort of hashful grin.

There is such a thing as terror beyond terror.

THE COPS

There has been a great deal of rough criticism of the police in this case.

But the fact remains that, in one week, a seemingly bewildering mystery was solved and Hickman was in jail.

LEAVE IT TO THE LAW

Now that he is in handcuffs we can let our frenzy subside and go on cooking the Christmas turkey.

It will not be necessary for any of us to appoint ourselves court and jury in the case. It isn't that he deserves a fair trial so much as that the community deserves a fair trial. A year from now we will thank our lucky stars that the boy was not caught here in the heat of excitement and lynched.

The murderer of this child was a savage; but that is no reason why we, as a community, should be seized with a murder complex, and turn to savagery ourselves.

NO ESCAPE

At that, I don't see that it is going to make the case much better for Hickman—even if his unlikely story about another as the killer should be true.

His responsibility is the same.

CHILDREN HEAR VOICE OF SANTA

Sleigh Bell Jingle Goes Out Over Radio

Old Fellow Tells of Life at North Pole

All Ready for Regular Trip to Distribute Gifts

Santa Claus took to the air in more ways than one last night when he hitched up his reindeer team, soared to the roof of The Times Building and broadcast a message to the children over radio KHJ.

What a thrill it was for thousands of children sitting in their homes, to hear coming over the radio the very voice of Santa Claus—to hear his sleigh bells ringing and to hear him talking to Prancer and Dancer and the rest of the reindeer on his team.

JINGLE OF BELLS

First there was a faint jingling of sleigh bells that could be heard at a distance, growing louder and louder as Santa and his team swept on to the roof—exactly as it is pictured in the famous poem about the night before Christmas.

"Whoa, Prancer! Whoa, Dancer!" shouted Santa and his team came to a halt.

When Santa Claus started to speak through the microphone foxy little Prancer wanted to have his say, also, but Santa Claus good naturedly told him that it was Santa's night on the air and that Prancer would have plenty of time to put on his act the night before Christmas.

HAS TO HURRY

During the course of his short talk, Santa Claus told the children something about his life up in his Ice Palace near the North Pole, and how Mrs. Santa Claus is waiting for his return, otherwise he would be glad to stay down here even after Christmas.

But, he pointed out, he had a big task before him getting around the world with all his toys and gifts and so he could not spend much time talking over the radio. He reminded the children that he will be at his Ice Palace at Eighth and Grand avenue until Christmas Eve, and invited those who have not come down there to do so.

TWO KINDS OF MUSIC

Western music has taken one road and Oriental another, going in exactly the opposite directions. In contrast with our complicated harmony and simple melody and rhythm they have not developed harmony, but have complicated melody and rhythm. A cultured Chinese derives no pleasure from our greatest symphonies; our harmony only confuses him, and the simplicity of our melody and rhythm seems to him childish and uninteresting. We retaliate, of course, by looking in vain for harmony in Chinese music and by having the complicated melody and rhythm fall upon our unattuned ears with little meaning.—[Henry Cowell, in the Century.

Thousands of children tuned in on radio KHJ last night and heard Santa Claus speak. Old Santa enjoyed it as much as the children did. Here he is shown before the microphone.

SPECIAL COURSE GIVEN

Serge Oukrainsky, noted choreographic artist and dancer, will present in his Los Angeles studio, 4157 West Fifth street, a special Christmas course of two weeks' duration, starting the 26th inst. The course will offer unusual opportunities to students, professional dancers, and teachers and will include special dances as well as technical instruction. Mr. Oukrainsky is recognized in this country and on the continent as a superb performer and director. Equipped with a firm technical foundation, gained from such masters as Cecchetti and Clustine, he has been able to advance authoritatively into the most modern expression of this art. The pictorial beauty of his scenic effects, costume designs, and the originality of his conceptions, all contribute to make his productions unique and of surpassing beauty. The high praise accorded his recent ballets with the Los Angeles Civic Opera Company are indicative of the cordiality with which this colorful artist has been welcomed to this city.

ELITE HELP OPEN HOTEL MAYFLOWER

Lobby Mass of Flowers as 250 Attend Dinner in New Bull Pen Inn

With the lobby a veritable mass of flowers, representing the best wishes of the city, Los Angeles' newest downtown hotel, the Mayflower, made its initial bow to the public last night at the formal opening dinner which was attended by more than 250 socially prominent persons and public officials of the city. The Mayflower is a thirteen-story, height-limit structure erected at 533 South Grand avenue, at a cost of approximately $1,250,000. It has 750 rooms.

The affair last night was different than the customary hotel openings, inasmuch as there were no speeches, but instead, a lively program of entertainment. The dinner was held in the new Bull Penn Inn, adjoining the lobby on the rear.

Charles F. De Long, restaurateur and for a number of years proprietor of the Bull Pen Inn, is the lessee of the Mayflower, and his son, John A. De Long, is the manager. They will operate both the new inn and the Mayflower Tavern Coffee Shop in conjunction with the hostelry and the old Bull Pen Inn is to be closed at its present location, 633 South Hope street, after Sunday.

The management announced that because of the limited capacity of the Bull Pen dining-room, it will be necessary to extend the opening celebration to tonight and tomorrow night in order to accommodate the many who desire to attend. The celebration tomorrow night will be in the nature of a welcome to Santa Claus.

Time Extended to File Claims on Wagy & Co.

Additional time of thirty days was granted yesterday by James T. Irwin, referee in bankruptcy, in the case of the Wagy Brokerage Company, which was declared bankrupt following the Julian Petroleum debacle, in which to file claims for stocks having been held by that company.

Yesterday was the last day in which claims of creditors of the Wagy concern could be filed. The amount of these claims ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars, it was reported.

In addition to boxing bouts there were several acts by talent furnished by the Hal Roach, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Cecil B. De Mille studios.

The affair was sponsored by the Culver City American Legion Post No. 46, and all of the civic organizations of the community.

BATTLE FOR CUSTODY OF GIRL BEGINS

Divorced Pomona Couple Line Up as Father Seeks to Take Child from Mother

A fight for the custody of Pearl Kettelle, 7 years of age, daughter of Mabel H. Kettelle and H. C. Kettelle a divorced couple of Pomona, began before Superior Judge McComb yesterday afternoon on an order to show cause why the custody should not be transferred from the mother to the father, on charges that the mother has been mistreating the child.

Affidavits filed in the case charge that the mother forced the youngster to sleep in an attic frequented by mice and that the latter ran all over the child so that she screamed in terror. It is also charged the mother and refused to let her go to sleep until she finished eating what was given which, it is asserted, nauseates her, refused to let her go to sleep until she finished eating what was given her.

Affidavits by the mother deny the charges and state the father is seeking custody of the youngster to avoid paying alimony, that the mother formerly was principal of a high school in Sydney, Iowa, and understands the bringing up of children, that she seeks to correct the child when necessary but does not abuse her.

Sixteen witnesses for one side and eighteen for the other, all from Pomona, have been subpoenaed.

When you start a crime the law says that you are responsible for it to the end of the trip.

That somebody else did the killing part and Hickman the running-away part, like some one running for a fat batter in a baseball game, is not a theory that will do much to shelter the young man.

LAW AND THE PUBLIC

One thing that impresses me about this man hunt:

If the public could be persuaded to take the same interest in all flagrant lawbreakers there wouldn't be crime enough left in the world, in six months, to get out a crook melodrama.

The attitude taken by the public this time is the correct attitude to be taken at all times; that we are all policemen responsible for the enforcement of the law; the men in uniform are only our agents.

Except in some especially dramatic case like this we hold to the amiable theory that the law is a sort of settled habit characteristic of cops; and no affairs of ours.

SHOOTING HEARING HALTED

Case Against Omer Lipps in Bush Wounding Put Off to January 13 So Victim Can Testify

Owing to the serious condition of Cleo "Slim" Bush, shot down in an asserted gang feud in front of 963 South Bixel street on the 10th inst., Municipal Judge Baird yesterday continued until January 13 the preliminary hearing of Omer Lipps, reported by police to have confessed to the shooting.

When Lipps was brought into the courtroom for trial on a charge of assault with intent to murder, Dep. Dist.-Atty. Holland made a motion that the hearing be continued because Bush's condition has taken a turn for the worse, preventing him from testifying. Attorney S. S. Hahn, counsel for the defendant, agreed to the continuance.

Bush, who is 27 years of age and lives at 513 South Flower street, was shot in the back as he emerged with several friends from the Bixel-street address. Mrs. Lelia Evans of 508 Union avenue was held as a material witness following the shooting, but later was released.

Lipps is 28 and lives at 438 South Union Drive, according to the police report. Bail was fixed at $3000.

TEST REPORTED ON COSMIC RAY

many times more powerful than the hardest X-rays which had been discovered up to that time.

In 1926 Dr. Millikan and Dr. Cameron made an excursion high into the Bolivian Andes of South America, where they got results corresponding with those obtained at Mt. Whitney. But with the improved instruments they were able to demonstrate at Lake Arrowhead that the penetrating power of the rays will carry them through 190 feet of water, or 16.7 feet of lead.

FROM FAR DISTANCES

The local scientists further believe that the rays come to the earth from regions far beyond our solar system or Milky Way, which until a few years ago was considered as the entire universe. Now it is believed that the rays emanate from the spiral nebulae or perhaps even from regions so far distant that the most powerful telescopes on earth cannot reach them.

Results so far show that the rays come with virtually equal strength from all directions and that they are not appreciably affected by the sun or the Milky Way.

Just what causes these rays is largely a mystery to the scientists. But further experiments and calculations are under way in the hope that additional information will be forthcoming. Next summer Dr. Millikan plans another expedition into the Sierras to make additional experiments and to check up on his previous results with new equipment, he said tonight.

HIGH MOUNTAIN NEEDED

It is probable that another trip to South America will not be necessary, he said, because no alteration in results was observed which might have been laid to the change in latitude in the experiments made in the Andes.

High snow-fed mountain lakes are necessary to the investigations because they provide a homogeneous medium, free from radioactivity and far enough above sea level to eliminate most of the dimming effects of the earth's atmosphere. In these lakes Dr. Millikan lowers his instruments, testing the penetrating powers of the rays which reach them. The experiments are conducted at heights which are above about nine-tenths of the earth's atmosphere.

Dr. Millikan returned to Pasadena after a short eastern trip in which he attended a number of committee meetings of scientific societies.

DRAIN HEARING TODAY

Protests against the proposed construction of Section No. 6 of the Slauson avenue storm drain system are scheduled to be considered by the City Council this morning. There have been a number of mass meetings in the district at which property owners in the district protested against the building of the drain. Today's Council action probably will only to send the protests to the City Engineer for checking and the setting of February 24 as the date for the hearing.

FRAME-UP, SAYS BANDIT SUSPECT

Ex-Convict Asserts Burglar Held Prison Grudge

Witness Paroled on Murder Charge Takes Stand

Refused to Identify Man Who Now Accuses Him

[illegible] sentenced to expiate on the gallows for killing a friend in Arizona, Loyd Sundeen, paroled by Gov. [illegible] a year ago from the Arizona State Penitentiary at Florence for exemplary good behavior was held for trial yesterday by Municipal Judge [illegible] on three charges of burglary.

Asserting he is the victim of a deliberately framed frame-up" on the part of an ex-convict at the Arizona prison [illegible] was helped to identify by finger-prints as a criminal wanted in the United States for burglary, Sundeen took the witness stand in his own behalf at the order of his attorney, Jerry Vliet, and bitterly denied conspiracy with Edward Brooks in the [illegible] of offenses.

SENTENCED TO HANG

"Nine years ago, in 1918 to be exact, I was sentenced to hang for murder," Sundeen testified. "I was granted a special reprieve from the Governor at Phoenix and was assigned to the identification bureau at the prison because of my past fingerprint experience. A few years later I was 'framed through' for a burglary job. From circular records I received him with burglaries in Arizona and California. Then he swore to get me some day. In December, 1926, I was paroled and came to Los Angeles to make an honest living. [illegible] came here, too. Then I was arrested for three burglaries. But I am innocent, the victim of a diabolical frame-up scheme."

WOMAN WITNESS

[illegible] and Sundeen were accused of burglarizing the home of W. R. [illegible], 3720 Country Club Drive on [illegible] 22, last; the residence of [illegible] C. W. Rencheli, 1551½ South [illegible] Boulevard, on May 8, last, and that of J. G. Donovan, 2202 [illegible] Western avenue, on Thanksgiving Day.

[illegible] Juanita Green of 710 West [illegible] Cruz street, San Pedro, once held as a material witness in the case, stated that Brooks had promised to "treat her up," and had made good his promise by giving her a [illegible] bag, a coat and some dresses, stolen by Mrs. McCann as the [illegible] taken from her home. Further questioned by Dep. Dist.-Atty. [illegible] A. Cushman, Miss Green said she did not know the goods were stolen and was unacquainted with [illegible].

NEW PLANS OUTLINED TO AID CLINIC

Chamber in Move to Get State Support for Poultry Laboratory Now in City

The recommendation of its agricultural committee, the Chamber of Commerce yesterday resolved to ask that the poultry pathological laboratory established here last year be continued. The resolution, which was presented by B. R. Halloway, chairman of the agricultural committee, requests that the funds be supplied by the State Department of Agriculture, and the college of agriculture of the University of California.

The laboratory was established in southern California through the co-operation of the State Department of Agriculture, University of California, Los Angeles County Live Stock Department and poultrymen of this district.

While the laboratory has demonstrated its worth since its establishment, it was pointed out by the chamber, that the full expense has been borne by poultrymen, milling concerns, hatcheries and other private companies and individuals. It is hoped by the chamber to have the University of California and the State Department of Agriculture appropriate funds for the maintenance of the laboratory in the future.

Then, on September 15 last, Crouch took Miss [illegible] Hart, 17, as his second [illegible]. Mrs. Crouch stated on questioning by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Holland.

CAROLS SUNG FOR CHILDREN

"Times" Junior Club Members Entertain Young Inmates of Hospitals and Orphans' Homes

Santa Claus's advance guard, composed of The Times Junior Club carol singers, swooped down on a number of hospitals, and homes for children yesterday afternoon and serenaded the children with Christmas songs and distributed gifts.

Among the places on the visiting list of the club singers are the Orthopedic Hospital, Los Angeles Orphans' Home, the Volunteers of America and the Children's Home.

Aunt Dolly revived the old English custom of carol singing as a treat not only for her own club men'ers but also for the children of the institutions visited.

Wards at the hospitals were turned over to the gay singing party and the children enjoyed the programs given. James Osborne, outstanding tenor, was one of the best-liked silk-coated entertainers. Guy Fasoli was popular as second bass, Bob Wickersham first tenor and Sam Good, second.

Members of the club contributed to the large pile of boxes and sacks of good things distributed. The party went merrily from place to place in automobiles decorated in crimson and white banners, streamers and flags. There were jingling bells, tooting horns and other evidences of a jolly party of Christmas fun makers.

SENATOR'S KEEN VISION DISCLOSED

Papers of Clark's Legal Adviser Show Rail Head Foresaw Great City Here

The foresight [illegible] business acumen of the late Senator W. A. Clark in his plans for development of the Salt Lake Railroad, now part of the Union Pacific system, was evidenced further yesterday in an examination of the effects of Mrs. William Rilea Kelly, recently deceased, who has resided at 1400 West Third street for more than twenty-five years.

William Rilea Kelly was general attorney for the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad, coming from Union Pacific headquarters at Omaha, which position he held until his death some years later. His personal papers, carefully guarded by his widow, now disclose that Clark and his legal adviser carefully planned for 1,000,000 population for Los Angeles in 1925 and insisted on rail development to the harbor in the belief that this city would enjoy the largest shipping trade on the Pacific Coast.

Mrs. Kelly, widely known among pioneer families, died the 7th inst., and was buried in Evergreen Cemetery on the 10th inst., Rev. C. W. Lemingwell of Pasadena officiating. The deceased was 77 years of age and leaves her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Marvin Welch of this city.

NEW INSIGHT TO FRASER'S CASH GIVEN

Documents Shown in Suit of Rich Man's Holdings About Rich Man's Holding

Documents revealing a further insight into the holdings of Earl A. Fraser, wealthy Ocean Park amusement man, which had been retained by Mrs. Lillian Fraser after she filed suit for divorce on grounds of cruelty and infidelity, were produced in Superior Judge Montgomery's court yesterday by Attorney Francis J. Heney, counsel for Mrs. Fraser, in an effort to ascertain the extent of Fraser's holdings.

It was brought out that the papers were turned over to Mrs. Fraser for safe keeping when her husband made a trip to San Diego and that when she began suit for divorce shortly afterward she retained them for evidence in her case.

Fraser again was placed on the stand and questioned as to what money he possessed in addition to stock in the Ocean Park pier and the bath house. He declared he has only $10,000.

Mrs. Fraser has contended he is worth $2,000,000 and he has admitted holdings valued at no more than $200,000.

The trial will be resumed today, when Attorney Heney will cross-examine Fraser. It then will be continued until January 5.

The Catholic Daughters of America plan to build a $1,000,000 hotel for homeless unemployed girls.

Funeral services for Everett Messerly, 59-year-old pioneer laundryman of Southern California, who died suddenly at a dinner in the banquet room of the Diamond Laundry Building, Eighth street and Towne avenue, Wednesday night, are to be conducted today at 2 p.m. from the funeral parlors of Teck & Chase, 1213 South Figueroa street. Interment is to be in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

He made his home at the Louise Dryden Apartments, Glendale.

The veteran laundryman was describing a trip around the world he was planning to take next summer, during the course of an after-dinner talk, when he suddenly gasped and fell unconscious to the floor. He was pronounced dead on arrival at the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital by Police Surgeon Saverien.

MUCH MAIL ARRIVES AND GOES BY AIR

Two and One-half Tons Leave City by Airplanes Since Monday

Unusually heavy loads which have characterized air mail dispatches from and to this section the past several days are expected to continue up to and including Sunday, postal officials said last night.

More than two and one-half tons of air mail have flown out of Los Angeles in planes of Western Air Express, Inc., and Pacific Air Transport, Inc., since Monday, it is said, while approximately one and one-half tons have been flown into the local airports.

Since Christmas packages and letters still can reach points as far distant as Chicago and Seattle for delivery Sunday if sent by air mail "special delivery" and placed in any mail box up to midnight Friday, it is expected that many belated mailers will yet take advantage of this service.

The other corporations receiving permits were: Kay Steel Wheel Company, automobile wheels; Candycrafters, Inc., candy; California Shoe Repairing Service, Inc., manufacture and repair of footwear; Expo-Stucco and Art Marble Company, interior and exterior stucco, and Charles N. Miller Company, natural-food products.

Ball Player's Wife Freed in Battery Case

Following three hours of testimony Municipal Judge Georgia Bullock yesterday acquitted Mrs. J. C. Oldham, wife of "Red" Oldham, former pitching star of the Detroit Tigers, of battery on the person of Mrs. George Mundegle, 2058 West Twenty-eighth street.

The complainant charged Mrs. Oldham knocked her to the floor of her home, jumped on her and showered her with blows over a telephone bill for 45 cents on November 4, last.

Mrs. Oldham, represented by Attorney Chandos Bush, denied the accusation, and Judge Bullock ruled in her favor because of the lack of witnesses to the asserted attack.

Wife Who Didn't Smoke or Drink Given Divorce

Her husband lost patience with her because she refused to drink or smoke, Mrs. Herma D. Cary of Glendale testified in her suit for divorce from Henry O. Cary, a salesman, in Superior Judge Montgomery's court yesterday.

Mrs. Cary testified that shortly after they were married he began to stay out late and got to the point where he would remain away all night several nights a week. He bragged of his women acquaintances, she said.

She desired a home life and babies, she said, but he wanted neither.

Witnesses supported her story and the court gave her a divorce, the husband not contesting the suit.

More than 65,000 women are employed underground in the mines of Japan.

FINE PAID BY ACCUSED IN MAIL THEFT

Harry T. Robinson Enters Plea of Nolle Contendre in Nov. 3, 1921, Case

Harry T. Robinson, accused of conspiracy to rob the United States mail of more than $200,000 on November 3, 1921, pleaded a nolle contendre yesterday in the court of United States District Judge James. By the plea the defendant, who was once convicted, but was granted a new trial, does not admit his guilt, but does not deny it. The court fined Robinson $1000, which was promptly paid. Robinson was represented by Attorney Soren Christensen.

The Robinson case was the outgrowth of a series of charges against a score of persons accused of complicity in various mail robberies. Herbert Wilson, who has testified in several trials throughout the country and who is now serving a life term in San Quentin for murder, pleaded guilty to the mail-robbery charge.

Joe Bertsche, who recently pleaded guilty to a mail-robbery charge, and was sentenced in Cincinnati; Jack Elerick and Frank and Louis Wilson, brothers of Herbert Wilson, were acquitted by a jury in Los Angeles for a mail robbery here on March 3, 1921.

She Convinces Jury of Sanity

"I know the lawyers think I am crazy. One of them expects me to pay him $2500 and the other thinks he is going to get $1600. But I am not that crazy, anyway," declared Mrs. Edna V. Cooper, wealthy divorcee, before a jury in the Superior Court yesterday.

The jury held that she is not crazy and found that she does not need a guardian. Several months ago her property was placed in the custody of a guardian, after proceedings in Probate Court. It was from this decision that she appealed to the jury.

POLICE ASKED TO FIND MISSING DAUGHTER

Police were asked to look for Dorothy Jean Hudson, 16-year-old daughter of E. M. Hudson of 941 Sunburry avenue, by her father yesterday. According to his report, the girl disappeared last Saturday. She sent him a note in which she told of having found a "lovely home," where she is being treated well and is happy, but the father suspects his daughter has eloped, he advised detectives.

Council Delays Action on Police Cycle Requests

Action was postponed by the City Council yesterday until early next week on a report from the Council's finance committee recommending that steps be taken to purchase forty-four motorcycles for the police department, as requested by the Police Commission.

The postponement was taken at the request of Councilman Hall, who said he is opposed to the purchase of the motorcycles for the reason that the police department disposed of its motorcycles last year and replaced them with automobiles, saying that the operation of motorcycles was dangerous to the men using them and were less efficient than automobiles.

Hoxie Anderson, Broker, Facing Suit for Divorce

Suit for a divorce from Hoxie Anderson, investment broker and oil man, was filed yesterday by Elaine Anderson in a complaint in which Dorothy Raymond is named co-respondent.

Mrs. Anderson charges that her husband and Miss Raymond have been living in Long Beach. She estimates the value of his estate as $300,000 and declares his monthly income is $3500. The couple married in 1920 and separated last February, the complaint recites.

SHOOTING AT PLANT TO BE INVESTIGATED

Deputy sheriffs yesterday were ordered to investigate the shooting of John Stauffer, 638 Wall street, while working at the Pinch Chemical Company plant at Indiana avenue and Holibard street Tuesday. According to the report, Stauffer was struck in the upper right arm by a .22 caliber bullet. The wound was dressed immediately and pronounced not serious. Three boys seen hunting rabbits near by during the afternoon will be questioned about the affair, according to Deputy Sheriff Letts, who is investigating the case.

GREAT GAIN IN THEATER FIELD TOLD

President of West Coast Chain Asserts Industry Optimistic for 1928

President Harold B. Franklin of West Coast Theaters, Inc., views the advent of a new year with supreme optimism. Business throughout the country is good, he says, and it will continue to be.

The theatrical industry, he declares, has made great strides toward stability.

"The popular prejudice against big business no longer persists as it did," he declares, "because such organizations see more clearly than ever before that success lies in not abusing their strength.

"It is apparent that in many communities theater building has reached the saturation point. In such instances older theaters will have to establish the most aggressive means in attracting and holding patronage. The overseating condition will be righted when those who furnish credit refuse to finance new theaters where theater seating is already overextended.

"The year 1927 may be set down as a milestone of great importance to West Coast Theaters. Marked progress has been made in the growth and operating results of the company."

INGLEWOOD CASE UP TO JURY TODAY

Second Van de Mark Trial on H. C. Mitchell Slaying Charge Nears Completion

The case of Arthur H. Van de Mark, Inglewood used car dealer, charged with murder in connection with the shooting last September of H. C. Mitchell, real estate operator, is scheduled to be placed again in the hands of a jury today in Judge Bishop's court.

Taking of testimony was completed yesterday and it was expected arguments and instruction to the jury will be completed this morning. At a previous trial of the case the jury disagreed and was dismissed.

Van de Mark is asserted to have shot Mitchell following a drinking party at which Van de Mark was the host. The accused man denied he intentionally shot Mitchell, asserting he procured the rifle to defend himself and that it was accidentally discharged during a scuffle for its possession.

SO CALLED
Down in Wall street call money must be the kind that talks.

WIDE OPEN
Now the gossip is that Hollywood craves the wide open places where girls can be girls.

EAR MUFFS FOR HENRY
In buying something for the car one is now presumed to be buying something for the whole family.

SOMETHING TO UNDERTAKE
When our subdividers lay out a street it doesn't mean that it is dead, although it is a job for a great undertaker.

GIVE 'EM TIME
There are over 6000 different streets and avenues within the limits of Los Angeles and some of them are not being torn up at this moment.

AFTER MANY YEARS
Discovery of the skeletons of birds in the asphalt beds near Carpinteria emphasizes the fact that an asphalt pool is no place to take a bath—not even for a birdie.

NOTHING TO IT
Robbers spent five hours digging under the vaults of a Texas bank and finally got away with $15 in pennies. Thus proving that burglary is one of the poorest-paid professions we have.

THE CHASE
During the first week of the hunting season in Ohio eighteen men were shot for rabbits, three of them being killed. The Buckeye State used to furnish the country with much of its Presidential material. Now the citizens are being shot for rabbits.

BISCUIT SHOOTERS
A Texas traveling man won the first prize for the best biscuits baked in the Lone Star State. The women say they are making good in jobs that men have filled and it is now shown that the men can best the women in their own domain.

TO THE LIMIT
Were skyscrapers permitted in Los Angeles the sky would be scraped clear to the bone. The impulse of rivalry is mightily manifest in these diggings. It is well that the limit has been pinned down to fifty yards. Now they want to build garages that tall.

MANY VISITORS
Our justly famous highways are just now thickly studded with foreign cars and a casual review of license plates shows that there are a good many from Florida. Are the Palm Beach folk here to get a line on our climate or do they hope to dig up some of our mountains and take them home for scenic effects?

TARIFF TALK
Japan expects to increase materially the duties upon the steel and lumber imported—most of which comes from America. Will the sensationalists try to twist this into another declaration of war? Japan needs the revenue and is also trying to expand the use of her own building materials. She is behaving just as America does. It is neither a knock nor a threat.

APOSTLE OF GOOD WILL
In conferring the Civic Forum medal of honor upon Elihu Root it is mentioned that he has enhanced the prestige of America more than arms or battle fleets. This is a record of genuine patriotism. America wishes her victories to be those of peace and of such quality that all the world may have equal share. We do not choose that our heroes and most distinguished citizens shall be men of the sword.

THE LONGEST WORD
A new word descriptive of a chemical combination contains no less than sixty-four letters and there are laboratory students who can pronounce it in one breath. There are other recently manufactured words in the field of chemistry carrying from thirty to forty-eight letters and so assembled that they tell exactly what they are and what they mean. Modern words in the domain of science are well favored in that respect. They look rather vast and impressive, but they explain themselves as they go along.

FRENCH PAVEMENTS
France is trying to lay a nonskid pavement. Blocks of artificial stone of about ten inches by five are laid in diagonal pattern with the joints cemented with tar or asphalt. The stone is of yellowish composition and is guaranteed to last thirty-five years. It is more durable than cobblestones and will wear evenly without becoming slippery. The cost in France is about $2.85 a square yard. This is thought to be a stiff price, but is well worth it for its permanence and its freedom from the perils of skidding.

THE END OF THE TRAIL

With the capture of William Edward Hickman, accused slayer of little Marion Parker, every parent and every other good citizen of the United States will draw a breath of relief.

No crime in the history of the country has so shocked the decent instincts of humanity. No man hunt in the grim and spotted annals of crime has enlisted so many relentless and determined men. Literally the entire nation was alert for Hickman's capture. Like that of Abel, the blood of innocent Marion Parker cried aloud from the ground for vengeance.

That vengeance must be swift and sure. Likewise it must be in accordance with the provisions of the law—law devised for the protection of society even against itself in moments of vengeful hysteria. There need be no fear that the constituted authorities will fail to move with all the speed consistent with certainty. The trial, conviction and execution of Hickman should establish new records in the swiftness with which he pays the supreme penalty for the revolting crime with which he stands accused.

There must be no mob law. When Hickman is returned to Los Angeles, law-abiding citizens, however outraged, must and will unite to support the orderly processes of the law. Mob violence, whatever the provocation, is a lasting blot upon any community. One breach of the law, however great, is no justification for another.

Nor must there be any weak-kneed paltering with justice at the instance of sentimentalists. Already there are indications that insanity may be trotted out as a defense for Hickman. The sob-sister brigade may be expected to come forward with the usual pleas based on the prisoner's youth.

Hickman is neither crazy nor a boy. Young in years, he is old, mature and hardened in crime. So far from being mentally unbalanced, the Parker slayer demonstrated an intelligence of the very first order in the hatching and execution of his diabolical crime and in eluding the army of pursuers which instantly took his bloody trail.

At this writing there appears not the slightest reason for taking any stock in Hickman's story of two accomplices, one of whom he accuses of the actual murder. It is the thin and feeble concoction of a coward who, facing the gallows, seeks to shift the burden of the major crime to another to save his own neck. The material evidence as well as Hickman's own confession, damns him as the principal in the drama of horror. By his own statement it was Hickman alone who kidnaped Marion Parker. It was Hickman alone who wrote the ransom letters—every one of them save the pitiful appeals of Marion herself. It was Hickman alone who carried out the series of drugstore hold-ups which preceded the kidnaping. It was Hickman who lived alone in the apartment of the Bellevue Arms where the telltale fragments of nut hulls on the floor and in the pocket of dead Marion's clothing give the lie direct to Hickman's yarn that he turned the girl over to "Cramer" the night of the kidnaping. It was Hickman alone who did the telephoning to the distracted father. It was Hickman alone who delivered half of his victim's corpse to Mr. Parker and scattered the rest of it through Elysian Park. It was Hickman's fingerprints that were found everywhere along the ghastly trail of butchery—and those of no one else. Most convincing of all it was Hickman who collected and retained every penny of the blood money—there was no division with anyone of that fearful loot. There is no trace of "Andrew Cramer" or "June Dunning" that the police can find. Almost beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt Hickman was not only the kidnaper but the slayer as well—and as such he must pay.

If there were errors of judgment on the part of the police in the early handling of this case, at a time when it appeared to be one of kidnaping only, they have been abundantly made up for by the relentless precision and energy with which the pursuit was conducted and the capture consummated. The officers who directed this gigantic man hunt, as well as those who finally drew tight the net of justice about the fugitive, are entitled to the thanks of every good citizen.

ON A GOLD BASIS
One of the best signs of the times is that Europe is getting back to a gold standard. England led the line, as might have been expected, and now comes Italy, the financial improvement of which has been so marked of late as to justify the conversion of currency to a gold basis at a ratio of nineteen to the dollar. It is evident that American aid or encouragement had something to do with the stabilizing of Italy's monetary system, as it is reported from London, where the negotiations were held, that Benjamin Strong, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, was present at the conference, along with a group of Anglo-American bankers, among whom were the oldest and most important correspondents of the Italian treasury.

Italy emerged from the war with an enormous debt. It owed about $5,000,000,000 to the United States and England, and had other heavy obligations. A liberal funding scheme was arranged with our government, and this, together with a much improved internal condition of affairs, has helped to put Italy on its feet. Mussolini has fought every attempt of unscrupulous speculators to continue the unjustified depreciation of Italian currency, and his efforts, together with American encouragement, have resulted in the steady rise of the lira, the national monetary unit.

About a year ago the lira was worth only thirty-one to the dollar, but the effect of the recent decision of a return to a gold basis soon will make it worth eighteen to the dollar, so it is reported, and will help along the era of prosperity which Mussolini has been promising. By dint of unusual efforts his administration has reduced unemployment from 542,000 in 1922 to less than 75,000 at the present time. This, however, has been due in part to emigration, which has been going on at an enormous rate, averaging more than 300,000 a year since the war.

FROM GREELEY TO GUMP
Not long ago the Dearborn Independent had an arresting article on "From Greeley to Gump, the Pathway taken by American Journalism." The modern newspaper was reproached for the too-frequent question, "What is Andy Gump doing?" not "What does this or that editor think concerning national or international affairs?"

Whether the newspaper is responsible for the change in the public attitude, or the public for the character of its journalism, may be a contestable question. Possibly the newspaper should accept its full share of censure. However, it is easy for a critic to slip into cynicism and tell the world.

Everybody is on wheels or wings. There is little time for reading even the best literature. Few take time to more than glance at a headline, and they often pilfer this from the newsboy's pack at the corner.

Truth personalized in a cartoon does trap public attention. Gump is slaying the blowguns of the country. Winnie Winkle is disillusioning beauty concerning the mirages of the movies just now. Harold Teen may be calf-eyed at times, but he is wholesome and he makes goofs out of the lounge lizards about him.

Facts have to be put up in sugar-coated capsules. Even hay made in the sunshine has to be baled. Long-winds in Congress or church are shunned. Specializing seems to be the only way of acquiring. Scenery has to be accepted at forty miles an hour. Who would drink at the fountain of knowledge dare not fall on all fours—he must lap as he runs.

If truth can be injected by a funny strip, why level a double-barreled column at a grasshopper? The sting of an illustrated epigram sticks.

The gamin may absorb as much profitable knowledge on the street now as a collegian did in Greeley's day.

From Greeley to Gump may not be just a step forward—it may be a half century run.

THE HAPPY CLIMAX
European critics, followed parrot-like in their remarks by a few Americans, decry the appetite of American theater audiences for happy endings to the tales unfolded in drama. The German dramatic critics are especially acrid in their criticism and seem to consider artless a screen or stage drama in which the hero is not boiled in oil at the finish while the heroine is dragged into Siberia or thrown to the rabble.

These critics who acknowledge their own superiority fail to consider the psychological differences between European, especially German, and American audiences. America demands a higher standard of drama than any other nation in the world, because she insists upon refinement, nobility and justice and refuses to see in injustice and cruelty the fundaments of art. It is infinitely harder to produce impressive drama in which these principles are upheld than to startle an audience with vulgar realism and outraged nobleness. That is the reason why Europe now seldom sends us inspirational motion pictures. The horrible example profits little, for man sees it by night and strives to forget it before breakfast. The victory of the unrighteous does not please, because the rest of the world along with America is looking for justice and finds no entertainment in representations of conquests by force. America has set up a higher, not a lesser, art which insists that its drama conform to the modern American unities—Entertainment, Refinement, Justice, Inspiration and Fine Art in Production.

ONE OF LIFE'S LITTLE TRAGEDIES

By James J. Montague

It is now asserted that all tobacco contains methyl alcohol

Being reared under strict regulations
Regarding wines, liquors and beer,
My fear of all brews and potations
Has ever been deep and sincere.
And so it but little distressed me
When a drastic reform came along
And the laws of the land dispossessed me
Of the right to drink anything strong.

When feeling depressed or down-hearted,
When my system went down below par,
I tilted my chair back and started
To puff at a big black cigar,
And the smoke which soared up in queer flurries
And floated away in the air
Seemed to ease all insidious worries—
And to drive away trouble and care.

I was proud that through all my existence
I had practiced a stern self-control,
And had built up a rigid resistance
To the demon that lurks in the bowl;
I was glad that I never had hovered
Over whisky and rum-reeking bars
Till a few days ago I discovered
That alcohol lurks in cigars!

THE LEE SIDE O' L.A.

By Lee Shippey

EVEN in toys there are signs of the times.

In one shop we noticed a very saucy doll, smoking a cigarette. Just the gift for the really up-to-date miss of 6 or 7. No, that's too old, isn't it? Well, then, from 3 to 5.

Armies Demobbed

The tin soldiers which used to be such popular toys for boys have fallen back. They have not exactly fled the field, but have sought bombproofs. Instead of marching out boldly with banners flying, they have vanished from view, and only by asking their whereabouts can one locate them in the average toy department. Then they are brought up from stockrooms or out from under counters—and they don't always look like this year's crop. Indeed, if Eugene Field were writing it now he probably would say:

The little tin soldier is needing a scrub
And his musket is all out of poise,
For the little boy's mother belongs to a club which bans all such fightin'-like toys.

Deadlier Things

So now the little boys must cultivate tastes for only nice safe things—especially motor cars and airplanes.

God Save the Stars

Dear Lee: I see Mr. Hoover has been discussing "the aims of aviation." Writing this from the hospital, I sincerely hope they will be higher and different from the aim of the speeding motorist. An aviator should aim only at the stars.

—Claire Claremore.

We know Claire can't be in motion pictures, for she tries to break into print without calling herself a star. But that name—you aren't trying to play a Shelley game, are you, Claire?

Startling Visions

A few years ago few people knew just what a city-planner was. Now they are so numerous—and different—that nobody knows. All men of vision are more or less city planners, and some of their visions are nightmares. There are so many here that a magazine, the Community Builder, with headquarters in the Union League Building, has been started to carry some of their ideas to the expectant world.

Parking to Spare

One of them gently suggests that all our business buildings be put on stilts, with ground floors cut out, so that traffic could swish and swirl this way and that all under them, and one might park anywhere. Or, to put it a little more conservatively, he'd want all our buildings arcaded for motor traffic and parking somewhat as the Broadway Arcade Building is for pedestrian traffic. Then we'd never have to park twenty blocks from where we wanted to go, and could get some real pleasure and convenience out of driving downtown.

Skyscraper Garages

Another has a plan somewhat less striking. He wants the city to erect height-limit garages, capable of garaging 4000 cars daily, at strategic points about the city. They should charge low rates, he says, and no parking whatever should be allowed in the streets. He thinks that would be more effective than widening the streets, and cost far less.

Prize Goops

Well, there are a lot of poorly balanced people in the world. But the majority of them are not city planners. They're the people who refuse to give due consideration to the city planners' ideas.

CHRISTMAS FANTASY

BY SHERIDAN BICKERS

Are you in danger of developing into a Christmas curmudgeon? If so, you are right out of season. Indeed, I doubt whether—like all who do not agree with us—you have a right to live at all! For a curmudgeon cannot be tolerated at Christmas. Let them "curmudge" all the year around, but there must be no grumbling or "grouching" at Yuletide.

The Christmas curmudgeon is "the most unhappy man of men." He has a full purse but an empty heart. Father Christmas cuts holes in his pockets. He makes his money run out at the heels of his boots. He drags him into toy shops and forces him to buy expensive toys for his little nephews and nieces—yea, even unto his own children. But the more this modern Mr. Scrooge spends, the more miserable he becomes. He is generous without joy, beneficent without being benevolent. His heart is like a bundle of dried-up sticks, wet with the tears of many lost hopes and disappointments, which will crackle, but will never glow. Yet there is Father Christmas, the Spirit of Fun and Good Nature, gazing at himself in the glass, beaming with the happiness he is about to create. His is more than magnanimity. It is Yulanimity!

Come! Let us all be Yulanimous, Yuleficent and Yulevolent! Let us frolic again like children. Our Christmas curmudgeon may sneer at "callow youth" and the verdancy of virility. He has a heart like a dried-up pea, a brain like an addled egg and a self-consciousness like an over-ripe Camembert cheese.

He is green with jealousy of our joyfulness. He has no household gods of his own. His self-appointed mission in life is to "nose out" some imaginary evil in the "household gods" of the happy. He is always denouncing this form of enjoyment or trying to stop that. He is a cant-crank and a killjoy. All the year round he boasts of "keeping children in their proper place."

Christmas Is Childmas

James Douglas once said that Christmas sould be called Childmas. It is a happy thought, for every Christmas time we all want to become children again. When this period of the year comes round the children overwhelm us. The fetters are shaken off their childish limbs; the gags are taken out of their mouths. From a hundred thousand schools our boys and girls come laughing and leaping. Let us at least laugh, if we can no longer leap, with them. Cannot our eyes be bright again with hope? May not our hearts bound with eager anticipation? Let us take at least one lesson from the young at this glad season of the year. Let us learn to laugh.

If we could only learn to see ourselves with the eyes of the child! If only we could be filled this Christmas with a sense of our own ridiculousness. If only we might be allowed to see the clown in the clergyman, we should respect him just as much and love him a heap more. If only that "killjoy" crusading against her brothers and sisters could be converted into a columbine! She would be no worse a woman, and a more happy and healthful companion. Or that jaded journalist! What would one not give to see him trip into the editorial sanctum as a Harlequin in merry motley?

Forces of Fairyland

But here come the children of our dear old world. Here come the happy forces of Fairyland with their frenzied field marshals, their merry majors, their creeping captains, and their baby brigadiers. Look at that little trumpeter! God bless you, old boy, and make you always sound the "Reveille" to life's fallen throughout your life and career. Listen to the gurgles of that infant general and to the glad shouts of that baby brigadier!

Let us this Christmas not rob our children of the joy of games. If we have no children of our own, let us go gladly and plead to be allowed to play with our friends' children. And on this Christmas Day, go out from that happy home of yours, if but for an hour. Search the highways and the byways of our city's streets until you find some sad or lonely little soul—whose poor mother and father "cannot" or "are not!" Have compassion, good folk, on the childless doll and on the dollless child. Fill those empty arms and those hungry little bodies. Cheer those lonely little hearts.

Perhaps you then will be rewarded on Christmas night with the beautiful vision of a sleeping angel with a rag-doll infant clasped to her passionate breast.

A GAME OF CHESS

Well, Margaret—you've won the game,
And handsome, too, I must allow;
For yesterday you did the same,
So we are fifty-fifty now.

That was a pretty battle line,
Our men all standing vis a vis;
You moved a pawn as I did mine
Just where the struggle was to be.

Around the board, at right or left,
I chased your knights and bishops too
It little helped, you were so deft,
You had my queen before I knew.

A castle stood on my right hand.
Help—quick! I heard the warden call,
My bishop flew to give a hand,
It was too late, I saw it fall.

My king now too was bottled up,
How could I thus anticipate,
But worse—the last drop in the cup,
I looked, and lo, it was a mate.

But listen, Margaret, this is sure,
Of many pleasures, old or new,
There is not one that could allure,
Like playing chess, my dear, with you.

A Belated Settlement

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Although the great war has been over for a number of years, the recent financial settlement with Greece, announced only a short time ago by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon—a settlement that will mean the eventual release of greatly needed funds for humanitarian purposes—is, to me, a former member of the American Diplomatic Corps in Athens, an event that merits the unqualified support of every member of Congress. Though it is belated acquiesence on the part of our government to an old contract, it comes at a time when funds undoubtedly are urgently needed. The action should have the fullest support of our citizenry.

One of the main points of the present settlement is that Greece, while agreeing to relinquish a claim of $33,000,000 ($15,000,000 having been advanced early in the contractual period) in exchange for a loan of $12,000,000, will get money which is urgently needed for the rehabilitation of a million and a half refugees (20 per cent of the total population of Greece) who arrived in the motherland between 1923 and 1924. Of these refugees the larger number are agriculturists, and these have been settled upon land in Macedonia, and other sections. A great difficulty to be overcome is the extremely heavy percentage of women and children. Greece, not being an industrial country, has found it necessary to create industries where women can find employment, and, now that the agricultural refugees are settled, the commission is in need of immediate funds to establish small industries where the women can become self-supporting.

The Secretary of the Treasury has pointed out in his statement that the proposed new loan is amply secured, that the funds will be applied in entirety to the work of the Refugee Settlement Commission, and that consequently the United States will be in the position of aiding a great humanitarian work without any financial risk, as well as clearing up a question which has presented many complications.

Lax Law Enforcement

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] You have asked me for an expression of opinion as to the Parker murder case. I can only point out that this is the pass to which the sob-sisters (chiefly those in pants) and the morons who oppose capital punishment have brought this community. The monstrous crime against justice by which Loeb and Leopold were permitted to live still stinks in the nostrils of the world. It merely encouraged and incited this latest crime by some accidentally incarnated devil from the lowest region of hell, to which he will return.

The first duty of a State is to protect its genuine human citizens: America has failed in that duty, so that many a man and woman will exclaim today: "Thank God, I have no children!" There is no excuse. One bears the lazy remark that "this is such a big country," which is all the more reason why those caught in cold-blooded crime should be punished with greater celerity and damning force than obtains even in England. Instead, we see most of the machinery for law enforcement busying itself with what people drink, and thereby prolonging the lives and sharpening the wits of these very criminals whom the police, through no fault of their own, are too busy to watch and classify.

The police are not at fault, they have proven themselves brave, and may yet prove themselves intelligent. The fault lies with law enforcement which is, in the words of Chief Justice Taft (an intelligent individual,) a national disgrace.

Hospitals and Poor Houses First

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] To a community horrified, enraged and grief-stricken by the vilest crime in California's history, comes the announcement in the Tuesday morning paper that the entire cast of an operatic production is to sing carols to the inmates of the City Jail on Christmas morning, as "the most becoming way for the troupe to celebrate the holiday."

What of the crippled children, the soldiers at Sawtelle, the people in hospitals and old people's homes, and all the other deserving unfortunates into whose drab days such entertainment might bring real pleasure? But no, let us by all means have Christmas carols sung to the murderers, the dope fiends and perverts, the attackers of women and children, the thieves, and to all the lawless inmates of our prisons!

So long as these creatures are objects of the sympathy of the unthinking and careless, and of the maudlin, snivelling sentimentalists, crime and depravity will continue to flourish.

PEN POINTS

1880: He took his pen in hand. 1927: He took his typewriter in his arms.

The universal draft will be more fair. Then nobody can be blamed for being a second lieutenant.

Saying to a child, "You are too young to understand," usually means, "I am too stupid to explain."

Give Japan credit for one thing. She thinks of America as a nation—not as Santa Claus or Shylock.

Fable: There are seven females in the family, and not one is knitting dad a pair of bedroom slippers.

It's nice to have a maid to answer the door, but it spoils the alibi you have for the bill collector.

Once we had wine, women and song; now the combination is Bevo, boyish lines and statis.

Slowly the race becomes less hairy and less savage. Bald men seldom are quarrelsome.

Americanism: A fear that the kids will go to the dogs; a conviction that you turned out well in spite of being the same kind of kid.

Stories of that kind aren't sent, but formerly they were told to stable loafers instead of bad buyers.

It's hard to love your neighbor, however, if he has a cold and assists in delivering his conversation at close range.

Three kinds of calves: Veal, cattle, street ornaments and men who blame their wives for their failure.

Funny man! He growls about getting left-overs for supper at home, and tips the waiter who brings him left-overs at a restaurant.

Policemen are a decent lot. In the average town they are the only ones who don't know where the gambling dens are.

At any rate it was a capitalistic country that so arranged things as to provide a market for two-pants suits.

What doth it profit an Italian politician to get elected for one term and convicted for another?

Chicago can't clean house while she clings to the belief that you can't prove a man is a gangster until he's dead.

Correct this sentence: "I never criticise anybody," said he, "by doing the things that I do."

Republican candidates have to do their hoping early, too.

Dad can hardly wait for young son to unwrap his mechanical toy.

An English investigation discloses that a wife is only half as strong as a husband, but she is still the better half.

Mussolini objects to the whirl of American dances and doesn't like jazz, either. He is beginning to be a more human dictator.

RIPPLING RHYMES
by Walt Mason

CHRISTMAS TIME

It is Christmas season, and once again we hold that he is in league with treason whose heart is stern and cold. At Christmas every fellow with glee should be allgut, and show he can be mellow when all the signs are right. Of course the years have made us inclined to sigh and brood, the edge of life has frayed us and caused a fatal mood. We think about the sweet the coin we had to blow, to make the Christmas sunny amid the wintry snow. We think of heavy taxes we'll shortly have to pay, of business, which relaxes at every holiday. We think of bitter weather and of the price of coal, of storms which come together from near the northern pole. And if we sit surveying the troubles yet to dawn, the kids around us playing will find their gladness gone. They'll see their elders holding like statues of despair, brooding woes and cooking with sighs the Christmas air. And this will not a blanket upon the children's glee; the Christmas greenbacks rank it with basest perfidy. So let us all be joyous upon the festive day; let no cheap fears annoy us, let's shoo them all away. When all the bells are quiet, and all the lights are dead, and children, tired of riot, have scampered off to bed, then we may take our places upon the mourner's bench and readjust our faces with the good monkey wrench. Then we can brood and suffer in sackcloth dusty gray, but he's a cruel duffer who'd spoil a Christmas Day.

STATE TO CLOTHE HIM FREE

After twice pleading guilty to charges of stealing clothes, Edward J. Campbell, 35 years of age, yesterday was sentenced to Folsom prison by Superior Judge Hardy, where he must serve a term of from seven to tetn years. His clothing will be furnished by the State free during that time.

The total value of the stolen clothing was $15.75, according to Dep. Dist.-Atty. Brayton, who prosecuted the case. The sentence provides approximately 1.5 days' imprisonment for each penny of value of the stolen articles.

Campbell was brought into court this time charged with the theft of a leather coat from the Army and Navy Department Store valued at $10.75, on the 12th inst. He pleaded guilty to this charge and to a prior conviction in March, 1926, and another in 1921.

NEW YORK AT ANCHOR IN PORT

Arrives After $3,000,000 Overhaul

Tripod Masts Outstanding Feature

Conduct Gunnery and Other Tests Here

After a $3,000,000 job of modernization which has made her the equal of any post-Jutland ship, the U.S.S. New York yesterday dropped anchor in Pier 3 in the local roadstead. She steamed three years ago. Because of her unwieldy cage masts and her top hamper, the New York is the most handsome ship in the fleet.

Following her return to the battleship fold after a seventeen-gun salute to Admiral Louis R. de Steiguer, commander-in-chief, as she slid through the channel fog at daybreak, gone are her familiar cage masts, and New York now has the British-type mast and by the conversion of her smokestacks has been fitted with these two changes and installing a large amount of gear previously filled with mast bases, stacks and fire control gear. The New York also has been supplied with the latest type fire control systems for all batteries and on top of No. 3 turret is a catapult for launching amphibian observation planes.

HER NEW MASTS

A complete outer hull has been built over the ship's regular hull and armor belt, for submarine torpedo protection, giving her freeboard the "rumble-home" of a Dutch freighter. Her main deck has also been armored against aerial bombing attacks and high-angle gunfire.

TESTS TO BE MADE

The New York was in process of modernization at the Norfolk Navy Yard from September 1, 1926 to October 1, 1927, leaving for Los Angeles Harbor immediately upon completion of her shakedown cruise. She therefore has yet to fire all of her annual gunnery exercises and these will be executed during the next two months independent of Battleship Division Three, of which she is a unit.

Her speed and standardization trials also have yet to be held and it is planned to conduct them off this coast on her return from Hawaii next summer with the battle fleet.

Capt. Clarence A. Abele is the New York's present commander. Her executive officer is Commander George H. Bowdey.

CASH IN PROSPECT FOR MISSING COOK

Christmas cash may be waiting for J. N. Brendlin, a cook, whose present whereabouts are not known. He owns a plot of ground in the San Joaquin Valley and an oil operator is desirous of leasing the property. Frank Jones, 706 Petroleum Securities Building, says he is endeavoring to locate Brendlin to advise him of his good fortune. Jones represents the oil operator.

Claire Windsor

KIDNAPER BLAMED FOR SPEEDING

Actress Steps on Gas as She Reads About Crime; Fine of $15 Suspended

Frightened by accounts of the Parker girl's murder, Miss Claire Windsor, motion-picture actress, was speeding to her home on the night of the 16th inst., when Policemen Barnes and Phillips arrested her for driving thirty-five miles an hour on Rossmore avenue. She explained yesterday to Municipal Judge Valentine, "Though I really was not afraid, details of the tragedy so preyed upon my subconcious mind I found myself stepping on the gas, so to speak," the actress said.

Judge Valentine was impressed by Miss Windsor's story to the extent that he suspended a $15 fine, but requested her to prevent her subconscious mind from "running away" in the future.

Miss Windsor said she was returning from a meeting of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences at the Roosevelt Hotel at 11:15 p.m., when the officers drove up behind her.

NEW CAFE OPENS TOMORROW

Frank Sebastian, proprietor of Sebastian's Cotton Club in Washington Boulevard, Culver City, announces the opening tomorrow night of his new cafe known as Sebastian's London Club.

The new roadside cafe is next door to his present Cotton Club, and also will be under the personal supervision of Sebastian.

The opening will inaugurate a gala revue, "The Sensations of 1928," with a large cast.

Jumbo Smith's Seven London Highhatters will provide the music.

DE LUXE DINNER PLANNED

The California Hotel in Fullerton is planning a Christmas dinner de luxe, to be served on Sunday and Monday, from 12 noon to 8 p.m.

That hotel is the mecca of many autoists who desire a delightful automotive drive, followed by an excellent meal. The drive to Fullerton is one of the shorter very enjoyable trips available to Angelenos.

TURKEY DINNERS PROMISED

Special turkey Christmas dinners are scheduled for next Sunday and for next Monday at noon and in the evening, in the Rosslyn Hotel, Fifth and Main streets, as announced yesterday by Hart Brothers, proprietors.

Imperial Valley milk-fed turkeys, with all the "fixin's" are on the holiday menus of that downtown hostelry, the dining room of which is open to the public.

OPERA PLANNED FOR PARIS INN

Christmas will be celebrated in the Paris Inn Cafe in East Market street, opposite the new City Hall, on Monday.

I. Pedroli, chef of the Paris Inn, will prepare a special New England turkey dinner for the occasion.

A souvenir of a Christmas tree in miniature will be given to each guest.

Grand opera and Italian street singing will comprise the musical programs.

BLARNEY GIRL OPENS CAFE

The opening of a new cafe in West Hollywood in Santa Monica Boulevard, known as Maggie's Irish Shack, occurred a few days ago.

The new restaurant is typically Irish, from design to food and service.

Music is furnished by Fred Stross, pianist and composer.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

Among the lovely affairs of yesterday was the exquisitely appointed luncheon with which Miss Virginia Caroline Deardorff entertained in the afternoon at the Los Angeles Country Clubhouse, the affair being a post-nuptial courtesy to Mrs. Gabriel Duque, formerly Miss Mary McAllister, whose wedding was an event of the fall, the especial feature of the affair being the announcement of the engagement of the charming young hostess to James Worden Roberts, son of the late Hon. Worden Ballinger Roberts and Mrs. Roberts of Spokane, Wash., and Los Angeles.

Miss Deardorff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Deardorff and the announcement was made by cards concealed in the corsage bouquets of holly and mistletoe which formed the place favors at the luncheon. Twenty guests were bidden and the Yuletide motif was stressed with gorgeous royal poinsettias, holly berries, red candles and tiny Christmas trees on a cloth of silver adding to the festiveness of the scene.

Those included were Mrs. Edward Wormhoudt, Mrs. Linden Hayden Hayes, Mrs. Raymond Tremaine, Mrs Daniel W. Ferguson, Mrs. Mark Finley, Miss Elaine Osborn, Miss Edna Louise Ruwe, Miss Katherine Jean, Mrs. Max Hebgen, Miss Katherine Tilden, Miss Eleanor Connell, Mrs. Garnet Cecil Rainey, Mrs. Rush Cameron Hinsdale, Miss Ruth Briner, Mrs. John T. Dye, Miss Louise Kelson, Miss Alva Woodhouse, Mrs. Harold Parsons of Kansas City, Mrs Charles Eaton Hewing, Miss Madeleine Purdon, Mrs. Charles Henry Thompson, Mrs. Cecil R. Luton, Mrs. John D. Finley, Mrs. Anne Wolverton (sister of the bridegroom-elect) Mrs. Burnett H. Wohlford, Miss Frances Jameson, Mrs. David Baldwin Heyler, Miss Harriett Andrews the hostess guest of honor and Mrs. Harvey Deardorff.

Miss Deardorff was graduated from Marlborough School and passed all of last summer traveling abroad with her parents. She also attended the University of California at Los Angeles where she was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She belongs to one of the oldest pioneer families of Kansas City. Mr. Roberts was a student at University of California at Berkeley and was also graduated from the Belmont Military Academy. No date is set as yet for the wedding.

Another Engagement

Of more than usual interest to local society is the announcement made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar G. Dulin of 340 South Alexandria avenue of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jean Dulin, to Thomas Nast St. Hill of Pasadena.

Mr. St. Hill is the son of Ralph Woodford St. Hill, who is living in London, Eng., and the late Mrs. Ralph Woodford St. Hill of New York City. The news was told yesterday afternoon at a charmingly appointed small tea to which Miss Dulin had asked a few of her most intimate friends. Miss Dulin was graduated from Marlborough School and later from the Mt. Vernon Seminary in Washington, while Mr. St. Hill is an alumnus of both Andover College and Yale University. He served overseas with the artillery division during the World War and was also an airplane observer.

No date has been set as yet for the wedding which, however, probably will be an event of the very near future.

Miss Dulin assisted as maid of honor at the recent wedding of Miss Elsie Wright and Frederick Ford.

Philharmonic Affairs

The Philharmonic Symphony concerts this week are the incentive for a number of delightful affairs, Miss Louise Burke entertaining this afternoon with a luncheon of eight covers at her home in Berkeley Square, while last evening Dr. and Mrs. Bertnard Smith were hosts at a dinner party at their home, 324 South Ardmore avenue, honoring the latter's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs Sayre Macneil (Daphne Drake,) of Boston who with their children, Maria Antonia, Hugh and James Macneil, have come to Los Angeles for the Christmas holidays. They are guests of their mothers, Mrs. Hugh Livingstone Macneil and Mrs. James Calhoun Drake. The guests were taken to the symphony concert after the dinner.

Many other delightful affairs are being planned in their honor during their visit here, Mrs. Drake giving a tea in honor of her daughter Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Macneil has a chair at Harvard University, and they arrived here Wednesday.

Smart Banquet

The retired officers of the Alumni Association of the University of Kansas entertained Tuesday evening with a smartly appointed banquet at the Mary Louise Tea Rooms in West Seventh street. A mixed assembly of more than 200 persons assembled to honor Chancellor Lindley, who is visiting in Los Angeles. John Rust, president, Gomer Thomas, vice-president, and Angela Fogarty, treasurer, retired officers of the association, were in charge of the evening, and the alumni colors of crimson and blue were carried out, and candles in tall crystal holders lighted the board.

Georgeous royal poinsettias graced the tables in a most artistic manner and following the banquet the members elected the officers for the ensuing year.

PLANTS THAT EAT STONE

It is difficult enough to imagine how moles succeed in burrowing their way through hard-packed earth under the sod, but it seems even more incredible that living creatures can burrow through solid stone!

This is so, however, and the creatures that do it are not sturdy animals, but minute living plants, so small that they cannot be seen without a microscope.

These amazing tunnel makers belong to the tribe of Algae, like those that form the green scum on stagnant water. They possess the extraordinary power of dissolving the rock on which they grow, provided the rock contains lime. Billions of them, growing along the seashore are known to have eaten away huge limestone cliffs.—[London Tit-Bits

STORK REGULAR VISITOR

CHINO, Dec. 22.—Mrs. M. Barbosa of Chino has given birth to her nineteenth child, according to Dr. G. E. Noggle, who has been attending physician at a few of the stork functions. Of the nineteen babies born to the woman, ten are living. Mrs. Barbosa is 42 years of age.

Nearly all old women do the heavy work of porters in Dieppe, France, in the fish markets and on the beach, where they carry loads of stone weighing 150 to 200 pounds on their backs.

THE BIDDING

Final Bid 1 N.T. Played by EAST

Salient Points of the Bidding

West opened the bidding with an introductory Club bid, instead of a No Trump, because of his unprotected Heart doubleton. East, having all the suits stopped other than the suit bid by his partner, bids one No Trump, which concludes the bidding.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. The vital point of defensive play to save game is in this trick. It is apparent to North that the chance of South's holding a side card of entry cannot be seriously considered, in view of the strength of his own hand and that of Dummy, and inferentially that of the Declarer. Therefore, the Heart suit must be made if possible, without dependence upon a side entry in Dummy. North sees the necessity of conceding the immediate loss of a Heart trick, in case East holds the King. Without positive knowledge of the location of the Ace of Hearts, East cannot hold up the King. Should North play the Ace, East will hold up on the return lead, and the suit cannot be made.

WAREHOUSE CASE NEAR END

Jury's Deliberations Expected to Begin Today With Arguments of Both Sides Completed

With arguments by government prosecutors and defense attorneys the case of four defendants on trial in United States District Judge Henning's court on charges of conspiracy to rob the Federal warehouse of nearly 800 cases of confiscated liquor was completed yesterday.. It is expected the case will be placed before the jury for deliberation early today.

The defendants on trial are Lieut.-Col. Bruce Butler, Maj. Harry Brown, Maj. Donald McRae and Joseph Walsh. Seven others, also accused, already have pleaded guilty and are awaiting disposition of their cases. M. A. Morrison, another defendant, now is in a Long Beach hospital and will be taken before the court after his recovery from an operation.

Several character witnesses were placed on the stand yesterday on behalf of the defendants. George Contreras, chief of detectives for the District Attorney, who testified regarding two witnesses formerly in his employ, was the last witness.

In the arguments it was contended by U. S. Atty. McNabb and Asst. U. S. Atty. Simpson that the plans to plunder the warehouse were carefully made with the idea of making money, whereas it was asserted by the defense attorneys, Otto Christensen, W. V. Anderson and Frank McNulty, that the defendants are the victims of circumstances and are not guilty.

CLOUDS THAT NEVER MOVE

An odd formation of the mountain of Crose Fell in Westmoreland sets up a peculiar "draught" which in a high wind produces the curious local effect known as the "Helm."

This is a cloud which in the fiercest gale remains, so to speak, anchored immediately over the summit of the mountain, while over another point some miles away another cloud, known as the "Bar," also remains stationary. Between the two points the wind rushes down with extraordinary violence, being sucked up again under the "Bar" in a sort of whirlwind which before now has been known to lift a man and even a haystack.

At the same time its current produces a shrieking sound extremely uncanny, and it was owing to this that in the old days the mountain was known as Fiends' Fell.

SOLDIER'S WILL ON TAG

Pathetic interest attaches to a Royal Navy identification disc, bearing on one side the name of its owner, together with the particulars. On the reverse side, engraved in microscopic writing on the smooth metal, is a will. It was executed in February, 1916, by William Skinner of H. M. S. Indefatigable, who was lost with that ship in the battle of Jutland.

The disc was eventually recovered from the bottom of the sea, and, on being cleaned, revealed its secret. The testator left everything he died possessed of to his wife.

COLLEGE GIRLS IN SALESLADY RANKS

In some of the larger Fifth-avenue stores college girls are beginning to displace the old-time shop girls Of 800 girls in one of the large establishments more than 200 have college degrees and some 450 more have had at least one year of higher education. During the last decade beginners' salaries have advanced considerably, and the working day has been shortened—both being factors that seem to count with the new type of clerk. The principal inducement, however, according to personnel managers, is the opportunity a college girl feels such work gives for advancement to executive posts. As one manager laughingly puts it:

"All the girls we employ begin talking about buyers' trips to Paris before the ink is dry on their application blanks."

The girl behind the counter of a smart department store today is known as a "saleslady" or "sale-girl." The old appellation of "shop girl" is extinct, the employers say.

The recent influx of college girls, according to some employment managers, has glutted the saleslgirl market.

"There is a great overflow of college girls," said one executive "We are turning them away by the hundreds. They come from the large colleges and small, but they continue to arrive in numbers beyond our hiring capacity."

Members of the Junior League are also found among the candidates.

Requirements for a Fifth-avenue saleslgirl are given by one personnel head as good personality, sportsmanship, leadership, courage, understanding, an inquisitive mind and above all, good health.

The new caliber of the store personnel now enables a store to fill higher vacancies from the ranks and the confidence of the girls in the opportunities of sales work is accordingly not misplaced. At the beginning of last year one store filled forty positions with girls taken from behind the counter. They were first placed in the store's special training school for three or four months.

The stress placed on specialization in department-store merchandising has also helped attract a superior type of girls, it is said.—[New York Times.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mrs Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply

THE RIGHT KIND OF BEDTIME HOUR

It is a very unusual baby who doesn't spend the last hour of his busy and exciting day in whimpering and crying. About 5 o'clock, if he is used to being put in bed at 6, he will set up a discontented and unhappy howl and keep it up until bedtime. It is too late to walk him around the block. It is too near his bedtime to let him go to sleep. And there is usually dinner cooking on the stove which has to be watched. Good gracious what shall we do with this cross baby?

This is the time when the young tyrant will be made as meek as a lamb and as happy as a—whatever is the happiest thing you can think of—merely by being undressed right down to his small band and diaper and put on the bed in a lovely warm room and allowed to frolic all by himself.

If there is anything a small baby loves it is to get out of all those hampering clothes. He may hang his own dimpled hands in the air and wave them about for a half-hour, eternally interested in them. He may find a nice plump toe at the end of a curled-up leg and undoubtedly he will stuff it promptly into his mouth. If he gives it a good bite he'll learn unmistakably that the thing belongs to him, which at 4 or 5 months is a noteworthy discovery for any baby to make.

Instead of bouncing the baby about, in a frantic attempt to keep him quiet during this terribly long hour, let the mother, or rapt brothers or sisters, sit on the edge of the bed and watch the baby play. They'll find that he never lacks for new and startling things to do. And how he'll love doing them! No game ever invented by an adult can be half as fascinating as the game of tag a baby can play with his hands and feet; or the peek-a-boo he can invent by simply disappearing behind his own hands, or by turning over. The disappearance and reappearance of his smiling relatives will cause him to shout with glee.

Don't let him get cold. If his feet seem cold put on his stockings though this does spoil some of the fun. He'll get tired in about three-quarters of an hour and so at 5:45, give him a quick massage with your hands; or sponge him off rapidly, and slip him into an uncreased band and fresh diaper; put on his sleeper and nurse him or give him his warm bottle.

Too much excitement at bed time is sleep-destroying; but this sort of activity and play will merely give the mite just the normal amount of healthful exercise to make sleep come as a welcome conclusion. And what a boon such a bed time is to the tired mother!

Table May Be a Dream In Scarlet, Silver and Green

By Florence La Ganke

Nancy's Christmas table was one of the prettiest she ever had seen. First she covered the table with fine, white damask, ironed until it shone. In the center she placed a five-pointed star cut from silver paper. On this she set the scarlet pot holding a small whitewashed Christmas tree. This was trimmed with tiny scarlet tapers and silver tinsel ribbon. At each corner of the star was a cluster of Christmas berries with a few dull green leaves.

In the dining room there was an overhead light fixture. Depending from this she arranged a cluster of silver balls used for Christmas-tree ornaments. They were of varying sizes and were so arraged that they looked like a bunch of silver grapes. Holly leaves were attached at the top of the bunch. Joan was fascinated by the decoration and wanted to telephone Uncle Peter to come home and see the "booful grapes." Nancy had seen other colors used but since her dining room was silver, scarlet and green she chose the glistening silver ones.

Every day tables may be as well set as Christmas tables. Write to Nancy Page, care of this paper, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Ask for her leaflet on table etiquette.

CHEF WYMAN'S Suggestions for TOMORROW'S MENU

COUNTRY SAUSAGE

Run through the fine knife of the meat chopper two pounds of lean pork and one pound of fat pork; work into the pork a seasoning of fresh ground black pepper, salt and sage; add four tablespoonfuls of ice water and form into twelve even-sized round cakes; dredge baking pan and cook until well done in a moderate oven.

Apples to serve with the sausage should be cored, but not peeled, cut in thick slices, dipped into flour and fried until soft and brown on both sides in hot butter.

ORANGE BREAD PUDDING

Cover one and a half cupfuls of fine bread crumbs with three cupfuls of milk, and let stand fifteen minutes; add to them three well-beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful of salt, three cupfuls of peeled and diced oranges, two tablespoonfuls of grated orange rind, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter and three-quarters of a cupful of sugar; mix well, pour into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a moderate oven thirty-five minutes. Serve hot or cold.

ONION SOUP

Cook three large peeled onions in slightly salted water until tender and rub through a sieve. Heat in a saucepan three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, rub smooth, beat into three cupfuls of milk and stir and cook ten minutes; add the onion puree, a seasoning of salt and pepper, and two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped parsley. Beat with an egg beater until smooth and hot and serve with croutons.

CORNED BEEF

Wash well a four or five-pound piece of corned brisket of beef, drain, place in a pot, cover with cold water, bring to a boil, skim well, cover the pot and simmer slowly until nearly done. Add peeled carrots and peeled potatoes and cook until the vegetables are tender. Lift out the beef onto a hot platter and place around it the cooked carrots and potatoes.

CABBAGE AND NUT SALAD

Mix four cupfuls of finely shredded young cabbage with one cupful of chopped walnut meats, two chopped pimientos, two chopped green peppers, two teaspoonfuls of salt, four tablespoonfuls of chopped spiced pickles, and one cupful of lemon French dressing. Drain, mound on six lettuce-covered plates, cover with a cooked salad dressing and sprinkle paprika and finely chopped parsley over it.

APPLE COBBLER

Mix five cupfuls of peeled and diced apples with three-quarters of a cupful of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of ground cinnamon, half a teaspoonful of salt, and half a teaspoonful of ground mace. Place in a deep, buttered baking pan, dot with three tablespoonfuls of butter broken in small bits and pour over three-quarters of a cupful of water. Cover with a short biscuit dough, brush with melted butter, cut three slits in the top and bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes, pour over a syrup made by boiling three-quarters of a cupful of grated lemon rind. Bake ten minutes and serve.

Mrs. Wyman to Give Yule Menu

Mrs. Macelle (Chef) Wyman will give her last cooking lesson before the holidays in the food demonstration rooms of the Manufacturers Exhibit, 130 South Broadway, Southwest Building, at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. Visitors are invited, and should take the elevators direct to the third floor.

Mrs. Wyman will have considerable to say about the best means of preparing and cooking the Christmas turkey and all the fixings therefor, including desserts appropriate to the occasion.

CROSSING PROBLEM UP

The City Council has recommended that the Los Angeles county grade crossing committee make an investigation of possible grade crossing separations at One Hunderd and Fourteenth street southeasterly of Main street. No action will be taken by the Council on the proposed widening of One Hundred and Fourteenth street at this point until the grade-crossing problem has been solved.

HOTEL TO RAISE TROUT

A desert trout pond is to be installed on the grounds of the new El Mirador Hotel at Palm Springs, it was announced yesterday by Warren B. Pinnel, president of the hotel company. The pond will hold every variety of trout found in Southern California, to be caught on request of the guest for serving.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

by Dr Frank McCoy author of "The Next Year to Remain"

THE WATER CURE

As the uses of water are better understood we find that this indispensable element can be used in so many ways in the maintenance of health and in overcoming conditions of disease!

It is vitally important to furnish the body with a good supply of water to be used in the metabolistic processes, and for eliminating both the natural toxins and extra amounts of impurities which need to be thrown out after any unusual mental or physical exertion.

There is always more danger in not using enough water than there is in the use of too much! And it is best to do the water-drinking between meals when the stomach is empty, as this does not interfere with digestion, and the stomach is not overdistended by the combination of food and water.

Those who are attempting to cure themselves of any disease will do well to use two or three quarts of water a day, even though they do not feel thirsty for this amount. The purest water obtainable should be used, and if any doubt exists as to the purity of the water, it is always a safe plan to use distilled water, which is entirely free from minerals and bacterial micro-organisms.

In certain disorders where water cannot be taken through the mouth, the system can be well supplied with sufficient water through the use of the Murphy-drip attachment, which can be used with any ordinary fountain syringe. This treatment is taken in much the same way as an enema except that the flow of water is controlled so that it enters the intestines drop by drop and is absorbed through the intestine walls. Again, distilled water is the best to use for this purpose, as it is absorbed in about half the time required for ordinary tap water.

One of the best uses of water for cleansing the body is the plain warm water enema. One quart is usually sufficient at a time, and such enemas should be used in every case of acute or chronic disorder and their use continued until the patient has entirely recovered.

Much of the bodily elimination of impurities takes place through the pores of the skin.

Frequent shower or sponge baths keep the skin clean and the mouths of the pores open so as to encourage more elimination!

Every man, woman and child should take at least two of these showers or sponge baths daily. If cool or cold water is used, several shower baths may be taken daily without any possibility of a "weakening effect."

Hot tub baths are enervating, and should not be used except in rare cases where it seems advisable to bring about bodily relaxation.

A clean body—inside and out—cannot be a sick body!

If you wish to get well and remain so, you will find that the various uses of water furnish one of the most effective—most easily available—and, at the same time, one of the cheapest treatments you can employ.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: F. A. N. asks: "Will you please tell me how I can overcome fainting spells, and what causes them? I cannot have a slight pain without turning very weak and sick, and unless I lie down under a fan or apply wet cloths to my head I will faint. I cannot even listen to people talking of operations without having a fainting spell which leaves me weak for half a day. Severe pain will not make me sick or faint, but slight, uncomfortable pains always make me sick to the extent that I almost faint."

Answer: You may have some kind of heart trouble, or you may be overnervous, due to wrong mental and physical training. Of course, I cannot tell you specifically what is causing your trouble without a personal consultation and examination.

Q.: Mrs. F. G. H. writes: "Will you please name the foods that are noncatarrh-producing? I have a cold in the head all winter. I may have chronic catarrh. If so, can diet cure this trouble?"

A.: You can use all of the nonstarchy vegetables and the fruits without producing any excessive catarrhal mucus. All of the foods high in calory value, such as the starches, sugars and proteins may be said to be catarrh-producing if used in large quantities. The hydrocarbons, that is, the fats and oils, also contribute their share in adding to the toxins which irritate the mucous membranes and produce catarrh. The best diet for you to take is one free from starches, sugars and fats, but with a small amount of protein and plenty of nonstarchy vegetables.

Q.: M. J. R. asks: "Are sulphur and molasses good for the blood? If so, how often and how much should be taken?"

A.: The sulphur and molasses treatment is no doubt effective in removing some intestinal toxemias, but a fruit fast is far superior for accomplishing this effect.

SALVATION ARMY HOST TO CHILDREN

Christmas Tree and Gifts for Needy Little Folks; Affair This Afternoon

The Salvation Army will have its Christmas tree and distribution of gifts to the poor children today at 2:30 p.m. at army headquarters, 832 West Ninth street.

Maj. and Mrs. James C. Bell have arranged for Santa Claus to give out the toys to 1500 children who will come from all parts of the city to be guests of the army at this Christmas party.

An enjoyable Yuletide program will be given by talented members of the army. Toys and Christmas stockings filled with nuts and candies are piled about the big Christmas tree ready for the 1500 boys and girls who look to the army for their Christmas.

The 4500 who will be given these Christmas baskets have been sent to the army through its relief department and other welfare agencies, and the army investigators know all are worthy, needy cases.

Fun for Those Santa Missed

The Mutual Club gave its children's Christmas party in the music room of the Biltmore yesterday noon. Each member had been instructed to search diligently for a child that might have been overlooked by Santa Claus and bring the boy or girl in person to the party.

There were 100 children, representing many nationalities and, in addition to the turkey dinner, presents and Santa Claus they clapped their tiny hands in glee in response to a juvenile entertainment which lasted an hour.

Plea Entered to Save Trees

In order that a valuable orange grove may be protected from cold weather, special letters of administration were asked yesterday in the estate of Edna R. Satterwhite, who died the 18th inst. Carl O. Benson, business manager for Mrs. Satterwhite, made the application.

The appointment is sought pending probate of the will, in which Benson is nominated as executor. Judge Crail will hear the application in a few days.

Puritas Distilled Water

—has health giving qualities

The Puritas type of water has all the health-giving qualities of other types of water, such as well, spring, and mineral waters and in addition it has special powers of absorption and elimination, which make it superior to other kinds of water for conditions as acidosis, toxemia, and autointoxication.

In many serious conditions, the Puritas type of water is especially recommended, such as high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, calcium and uric acid deposits. For the elimination of an excess of poisonous waste and mineral matter, this type of water cannot be equaled.

The Puritas type of water has been called by many users "the ideal drink," and "The Fountain of Youth."

Puritas Distilled Water is free from the various objectionable impurities and impurities—animal and vegetable—often found in other kinds of bottled water; Puritas conforms to the most exacting sanitary, scientific, and government standards; it is manufactured under the inspection of the city, county and state health authorities, and is recommended as wholesome by hundreds of the leading physicians.

Lyman Born Near San Bernardino

Home Was Covered Wagon

of Famous Party Which Came in 1851

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 22.—Snow Lyman, 76 years old, the white child born in the Bernardino Valley, died today at home in Bloomington.

Lyman was born in a covered wagon of the first train to enter Southern California from Iowa November 6, 1851, while the train was encamped along the banks of Lytle Creek at a point where the Foothill Boulevard now enters the city.

His father was Amasa Lyman, one of the first twelve apostles under the presidency of Brigham Young of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. With Charles C. Rich and Ebenezer Hanks, Amasa Lyman had been commissioned by Brigham Young to establish a colony in the San Bernardino Valley. Two weeks after the birth of Snow Lyman, the Mormons built a log fort erected on the site of San Bernardino county's courthouse. Later, the Lyman family erected the first home in the valley, an adobe and stone.

In 1857 Amasa Lyman and his family returned to Utah at the call of Brigham Young, who recalled the Mormons back to Salt Lake. Alonzo Horton Lyman returned to Southern California thirty years ago and has resided at Bloomington, where he served as justice of the peace. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louisa Lyman, and a brother, H. H. Lyman of Santa Barbara, and a number of half-brothers, eight children, Amasa Lyman, Anderson, Bloomington; Snow Lyman, Madera; Mrs. Rose Ormsbee; Mrs. Will Stone, Mrs. Ina Mort, Palo Alto; H. H. Lyman, Los Angeles; Archie Lyman, Berkeley; Mrs. Edna Ivins, Bloomington; fourteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

dge Talks n Youthful Criminals

MONTE, Dec. 22.—Such murder as that of the Parker girl would never occur if society did its full duty in the care of its defective youth, Robert L. Scott of the Juvenile Court of the Superior Court, told members of the El Monte Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon held today.

He told of the shamefully overcrowded condition of the State institutions for defectives and the more pressing problem of youth with a moral mentality for whom, he said, there was no provision made whatever.

No solution he offered for this problem was the establishment of more playgrounds where their energies might be directed along lines of social activity. He said that the number of these playgrounds in the county had increased from seven to 107 in two years. Another point which Judge Scott said presented itself to his court was the question of what to do with boys who run from the East.

At the conclusion of the speech a vote was asked of the citizens of El Monte for the establishment of a supervised playground in this city.

b to Abolish Trolley Line

ORLANDS, Dec. 22.—Official intimation from D. W. Pontius, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Electric Company, is to the effect that the railroad's directors will refuse to consider a plan for abandonment of the Smiley Heights trolley line. The action has been taken by the directors in the last decade and a half, Pontius' letter it is stated the company does not consider it profitable to utilize the Orange-Southern Pacific waiting room in the business district of running the Los Angeles line to Citrus avenue.

Copy of the railway official's letter, in part, was read at a meeting of the Redlands City Council: Referring to recent discussion before the honorable body, of the proposed abandonment of Pacific Electric Smiley Heights line and your verbal request for statement of our position in the very careful consideration of the matter, we are glad to request abandonment of the Smiley Heights line from the junction of Citrus avenue and Orange street south to the terminus. We are writing to submit this proposal to the board of directors for approval. It is our intention that tracks be removed from Citrus avenue to a point north of the Southern Pacific crossing and that station property be retained as the terminus for Los Angeles. The matter has been carefully studied and does not appear advisable."

D-TIME POLICEMAN TELLS OF EARLY DAYS

OAKLAND, Dec. 22.—L. E. Van Patten, deputy of the Sheriff's office at Oakland, and a Christmas visitor here, hunting up "old-timers" he used to know six years ago when he was the only deputy in the large San Fernando area. The valley division is one of the crack units of the department. "Sixteen years ago, the valley was a wide open place," said Van Patten. "Men were men, and most of them had to be. A policeman had to be a good bronk rider and quick on the draw. Habits of criminals also have changed in the last decade and a half. In the old days men would commit crimes in Los Angeles and then come out to the valley to hide. Nowadays, the police tell me, when anything happens out here, they look for the culprit at some address in the city."

PREPARED TO PAY RANSOM

Relatives of Engineer Held by Mexican Bandits Wage Plucky Fight for His Release

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 22.—In a desperate effort to save the life of Lyman Fay Barber, brother of Whit C. Barber of Bakersfield, who is held captive for ransom by Mexican bandits, negotiations are under way today for the payment of an additional 15,000 pesos to the bandits, who have already received 6000 pesos, the original amount named for the release of the Los Angeles mining engineer. Information to this effect has been received by Whit Barber here from the State Department at Washington.

In Mexico City, Esther Barber, wife of the captured man, with the aid of Ambassador Morrow, is directing all moves made in the hope of effecting Barber's release. The State Department at Washington has full information of all available details of the affair and is understood to be making every possible effort through its representatives in Mexico to return Mr. Barber alive and uninjured.

Despite the fact that her nerves have been harrassed by the narrowness of her own escape from the bandits who captured her husband, Mrs. Barber is waging a plucky fight with what weapons she has at hand for her husband's life.

Whit Barber said today that the authorities have lost touch with the bandits and as soon as communication is re-established the 16,000 pesos will be turned over with the hope that the captive will be surrendered. He pointed out that his brother is being held in the area marked by the rebel uprising of Cenk. Gomez and Garcia and expressed the belief that the bandits may be scattered rebels whose forces were disbanded when the strength of the two Mexican generals was shattered by the Federal troops.

EXPLOSION SPOILS PLAN OF SUICIDE

Death Comes from Burns Inflicted When Gas-Filled Room Blows Up

SAN FERNANDO, Dec. 22.—J. B. Smith, 61 years of age, a contractor of Glendale, died late Wednesday in the Emergency Hospital here after being burned in an explosion of gas by means of which he had intended to asphyxiate himself.

Smith left his home in Glendale Tuesday morning en route to Bakersfield. Shortly before noon he registered at the Lavioletie Hotel on North McClay and complained of a pain in the back of his head. Smith told attendants that he would remain overnight in the hope of getting rid of the pain.

Wednesday morning he left the hotel and returned a few minutes later with a loaf of bread. Just at noon, persons in the hotel were startled by an explosion and on investigating found smoke pouring from Smith's room. Firemen who entered the room found Smith, his body seared by the blast, lying on the floor. He was conscious and able to give his name and address as 420 West Maple street, Glendale. He was rushed to the Emergency Hospital and his wife notified.

Mrs. Smith came to San Fernando and was with her husband until he died. Several letters found in the man's clothes showed that he had been contemplating suicide. These indicated his belief that he was about to "go mad." Smith in preparing his death chamber had soaked the loaf of bread in water and filled the cracks of the windows and doors with the dough. He then turned on the gas in a small heater and awaited death.

An opened package of cigarettes found on the floor led police to believe that Smith had decided to smoke a last cigarette and the explosion followed the lighting of a match. The room was practically demolished by the explosion and a hole six feet square was torn in the outer wall.

Vain Endeavor to Beat Train

TAFT, Dec. 22.—An unsuccessful attempt to beat a Southern Pacific locomotive to a railroad crossing sent A. Howard to the West Side Hospital at Taft with a broken right arm and severe cuts and bruises on his face and head last night. According to reports, Howard saw the approaching switch engine, but thought he could cross the tracks ahead of it.

The automobile, driven by Howard, was registered to W. C. Ellis of Taft. It was badly wrecked. The accident occurred at the Southern Pacific crossing on the Taft-Maricopa highway. Agent Donahue of the Southern Pacific at Taft said a board of inquiry meeting will be called to investigate the crash.

"It's to be a Christmas present for all of them."

DIES OF BROKEN NECK

Hoskins, who suffered a broken neck last July when he dived into a shallow pool while bathing, was buried in the Exeter Cemetery this morning. The youth died Tuesday night at the local hospital. The most expert surgical aid was rendered, but at no time was there much hope of his recovery. He is survived by his parents, a sister, and a brother.

TAKES MESSAGE TO HAWAIIANS

Merton E. Hill

ONTARIO, Dec. 22. — Recognized as perhaps the most outstanding educator in California, Merton E. Hill, principal of Chaffey Union High School, is sailing the high seas today on his way to the Hawaiian Islands, where he will spend two weeks in educational research work.

Mr. Hill received special invitation from school officials of the Hawaiian Islands to visit the island educational institutions during the Christmas holidays, and deliver a series of lectures on teaching and education as a whole.

As principal of Chaffey Union High School, Mr. Hill has placed the school, together with Chaffey Junior College on a plane that has made the two institutions models for other States to follow.

Last summer Mr. Hill established a record for long-distance commuting. Each Friday afternoon he boarded the train for Berkeley, where he attended class work at the State university all day Saturdays and returned to his home in Upland in time to take up his work at Chaffey Monday mornings. The trip to Hawaii is the longest he has taken for lecturing.

Mr. Hill devotes considerable time to Upland Rotary Club, of which he is a member.

RECTOR IN HOT SHOT TO FLOCK

Deposed Minister Issues Statement to Parish and Public

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 22.—R. e. v. Percy Wise Clarkson, for some time storm center of a split in the Episcopal Church here following his successful suit for divorce some months ago, will retire from active charge of the Laguna Beach church, St. Francis-by-the-Sea, the first of the year. This announcement was made today over the rector's signature as follows:

"The rector will retire after the Christmas and New Year services, which will be the same on the next two Sundays. The present rector will retire from personal, active operation as incumbent by and at the request of his diocesan, at the instigation of a certain few malcontents.

"He desires to thank, from the bottom of his heart, all his loyal friends and supporters and all they have done, and bids them accept this minority rule. Do not fear, for you will be hearing me again. I have not quit, just put out, and that does not dispose of

"PERCY WISE CLARKSON,
"Rector."

Following the divorce action two factions of his church are known to have circulated petitions for presentation to Bishop Stevens of this diocese, one petition asking for the removal or retirement of Mr. Clarkson and the other asking for his retention. Many citizens, not members of the church, are known to have signed the petition for his retention, which was circulated by Mrs. F. B. Case and Mrs. M. H. Smith.

The new church plant, costing some $35,000, was erected during Mr. Clarkson's pastorate. He was rector of the Episcopal Church at Orange prior to coming to Laguna Beach.

Four Injured as Auto Skids

UPLAND, Dec. 22.—Wet pavement was blamed today for an automobile crash on Foothill Boulevard near Mission winery, which sent four persons to San Antonio Community Hospital for treatment.

The injured are Mrs. Charlotte Keene, 456 North Freemont street, Los Angeles, broken jaw; Mrs. Marjorie Kane, 458 North Fremont street, Los Angeles, cuts and bruises; Mrs. Zella Budd, 1226 Georgia street, Los Angeles, cuts and bruises; Ernest Bitanga, 458 North Fremont street, Los Angeles, cracked ribs and severe body bruises.

Joseph Ruffu of Los Angeles was driver of the automobile. According to Mrs. M. Watson, 427 East E street, San Bernardino, a witness to the crash, the automobile, a roadster, carrying all five persons, became uncontrollable as it skidded on the pavement and crashed into a tree.

Mrs. Wilson took the injured to the hospital, where they were attended by Dr. W. W. Chapman, Ontario.

Mrs. Watson declared the automobile was hitting up a fast clip.

NEWSPAPER MAN HOLD-UP VICTIM

LONG BEACH, Dec. 22.—Billy TeGroen, Los Angeles newspaper man, was the victim of bandits here at an early hour this morning, when he was forced at the point of a gun to hand over $35, all he possessed, to two hold-up men in an automobile. TeGroen was on his way to his home, 1122 Daisy avenue, from Los Angeles, and had alighted from a street car when the bandits, driving a small coupe, drove alongside the curb and called to TeGroen to halt.

Covering him with a revolver, one man leaped out of the car and searched the newspaper man, taking his cash. They fled in the car, the license number of which could not be obtained by TeGroen because of the darkness, the latter told police.

HELD FOR GRAND THEFT

PASADENA, Dec. 22.—Jesse Cobb, 2914 North Raymond avenue, was held to answer to the Superior Court today on charges of grand theft and attacking 14-year-old Ethel Swapp. Cobb was arrested after a wild chase in which the officers thought he might be the slayer of Marion Parker. He waived defense at his hearing before Justice Gibbs today and admitted his guilt. He said he had known the girl for some time. His bail was set at $6000.

Heavy Fine for Polluting Waters of Bay

LONG BEACH, Dec. 22.—Pollution from local oil fields brought one man into court for a $200 fine with the choice of going to jail for 100 days, and brought threats from city officials of more arrests today. The alleged pumping of oil into the waters of Alamitos Bay caused John Doolittle, pumper for the Miley Oil Company, operating in the Alamitos Heights field, to be brought into court and fined. He told Judge Long he had the choice of two evils, polluting the waters of the bay or violating the city fire ordinances by permitting the sump hole to fill up. Doolittle was prosecuted by E. A. Chan, deputy Fish and Game Commissioner.

Complaints that, during the last two rain storms, oil operators on Signal Hill permitted sump holes to overflow and in some cases deliberately turned oil loose by opening the sumps, are being investigated today. Several hundred dollors damage was done to lawns and residences in the northern section of the city as a result, it is charged.

Arrested for Guarding Booze

LONG BEACH, Dec. 22.—When police entered a room at 1050 American avenue they found Claude L. Nabers, 54 years of age, sitting on twenty-one gallons of moonshine liquor. He was taken into custody, as was also Sam Gillespie, proprietor of a hotel at 1073 American avenue, said by police to be the actual tenant of the room where the contraband was found. Gillespie, police say, recently paid a $500 fine in court for a violation of the Wright Act.

Nabers, who is out on bail in connection with a charge of conspiracy to defraud, was brought back to this city from Prescott, Ariz., several weeks ago by Long Beach police and is awaiting trial on that charge. Gas bills show Gillespie to be the actual tenant of the room, which, they declare, he rented to store liquor in. Nabers had been permitted to sleep in the room, it was said.

SPECIAL AGENT TO REPORT ON FIRES

TAFT, Dec. 22.—As a result of action taken by the members of the Council here, Taft will soon have a special agent to answer every alarm of fire and make a special report to the body concerning the blaze, particularly in connection with its origin. The Councilmen took first cognizance of the three-quarters-loss insurance clause recently imposed in Kern county, outside of Bakersfield, at their meeting on Tuesday night when they voted unanimously to appoint the special fire representative.

The action followed notification by J. A. Macauley of the local insurance board, that this was the suggestion of the fire underwriters' board.

INDIANS IN FLOAT

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 22.—Flanked by outrunners in Indian costume, an elaborate float, followed by the Sherman Indian Institute Band of fifty pieces, will represent Riverside in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses parade at Pasadena, January 2. The float will carry many Indian children of the institute, the largest of the government Indian schools, and will be built by students at the school.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

A Few High Spots in Yuletide Celebration in Cities of Southland

STOVE PIPE WELLS, DEATH VALLEY, Dec. 22.—On Christmas night of 1849 four little children, George, Melissa and Martha Bennett and baby Charles Arcane were huddled around a damp spot of sand near Stove Pipe Wells, history records, grateful for the few drops of bitter water that meant life; Santa Claus even with his reindeer could not get through the mountain fastness that had trapped these little ones of long ago and their brave pioneer mothers.

Sunday night 100 children will troop around two majestic pinion pine trees brought from the snow-capped heights of the Funeral Range Mountains, scintillating in tinsel and hung with toys, in the spacious lobby of the new hotel that will be formally opened to the public Christmas. Out over the sand dunes, glistening like snow in their prosphorescent whitness, carolers will sing "Silent night." Death Valley, the last western frontier to be conquered by man, is celebrating Christmas with happiness and song, and over the floor of the great dry sea, 276 feet below sea level, speeds Santa's sleigh.

SANTA TO COME TO ISLAND BY SEAPLANE

AVALON (Catalina Island) Dec. 22. A gigantic Christmas tree on the roof of the Ferry Building greets the incoming steamers into Avalon Bay as the vanguard of the Catalina Yuletide festivities. At the pier incoming passengers Saturday and Sunday will be met by a bevy of young girls dressed in white, who will distribute sprigs of Catalina holly as gifts to the island visitors.

Christmas Eve a municipal Christmas tree will be the feature of Christmas party to be given for the children of Catalina under the auspices of the Mary Williams Club. Mrs. David M. Renton, chairman of the Christmas committee, announces that Santa Claus is due to arrive on Catalina Island at 7:30 p.m. via seaplane and will have gifts in his bag for every youngster on the island Christmas Eve.

TO REMEMBER VETERANS AND LITTLE ONES

SAWTELLE, Dec. 22.—Capt. W. L. Hagenbaugh of the Sawtelle police division, in a Santa Claus role, is looking for 250 boys and girls under 12 years of age who will not have too much of a Christmas this year. They are wanted by the Los Angeles Breakfast Club to partake of a Christmas breakfast next Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. Busses will transport the youngsters, and after a shower of nuts and candies a monster Christmas dinner is to be provided, according to the announcement. Sergt. H. O. Hartman has been detailed to rounding up the party of youngsters, and he takes to it as naturally as whiskers to St. Nick.

Three thousand Christmas baskets filled with fresh fruit will be distributed among veterans in hospitals at Sawtelle Soldiers' Home next Friday. The baskets are from Red Cross chapters, clubs and associations as points as far away as Claremont and Long Beach. One thousand baskets are being furnished by the Federated Women's Clubs and 200 by the Santa Monica chapter.

Christmas at Lark Ellen Home here will be sponsored by Los Angeles and Sawtelle Lions' clubs next Friday, Christmas Eve. The Lions have decided to wire the home playground for electric lighting, also to put on a new gravel surface, according to G. O. Hague, past president.

The den has entered actively into the program of the University Chamber of Commerce to illuminate trees along the boulevards during the Christmas holidays.

ROTARY CLUB LIGHTS GREAT CHRISTMAS TREE

INGLEWOOD, Dec. 22.—A living Christmas tree, forty-five feet high, has been lighted and trimmed by the Inglewood Rotary Club. The tree, which is a graceful evergreen, and a landmark in the community, stands in a commanding position at the intersection of Hillcrest Boulevard and Queen street, and hence can be seen from all directions.

With the aid of Chief Basil Roberts of the Inglewood Fire Department, several of his men and extension ladders from one of the trucks, and the skill of Bob Aylsworth, local Rotarian, whose classification is that of electrician, the tall tree was wired, lighted and trimmed, other club members helping.

The tree will be kept illuminated until New Year's. The idea of the club decking the old landmark originated with Rotarian J. Warren Lane, it was said by George C. Malloy, president of the club.

Next Tuesday evening the club will entertain the children of the city under the live Christmas tree's branches, with Santa Claus in person doing the honors. Other local organizations are also invited by the Rotarians to use the tree as a rallying point for Yuletide gatherings and chorals.

AMERICAN LEGION DOES HONORS AT GLENDORA

GLENDORA, Dec. 22.—Seven hundred children will be given a treat as a part of the great community Christmas celebration being planned for Christmas Eve and being sponsored by the Frank E. Gard Post of the American Legion of which R. C. Warren is commander. Yesterday the thirty-foot Cedrus deodors purchased by the various organizations of the community and presented to the city as a living Christmas tree was planted with ceremony in the grounds of the City Hall. The tree will be brilliantly lighted and decorated on Christmas Eve, when the community celebration consisting of Christmas carols, led by Mrs. John Brunjes, and a program of instrumental music directed by Prof. W. M. Potter, will be enjoyed. Following the program each child will receive a gift.

SEND GIFTS TO DISABLED VETERANS

PORTERVILLE, Dec. 22.—Members of the women's auxiliary of the Porterville post of the American Legion are busy with plans for Christmas cheer. It was decided to send $5 each to the fifteen disabled veterans in the San Fernando Hospital who are without compensation. Seven former service men from this district who are in hospitals will be generously remembered at the holiday time. Jams, jelly and canned fruit are being collected to send to the Burbank Hospital for patients there.

SEND SOLDIERS SMOKES IN BARREL LOTS

VENICE, Dec. 22.—Barrels to contain donated "smokes" for veterans at the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home and others who do not draw compensation, have been placed at main business corners in Venice by the local American Legion post. Capt. C. A. Hodson, Venice police; John B. Daniel, and Clarence Greenhouse started the ball rolling yesterday by dropping in a carton of cigarettes each. Commander H. E. Wooding of the Venice Legion post stated today that the post is also working to provide Christmas good cheer for non-compensation men at the San Fernando Hospital, separately from the barrel collection of "smokes."

SCHOOL CHILDREN IN CHRISTMAS PAGEANT

LEMOORE, Dec. 22.—The Christmas spirit is being displayed here strongly this year, in a public way. A large and beautiful pine from the Sierras, electrically illuminated, decorates the business district. A Christmas pageant will be presented by the pupils of the public schools Wednesday night and on Thursday night the Women's Club gives a Christmas party whereat will be presented "An Evening in Dixie," with participants in costume.

CITY PARK GIFT FROM RESIDENT

Eighteen-Acre Estate is Christmas Present in Santa Barbara's Stocking

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 22.—A Christmas gift for the city of Santa Barbara in the form of the eighteen-acre estate of the late Dr. Francheschi Fensi, on Mission Ridge, was made public today. It is given to the city by Alden Freeman, nationally known author, political reformer and philanthropist.

The property is given for a park, botanic garden and public playground. A one-acre park on Dover Road is an additional gift.

Dr. Fensi was for thirty years one of the most widely known botanists in the world and prior to his death was instrumental in reclaiming the desert lands around Tripoli for the Italian government.

Mr. Freeman purchased the Fensi property last year.

In making public the gift Mr. Freeman lauded the work of Dr. Fensi in botanical lines.

"Santa Barbara residents have failed to realize that Dr. Fensi was one of the greatest botanists of his time, even surpassing Burbank in the estimation of many. He was awarded a gold medal by the Department of Agriculture for introducing more foreign plants into the United States than any other man. In fact, the people of Honolulu know more about Fensi than about Burbank.

"In 1913, at the age of 75, he was recognized by the Italian government and invited to take charge of the Department of Horticulture in Tripoli."

Mr. Freeman also gave the Elmwood Park playground of nine acres to the city of East Orange, N. J., in 1921.

Banker's Wife Dies as Result of Injuries

REDLANDS, Dec. 22.—Mrs. Colin O. McNeil, wife of the assistant cashier of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank in Redlands, died in the Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles during the night from injuries received in an automobile accident yesterday. Mrs. McNeil was on her way to Los Angeles with her father, John L. McCracken of Alvarado street. They were driving on the road between San Dimas and El Monte when the car which he was driving skidded on the slippery pavement, crashed into a pepper tree and turned over.

Mr. McCracken was not seriously injured, but Mrs. McNeil complained of her back, and was rushed to the hospital. There it was found that her spine had been injured and her husband was called. It was known that there was no hope for her recovery.

Mrs. McCracken was one of the most popular of the young matrons of the city, and her death was a great shock to the community. She leaves her husband and a baby son and her father and mother, she being an only child.

GLOWING PROMISES NOT FULFILLED

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 22.—Alleging that glowing promises made to them by the Sparriand Company, West Riverside, have not been fulfilled, Charles J. and Minnie Butler, husband and wife, and Mary Rex Edelbute have filed action in Superior Court asking voiding of notes held by the subdividers and the Los Angeles Investment Company. Similar actions against the company were begun by twenty-three others several weeks ago.

The Sparriand Company and the investment company are defendants in liens filed by the Hayward Lumber Company of Los Angeles against several homes in the subdivision, asserting that bills for lumber and other building material have not been paid.

ENCINO FINDS OUT ITS BEST SPELLERS

ENCINO, Dec. 22.—Just when all have about reached the conclusion that the school athletic craze had run the three "R's" out of the classrooms, Encino bobs up with an old-fashioned spelling bee in which all adults and children in the community took part. The affair was under the auspices of the local Parent-Teachers' Association. Before the contest was over a score or more of excellent spellers were applauded. Others were not so good, indicating that the spelling bee is to become a regular affair here if the interest can be kept up.

YACHTING HARBOR PLANNED

To Ask Long Beach Citizens to Vote $500,000 Bonds for New Project

LONG BEACH, Dec. 22.—Plans for making Alamitos Bay, a landlocked body of water on the eastern edge of Long Beach, one of the greatest yachting harbors in America are being prepared here and a $500,000 bond issue will be urged upon the city for their consummation, it was revealed here today. Members of the Board of Harbor Commissioners and at least two City Councilmen have declared themselves in favor of the project. It is planned to include the $500,000 bond issue in the proposed $2,000,000 issue for completion of this city's outer harbor on the West.

The chief feature of the plan is the cutting of a proposed new entrance into Alamitos Bay to the west of the present entrance. This would place the bay entrance in Long Beach and would permit of free entry and exit to all vessels. The present entrance, on the extreme eastern end of the bay, is partly barred by the Pacific Electric trestle and is in Orange county. The plan provides for leaving the present entrance open to act as a flood-control channel for carrying flood waters from the San Gabriel into the sea.

Such a project, when completed, would afford fine anchorage for scores of large and small pleasure craft, and would afford a water speedway for motor-boat races, it was pointed out.

Pioneer Faces Murder Charge at Bakersfield

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 22.—William Barnes, 64-year-old native of Kern county, was charged with murder today for the slaying of Alibrando Bandettini, 60, a McKittrick capitalist, who was shot to death Tuesday afternoon at the intersection of Nineteenth and M streets here. The complaint was sworn to before T. A. Baker, Sixth township justice, by Mrs. Marguerite Bandettini, widow of the shooting victim.

The finding of the murder complaint followed an inquest held last night at which a Coroner's jury charged Barnes with responsibility for the killing. The jury found that Bandettini came to his death as the result of "shock and hemorrhage resulting from gunshot wounds in the body received at the hands of William Barnes, with homicidal intent."

The verdict was returned by the inquest jurors almost immediately after testimony was concluded, and instructions given by Coroner J. C. Housee. Evidence introduced by Dr. Homer Rogers, who performed an autopsy on the body of the slain man, indicated that Bandettini was shot twice, the second bullet striking him in the back as he was retreating from his assailant.

One bullet, evidently the first, struck the Italian in the chest slightly above the heart in the region of the aorta. Witnesses stated that Barnes fired again as Bandettini started to turn.

Mass for the McKittrick pioneer was solemnized at 10 o'clock this morning at St. Francis Church by Reverend Father M. J. Stack. Following the services, the body was forwarded to San Francisco for interment.

Will Contest on in Long Beach Court

LONG BEACH, Dec. 22.—An estate valued at more than $1,000,000 is in litigation in Department 28 of the Superior Court here. A contest over the will of the late Mary R. Merriam Reagan, wealthy Long Beach woman, was begun before Judge Willis yesterday and was being heard today. The litigants are Tina B. Champion, half-sister of the decedent, and Charles H. Phillips, a half-brother.

They have petitioned for a revocation of the probation of the will, which was offered on March 22, last, alleging it is not the true document, or if it does constitute the last will and testament of the decedent, it was made while she was not of sound and disposing mind. Under its terms Mrs. Champion is made beneficiary to the amount of $10,000. Phillips is left nothing.

Executors and respondents in the suit are Robert D. Judkins and George D. Early, said to be unrelated to decedent. It is alleged in the suit that property valued at $300,000 was left by terms of the disputed will to heirs of DeWitt D. Merriam, former husband of Mrs. Reagan.

The site of the Pacific Electric depot on Ocean Boulevard and holdings in the amusement zone comprise most of the real property. Personal property is said to be valued at $700,000. Attorneys Tood, Pawson & Watkins represent the estate. Attorney B. A. Morton is representing the contestants.

VALLEY LEGHORN LAYS BIG EGG

ENCINO, Dec. 22.—F. C. Burfield, chicken rancher here, has a leghorn hen, 14 months of age who to celebrate the holiday season has laid an egg that weighs almost a quarter of a pound. The egg is six inches around the center, eight inches around from end to end, and is length three and a quarter inches. Burfield says the egg is the largest he has seen in his experience.

WEEKS RE-ELECTED

OWENSMOUTH, Dec. 22.—Following the annual meeting here of the Weeks Co-operative Poultry Association, one of the largest industries in San Fernando Valley, Charles Weeks, founder of the business, again was re-elected head. The new board of directors comprises J. C. Stanley, William Winn, D. B. Tubbs, W. J. Burrill, W. B. Lawson and C. G. Wyant. There are nearly 1000 families engaged in the chicken and egg business in the co-operative colony.

PRINCE ERIK HERE TO STAY

No Intention of Returning to Denmark

Royal Rancher Satisfied at Arcadia

Is Guest of Foothill Club at Breakfast

PASADENA, Dec. 22.—Prince Erik of Denmark does not intend to up his Arcadia chicken ranch and return permanently to his native land, he said, today when questioned about recent reports to this effect. Prince Erik made the assertion at the meeting of the Foothill Breakfast Club today at the Santa Anita Riding and Hunt Club, Arcadia. The Prince attended the gathering with his father-in-law, Charles Booth, prominent retired Canadian financier who is spending Christmas with his royal son-in-law and his daughter.

Both were guests of Mayor A. N. Muller of Arcadia, one of the directors of the Breakfast Club. Prince Erik's chicken ranch, where he moved to adopt the occupation of gentleman farmer after his marriage to Lois Booth, is located in Arcadia.

The Prince said that the trip he and his wife recently made to Denmark was one which combined business and pleasure, and that he has no intention of leaving California permanently. In fact, he says that he is becoming more and more attached to this region. He enjoyed the Breakfast Club program so much today that he plans to apply for membership, he said.

Prince Erik did not take an active part in the morning's proceedings. The club was organized in October and is modeled after the Los Angeles Breakfast Club.

'Windy Guys' Blow to Save Yuletide Fete

VAN NUYS, Dec. 22.—A prevalent jest, and one that always is of a complimentary nature, is the one centering around the various sorts of service Boy Scouts stand ready to perform. From minding babies at a barbecue to acting as ushers at a high-hat symphony concert is all in the "day's work" with these exemplary boys.

A new stunt has just been "pulled off" by members of Troop Seven of Van Nuys. And as a result literally all of them are out of wind, with the best chances for full recovery.

At the Whitsett Christmas tree party here which about 5000 children from all over San Fernando Valley attended, 6000 toy balloons were handed out to young and old. At the last minute it was discovered the balloons had to be "blown up" to give them the best of radiant effect. A lot of wind was needed. Things were in a quandary until Capt. Marriner Bertholf of Troop Seven volunteered. "Leave it to me," the boy said. Scouts were sent out and all members marshaled in force. Later a "blowing" began that even the best of wind breaks couldn't have headed off. Within three hours all the balloons were in hand ready for distribution, but Troop Seven looked as tired as if it had hiked to the moon and back.

When the time came to thanking the boys for their work, the young captain with a fine gesture waved away all compliments. "There's a lot of windy guys in my unit," he said. "This is the first time I've had a chance to use 'em in the right place. I'd a-been better satisfied if there'd a-been 12,000 balloons instead of 6000."

Yeggs Work in Sawtelle

SAWTELLE, Dec. 22.—A $1000 gold bond and $174 in currency and coin were taken some time last night by burglars who forced the door of a feed and fuel store at 1617 Sawtelle Boulevard, S. P. Nirk, the proprietor, reported to the police and an investigation by Sawtelle detectives revealed that a pickaxe had been used to knock the combination off the safe. Both the outer door of the store and an inner fireproof door had been pried open to gain entry. Finger-print and other clews were being obtained this morning.

The men who blockaded the road with an old Ford touring car last night held up Clark Hallock, a grocery salesman of 512 Kings Road, according to a Sawtelle police report. While driving on Overland avenue, near Nestor avenue, Hallock was compelled to stop. One of the men stepped out from behind the blockading car and pointed a gun, compelling Hallock to give up $23 in currency and small change. The change was handed back to him when he protested that the men were taking all his money, the report states. From Hallock's description the pair are believed to be Mexicans, according to Police Sergeant Hartman.

EXTEND GREETINGS TO NEW CITIZENS

TULARE, Dec. 22.—Alien residents and citizens of foreign birth were honor guests at the annual alien Christmas party staged at Tulare Union High School, under auspices of the alien division of the school.

Several hundred persons were attracted to this affair, one of the most pretentious events of the Yuletide. Greater portion of those attending were either students in the present evening schools or former students.

This event is an established custom in the alien community and one of the bonds which binds the resident groups of various speech and nationality into a co-operative whole toward a better understanding and participation in American life.

Entertainment features were supplied by the students themselves. Music was furnished by the Mexican orchestra from Tagus. Mrs. Mabel F. Suiter, assistant instructor in charge of Americanization work, presided as chairman. Among the guests were about twenty naturalized citizens who have obtained their citizenship papers through study in the local evening schools.

RADIO PERMIT CHANGES NEAR

Many Applications Pending With Federal Board

Annual Broadcast Ball at KMIC Draws Crowd

Several Alterations Made at Local Station

BY DR. RALPH L. POWER

There are now somewhat over fifty applications in Washington for permits to operate point-to-point radio service. These are pending before the Radio Commission, but action has been deferred until after the general hearing which that body will hold January 10 at 2 p.m.

The international radio-telegraph conference of last month made recommendations that apparently will necessitate many changes in the allocation of the various services outside the broadcast band.

The projected hearings will be held for the purpose of making a study of the entire allocation question with particular attention to relay broadcast, limited commercial, limited public and general public stations, and probably also of ship communication—everything, as a matter of fact, outside the broadcast band, with the single exception of amateur and experimental stations.

NEW PARLEY LIKELY

It is freely predicted that a national conference will have to be called in 1928 as a result of the international recommendations. Under allocation of the present time there is one exclusive point-to-point band caring for 130 channels, and two bands which are shared with other services caring for 100 channels.

The international recommendations, however, make some changes in these bands, effective on January 1. There seems, therefore, probability of a national meeting for next year to determine what reallocation of services within the United States may be necessary to meet the international requirements.

KMIC HONORED

Inglewood and Los Angeles turned out in force to attend the annual radio ball and frolic of KMIC held last night in the Woman's clubhouse at Inglewood. Charlie Wellman, as master of ceremonies, introduced the various vaudeville acts, after which a five-hour dance program was given. Practically every Southern California station sent a representative to the affair, which was also broadcast over KMIC.

The Inglewood station's next happening of importance will be its birthday party on January 10, which will be celebrated by a continuous day and night program.

LOCAL CHANGES

There have been several local changes in broadcast features the past week or two.

Walter Biddick's certified air program, which has been given for some months over KMTR as a 4:30 p.m. feature, is now on the air at 5:30 p.m. on week days. The White King Male Quartet, which was a KHJ nightly feature for a year and which has been on the 5:30 period at KMTR for the same length of time, has moved over to KPLA, where it gives the 6 to 7 p.m. program nightly with the help of the Mission Bell Orchestra.

Other local changes also include the transfer of Charlie Wellman's hour from KMTR during the 11 a.m. to 12 noon broadcast hour. This has been transferred over to KGFJ each week day between noon and 1:30 p.m.

FANS INCREASING IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Dec. 22. (Exclusive)—Registered radio subscribers in Czecho-Slovakia are increasing at the rate of 1000 a month, according to figures issued by the Minister of Post and Telegraphs, as reported to the Department of Commerce. Total registrations in October were 206,000

The present number of subscribers is believed to be close to the saturation point until such time as new sending stations are erected. Construction of a station at Karlsbad and another at Mahrisch Ostrau is said to be under consideration.

Boy Enveloped in Flames May Escape Death

Becoming enveloped in flames when his pajamas caught fire from standing too close to a gas heater, Texas Aber, 8 years of age, son of Charles B. Aber, restaurant proprietor, was severely burned on the body at his home, 222 North Carondelet street yesterday.

Prompt action on the part of the father in beating out the flames probably saved the boy's life, but resulted in the parent being severely burned on the head and shoulders. The child was treated at the Hill-street Receiving Hospital, where he is expected to recover.

WILL GETS HIS FORD FIRST

New Model Gift Car Presented on His Return From Mexico

Comedian Gets Surprise

Will Rogers (right) and A. L. Hammer with Will's new car.

FRESH from a dash to the Mexican capital, Will Rogers, erstwhile Mayor of Beverly Hills and champion wisecracker, arrived home yesterday to find a new Tudor Ford in his Christmas stocking. The car is the first of the new models to be delivered to any individual in the United States, it was announced.

"This is the first time I ever received anything free in my life," the ex-official beamed when A. L. Hammer, president of the Beverly Hills Motor Company, Beverly Hills Ford agent, presented the new car as the gift of Henry and Edsel Ford.

The presentation ceremonies, which were held at the Beverly Hills showrooms, 444 Canon Drive, officiated over by J. W. Capek, branch manager for Southern California, were attended by Ford officials from many sections of the State.

"Nix on the airplane rides hereafter; me for traveling across the country in Uncle Henry's creation," Will said as he climbed aboard the machine and perambulated homeward to tell Friend Wife of his good fortune.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC IS ACCLAIMED

Stabat Mater Splendidly Sung With Philharmonic Chorus and Soloists

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Georg Schneevoigt, conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, presented a holiday program last night of two composers only—Handel and Rossini. A Concerto Grosso, by the world's greatest oratorio writer, and the Stabat Mater, by one of its most famous operatic writers. Marjorie Dodge, Clemence Gifford, Dan Gridley and Clifford Lott shared singing honors with the Philharmonic and University Choruses, which had been admirably trained by Squire Coop.

The string section only was used in the Concerto Grosso, written by Handel, and edited very much later by Kogel. Its rich beauty of tone and amazing flexibility was shown to advantage, and Conductor Schneevoigt re-created a work of great loveliness in this work of Handel. Indeed, he seemed so completely en rapport with this little gem of Handelian writing that the similarity between these two men, Handel and Schneevoigt, was brought instantly to mind.

If one studies the pictures of both the similarity in feature is immediately apparent. A certain heartiness and shrewd observance of popular taste and a flair for the dramatic element in music is common to both of them.

The Stabat Mater, splendidly sung by the large chorus and the four experienced singers, was a beautiful blending of voices and orchestra, smooth, colorful, with inspired tempos and with the most difficult fugal parts set forth with clarity. The listener could actually hear overtones from the chorus, a fact in itself well worthy of comment because of its rarity.

Marjorie Dodge's clear soprano rang out with a bell-like quality and in operatic style. Clemence Gifford gave the contralto part a fine reading and did some of the best singing she has done before a Los Angeles audience. Her voice has richness and splendid carrying power.

Clifford Lott's finished artistry is invariably dependable and his work in solo and quartet steadied the presentation.

Dan Gridley's voice was almost Italian in its quality and power during the difficult arias for tenor voice and, although his art has not yet ripened, it is well on its way.

This operatic setting of sacred words by Rossini is sensuously beautiful music and its presentation by Schneevoigt was a magnificent achievement, a fitting holiday offering to an appreciative audience. The program will be repeated this afternoon.

Alfred Hertz will conduct the next pair, bringing the San Francisco Orchestra down for a program, including the Brahms second symphony, the Haydn Symphonie Concertante, Op. 84; Strauss's "Don Juan" and the prelude and "Love Death," by Wagner.

AL JOLSON IS RUSHING TO COAST

"Jazz Singer" Star Quits All Engagements in East; Here for Premiere

Al Jolson will be present in person at "The Jazz Singer" premiere. One of the greatest tributes ever paid by a star to a film producer was the wire yesterday sent to J. L. Warner, chief executive of Warner Brothers, that Jolson, often billed as the world's greatest entertainer, is rushing here to be present at "The Jazz Singer" opening at the Criterion Wednesday night.

Jolson dropped all work and started here last night.

The actor's decision necessitated the interruption of a series of appearances in the East. Aside from the financial aspect it also entails a personal sacrifice, for it means that the star is giving up all Christmas and New Year holiday plans and will spend those days in train travel. Immediately following the Criterion premiere he will leave for the East.

Because of the pressure of Jolson's contractual obligations the Warners had little hope previously that he would be able to attend, but the star apparently remembered a promise made in Hollywood during the filming of "The Jazz Singer." At his own instigation Jolson made the necessary arrangements and wired that he was leaving New York yesterday.

The list of notables who will attend "The Jazz Singer" premiere to greet Jolson is assuming the aspect of a Hollywood "blue book." Reservations to date include Charles Chaplin, C. B. De Mille, Dolores Costello, Jetta Goudal, Laura La Plante, William Setter, Monte Blue, Irene Rich, Louise Fazenda, Henry Walthall, May Robson, Lambert Hillyer, Edmund Goulding, William Collier, Jr., Catherine Hilliker, Clyde Cook, Bryan Foy, Murray Roth, Hugh Herbert, Myrna Loy, Helene Costello, Audrey Ferris, Michael Curtiz, M. C. Levee, Harry Rapf and Watterson R. Rothacker.

Carli Elinor to Supervise House Music

By special arrangement with Fred A. Miller, head of the Carthay Circle Theater, who has Carli Elinor under contract as leader of the Circle orchestra, this well-known musical director has been given the signal honor of being selected by the management of the United Artists Theater to act as guest conductor upon the occasion of the opening Monday evening. He has also been paid the additional tribute of being chosen by United Artists to supervise the music of that house.

Applications for the position of leader of the new theater have been received from all over the country and include some of the most frequently mentioned orchestra leaders in the world, but Elinor, after carefully considering all of them, has selected Dion Romandy, well-known local musician, for the honor. Romandy was assistant conductor under Elinor at the California Theater in the days when it had a fifty-piece orchestra.

Following his appearance at the opening of the United Artists Theater, Elinor will return to the Carthay Circle to resume his duties and prepare his scores for forthcoming productions in addition to supervising the music played at the United Artists house.

NEIL HAMILTON AWARDED LEAD

Will Play Brave Hero to Esther Ralston's Heroine; Jack Egan Juvenile Lead in Kane Feature; Johnny Hines Borrows Louise Lorraine

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Neil Hamilton, the amateur Houdini of Hollywood, not only draws rabbits from hats. He also draws a succession of excellent parts from Paramount.

B. P. Schulberg made known yesterday that Hamilton will be Esther Ralston's leading man in her next starring picture, "Nothing Ever Happens."

Frank Tuttle, who will direct the picture, also wrote the original story, and the adaptation is now being prepared by Florence Ryerson and Raymond Cannon. Louis D. Lighton will supervise.

Hamilton, as will be remembered, was Miss Ralston's leading man in "Ten Modern Commandments" and also in "The Spotlight," not yet shown here, two vehicles that have brought praise from critics everywhere and a tremendous increase in the star's fan mail.

Production on "Nothing Ever Happens" will not start until well along in the new year, it being necessary for Hamilton to first finish his current role in George Bancroft's first starring picture.

Jack Egan Engaged

If you haven't heard of Jack Egan in pictures, you are going to. At least that is what Robert Kane and Allan Dwan assert, and they are willing to stand by it, too, having just signed Egan as the juvenile lead in "The Headliner," the Ben Hecht story to be released by First National.

JACK EGAN

Egan is of the stage, having appeared with Olga Petrova and in a number of musical comedies in New York. His picture experience includes juvenile roles with Gilda Gray in "Cabaret," and with W. C. Fields in "The Potters."

Louise Fazenda Signs

True to my prophecy in this column a few weeks ago, Louise Fazenda is to play opposite Charles Murray in a First National picture, "It's All Greek to Me," to be started within a week.

LOUISE FAZENDA

One suspects there will be an avalanche of Greek and Roman burlesques following the success of "Helen of Troy," which just closed at the Million Dollar, and "It's All Greek to Me" will be the first of "Helen of Troy's" children. The story is also to have a modern sequence laid in New York.

Johnny Hines Starts

Even if it is holiday time, Johnny Hines seems to be able to keep his mind on his work, and he will start production early next week on "China Charlie," some scenes for which he made back in New York recently.

LOUISE LORRAINE

Louise Lorraine has been borrowed from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to play the lead opposite Hines—a part requiring a petite brunette — while the statesque Edna May will also have a leading feminine role.

Harry Gribbon and Scooper Lowry are others in important roles. Scooper is a child actor. Charles Hines will direct.

German Ace on Screen

Joachim Rehorst, one of the few survivors of Richthofen's Flying Circus, has been brought to Hollywood by the Caddo Company to serve as one of the technical advisors on "Hell's Angels."

"Hell's Angels" will bring to the screen the aerial exploits of Baron Von Richthofen, Germany's noted ace, and his followers. They have been widely publicized in America, and during recent months his life and adventures have formed a topic of conversation all over the country.

Rehorst is said to be the only surviving member of Richthofen's own personal staff.

Frank Currier in It

Frank Currier, dean of the American stage and pioneer of motion-picture acting, is to play the important role of Capt. Shores, Ramon Novarro's father, in the latter's new starring vehicle, "China Bound," it has been announced by Irving G. Thalberg, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executive.

Humberstone Will Wed

H. B. Humberstone, for several years assistant to Director Fred Niblo, is the latest flimite to succumb to the lure of matrimony. His engagement to Miss Virginia Marie Mc-Williams has been announced, and the wedding date has been set for early in February.

The film man's fiancee is not a professional. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert McWilliams of Hollywood.

Swordplay is Made Realistic

An expert with the foils coached the players in "The Love Mart," who were required to practice the art of fencing in the film which opens a week's run at the West Coast Uptown Theater today. This George Fitzmaurice production for First National Pictures, with Billie Dove, Gilbert Roland and Noah Beery, has its locale in New Orleans and the period is the early part of the last century, when a trusty blade was often a requisite to success and safety.

In addition to the screen presentation of "The Love Mart," the Uptown will also offer a varied Vitaphone program featuring Mischa Elman, violinist; Waring's Pennsylvanians, collegian orchestra; "Under the Sea," featuring the Submarine Quartet, and a novel comedy sketch called "Nonsupport."

HAPPY YOUNGSTERS IN SPIRITED ACTS

Yuletide Atmosphere Is Provided by Fanchon and Marco at Metropolitan

This is a great week for the kiddies at the Metropolitan Theater.

Not only has the spirit of Christmas been caught in the colorful Rube Wolf, Fanchon and Marco stage presentation, "Toyland," but the holiday from school which members of the younger generation are enjoying has been fittingly celebrated by the presentation of five bright youngsters in dance and musical acts.

A lithesome little maiden and a youth open the act in a pretty ballet interpretation. They prove exceedingly light on their toes. Following them comes a black, curly haired young lady who sings a popular jazz number to the accompaniment of a little toe work.

Two very young men in military suits, one of whom Rube proudly introduces as his son, perform on the cornet, while little Miss Margaret Brown is seen in a solo dance number, exceedingly well received.

Interspersed with the kiddie numbers is some music from the Metropolitan band directed by Rube, one number being "My Blue Heaven," a quartet of college boys singing the chorus and a coterie of dancers coming out on the stage to keep step to the rhythmic swing of the music.

Just toward the close of the act, Al Herman, blackface comedian, billed as the feature attraction, makes his appearance, telling jokes, soft-shoeing and in general endeavoring to make himself amusing.

There are a pair of roller skating acrobats who are good and who give Rube a twirl for his life.

The picture feature is "Quality Street," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release directed by Sidney Franklin and with Conrad Nagel, Marion Davies, Helen Jerome Eddy, Flora Finch, Margaret Seddon, Marcelle Corday and Kate Price in the cast. It is an adaptation of the story of the same name by Sir James M. Barrie.

HISTORIC PICTURE HAS NEW SETTING

"Old Ironsides" Presented at Million Dollar; Symphony Orchestra Enlarged

"Old Ironsides," the stirring and romantic tale of the United States Frigate "Constitution," opened yesterday for its first Los Angeles showing at the Million Dollar Theater.

At this date its merits are established firmly in the minds of picturegoers. The cast includes Esther Ralston and Charles Farrell in the romantic roles, with George Bancroft and Wallace Beery forming a first-rate comedy team.

With the picture is introduced for the first time at the Million Dollar, the augmented orchestra under the direction of Leo Forbestein.

Mr. Forbestein, who has always managed to make his theater orchestras a bit different from the ordinary, has established a splendid miniature symphony orchestra.

The numbers offered on last night's program were "Ave Maria," "Old Ironsides," a medley of patriotic airs, "When Twilight Comes," a vocal solo by Max Blackwell, and a novelty, "Yes, We Have No Bananas," with apologies to the old masters.

The entire program was well received, and the audience, fully grasping the humor of the last selection, responded generously.

Forbestein did a clever bit of work in this number. First it was the work of Wagner, and the melody boomed out through a perfect din of brass. Next came the dainty music-box quality of Mozart . . . this time the familiar tune tinkled but on all of the light and dainty instruments of the orchestra. Liszt was next, a elaborate piano solo, with the same tune woven into a Hungarian dance as a climax.

Cadman was not forgotten in the group, and his Indian melodies and flute calls turned the "Banana" song into a thing of beauty. It was next woven into Tschaikowsky's "Marche Slav," and as the final note the entire orchestra chimed in on a Sousa version.

"CRADLE SONG" COMING

"The Cradle Song," a drama which has been prominent in Eva LeGallienne's Repertory Theater in New York during the past season, reportedly will have a local presentation at the Mason beginning January 16. No definite have been forthcoming as to the nature of the showing, or its sponsors, as yet.

CARTHAY AWAITS GUESTS

The members of the all-Southern football team, here to play the Pacific Coast team Monday at the Coliseum, will attend a performance of F. W. Murnau's "Sunrise" at the Carthay Circle Theater tonight. They go as the guests of Dr. Barnet W. Wright and James Cheek, and in their party—numbering forty—will be their wives and coaches, the latter two classes not being necessarily synonymous.

SHRINE HOST AS SANTA ARRIVES

Four Thousand Needy Boys and Girls Receive Gifts

Jolly St. Nick Reaches Hall on Large Locomotive

Poor Adults to Get Clothing at Temple Tomorrow

Al Malaikah Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, played host to 4000 poor children in the Shrine Auditorium last night, having made special arrangements with Santa Claus to appear and distribute gifts and good things to eat to the small guests. The entire lower floor was crowded long before the scheduled arrival of St. Nick with a carload of presents, and balcony seats were filled with members of the Temple and their families.

When the curtain was raised, a scene of icy splendor was disclosed, with a fifty-foot tree as the center of interest, surrounded with snow-covered mountains, the whole covered with diamond dust and tinsel which sparkled and shimmered in a flood of lights.

Soon the noise of an approaching locomotive and train was heard, and when the lights were lowered thousands of delighted eyes witnessed the approach of the patron saint of childhood riding in state in state in the glare of the headlight on the front of a huge engine. Amid wild cheers and shrill greetings called in childish treble, Santa stepped from his iron steed and responded to this vociferous welcome.

Then, after a brief program of entertainment, the boys and girls filed past and each was given a bag filled with presents: Dolls, balls, wagons, horns, fruit, nuts and candy—all dear to the heart of childhood. Two hours were taken for this, concluding the twenty-second annual Christmas party given by the Temple.

Tomorrow some 3000 poor adults will share in the bounty of the Shriners, when thousands of articles of wearing apparel will be distributed, as well as 2000 well-filled dinner baskets.

Jury in Couts Case Locked Up

After deliberating for more than nine hours, a jury in Superior Judge Thompson's court last night had failed to reach a verdict in the case of Richard G. Couts, charged with murder in connection with the slaying October 18, last, of Bennie Chavez, former boxer. The jury was locked up for the night.

Couts is asserted to have stabbed Chavez during an altercation which followed a party the two attended.

UNIVERSITY MAY MOVE NEXT YEAR

New Westwood Buildings of U.C.L.A. Rising Faster Than Expected

Hope that the University of California at Los Angeles can occupy its new home in Westwood next September is held out by contractors engaged in building the two major units of the group. With more than one-third of the reinforced concrete of the auditorium and classroom building and of the library and administration building completed, completion of these structures may be expected in time for the fall session of 1928, according to J. Clyde Bannister of Bannister & Gow, contractors.

Although the contract allows until December, 1928, for the work to be turned over to the regents, the pace at which the large structures are rising now encourages the prediction that they will be finished before that time.

The two buildings are to be of red brick with white terra-cota art stone finish. The library is to have spacious reading rooms and a well-equipped reference department. The reserve stacks will occupy the larger small debate, conference and study rooms will be situated on the third floor. White marble will be used to finish the foyer of the library. The dome and ceiling will be of intricate and artistic design.

The equipment and facilities of a modern theater will be found in the auditorium, the stage being equipped with lighting and mechanical devices which will permit of first-class productions. Seating space for 2000 is to be provided in the auditorium. Large classrooms will also occupy a large portion of this major building

SERVICES READ FOR ACTRESS

Representatives from All Studios Attend Funeral of Diana Miller

With representatives of all local studios in attendance, funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon at the Little Church of the Flowers, Glendale, for Diana Miller, film actress and wife of George Melford, who died Monday at Monrovia after a year's illness.

A profussion of floral offerings filled the church as Rev. John A. Ingleman, pastor of the Hollywood Liberal Catholic Church, assisted by George Granlich, soloist, opened the services. Pallbearers were Monty Blue, Philo McCullough, Joseph McDonough, Robert Ellis, Harold G. Connolly and Emil Jargenson.

Following the services, attended by the deceased's parents, of Portland, interment was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Miss Miller, who was 24 years of age, met her husband while portraying a stellar role in "The Sheik," which he was directing. They were married in 1925. She was forced to leave the Fox Film Company because of ill health.
